ELECT JOHNSON HEAD OF CITY SCHOOLS TODAY

Bogan's Aid Will Be His Successor.

(Picture on Back Page.)

Dr. William H. Johnson, assistant superintendent of the Chicago public schools, will be chosen superintendent at a meeting of the board of education today, it was learned from an authoritative source last night. He will take office immediately for a term of four years as successor to Supt. William J. Bogan who died on March 24.

There are eleven school board members and six votes are required to elect a new superintendent. According to reports, Dr. Johnson is assured the votes of at least ten board members. As assistant superintendent his salary is $10,000 a year. As superintendent he will receive $15,000.

Single Head for System.

Election of a superintendent will place administration of the office under one head for the first time since Feb. 1 when Mr. Bogan's last illness began. From then until a few days after his death the four assistant superintendents administered their own departments. Besides Dr. Johnson, who is in charge of high schools, these assistants are James E. McDade, head of elementary schools; Frank L. Beals, head of special schools, and Charles J. Lunak, head of night schools.

On March 31 the four were formed by the school board into a committee to administer the system, with Mr. McDade as chairman. This plan, while temporarily effective, could not be carried on for long, board members pointed out, since many cases arise in which only a superintendent can act. If the board does not select a successor to Dr. Johnson as assistant superintendant today, this will soon be done, it was indicated.

Johnson Born In Chicago.

Dr. Johnson is 40 years old. He will be the 14th superintendent of Chicago schools and the first Chicago born superintendent since the office was created in 1854.

He was born in the Logan Square district and received his early education at the Langland elementary school and the Tuley High school. From 1913 to 1915 he attended Beloit college and in 1917 was graduated from Northwestern university. He went at once into teaching, gaining his first experience in the high school at Palatine.

During the war Dr. Johnson served as a research chemist in the army chemical warfare service at Washington, D. C. In 1919 he was head of the chemistry department in Rockford college and then was dean of the junior college at Fort Scott, Kas.

Becomes a Chicago Teacher.

In 1921 he returned to Chicago and became a science instructor in the Lane Technical High school where Mr. Bogan then was principal. At Lane Dr. Johnson initiated a program of testing student intelligence and aptitude which is still widely used.

He received the degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Chicago in 1923 and the next year was appointed professor of education in Chicago Normal college. At this time also he was made managing editor of the Chicago Schools Journal.

In 1925 he became a public school principal and for ten years served at various times as head of the Webster, Haugan, and Volta elementary schools. It was in the summer of 1935 while he was principal of the Volta school that Dr. Johnson was nominated by Supt. Bogan for an assistant superintendency and was elected to that office by the board of education.

Lecturer and Author.

In addition to his public school duties Dr. Johnson during the last 10 years has been a lecturer on education in the graduate school of Loyola university. He is the author of numerous articles and several books on education and since 1929 has been supervisor of education of the Chicago Historical society.

Dr. Johnson is married and lives at 914 Lafayette parkway. He is a member of the Presbyterian church. He is also a member of the department of superintendence of the National Education association and of Phi Delta Kappa.

ROOSEVELT TAX BILL HIT ON 13 SPECIFIC POINTS

Depression Breeder, Charge After Study.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's bill to levy approximately 800 million dollars in new taxes yearly was introduced in the house today and immediately was subjected to a barrage of criticism.

The Republican minority of the ways and means committee, which drafted the measure, considered the 249 page bill and then released a report which stated that the proposed tax law was "unsound in principle, will undermine business stability, is another step toward regimentation of all business, and is not designed to raise revenue but admittedly is another New Deal experiment."

Conservative Democrats joined with the Republicans in this attack against the bill, upon which debate will start Thursday. Its passage before May 1 was predicted by house leaders, although amendments may change the measure materially.

Goal Is Tax Revision.

Complete revision of the corporation tax system is the main objective of the bill. It levies a graduated tax on corporation income, based on percentage of earnings withheld from distribution to stockholders in the form of dividends.

The minority report summarized objections to the bill as follows:

1. It will discourage, and possibly prevent, the accumulation of adequate "rainy day" reserves, and constitutes a direct threat to the security of business, employment, and investments.

2. It will cause corporations to restrict the distribution of their existing tax paid reserves, which can be rebuilt only under penalty.

"Will Accentuate Depressions."

3. It will discourage business rehabilitation and expansion and have a retarding effect upon recovery and reëmployment.

4. It will hamper the growth of small corporations, impede the development of new enterprises, and foster monopolies.

5. It puts a penalty on prudence and a bounty on improvidence, and constitutes an unwholesome interference with the exercise of sound judgment in the management of business.

6. It will accentuate the extremes of future booms and depressions.

7. It will oppress businesses burdened with debts and will result in a restriction on corporate credit.

8. It will drive capital out of productive enterprise into tax exempt securities.

"Arbitrary and Oppressive."

9. It violates every sound principle of income taxation, is arbitrary and oppressive in its application, and will be unequal and discriminating in its operation.

10. It will crucify financially weak business enterprises while permitting the strong to minimize or entirely escape the tax.

11. It will create inequities and unfair competitive situations which are far greater and more real than the imaginary ones it purports to correct.

12. It will result in the double taxation of all dividends paid out of reserves, whether accumulated in the past or in the future.

13. It will cause untold confusion and add bewildering complexities both in the computation and administration of the law.

Another point raised in the report was that the bill abandons an assured revenue of 1 billion 100 million dollars yearly from existing corporate taxes.

Treasury Silent on Returns.

"It is significant," the report stated, "that up to the time the bill was ordered reported to the house, the treasury had not even attempted to make an estimate of the possible yield from the proposed tax.

"The chairman of the committee has been reported in the press as stating that the 'reform' aspects of the bill are equally if not more important than the revenue aspects. However, with the public debt mounting at the rate of several billions each year, and no end in sight; with no serious effort to balance the budget being made; and with the nation's credit already stretched to the utmost, we believe that it is both dangerous and foolhardy to experiment

Bind and Rob Mother and Girl in Home

Under arrest at the detective bureau is an oddly assorted pair of robbers. One claims that he is a graduate of the University of Illinois and the other admits that his education all came from the Bridewell curriculum.

The pair, alleged to have taken property valued at more than $3,000 from Mrs. Eva Sturm Langhagen and her daughter, Miss Marion Sturm, after tying them up Sunday evening and holding them prisoners for hours in their home at 4349 Lake Park avenue, were seized yesterday afternoon at Halsted and Harrison streets by Sergts. Thomas Prindiville and Frank Fuerst.

Ring Identified by Victim.

In a pocket of the alleged college graduate, John Carter, 25 years old, formerly of Jacksonville, Ill., the policemen found a $1,500 diamond ring that was identified by Mrs. Langhagen as hers. He and his companion, Albert Fanelli, 27 years old, 601 South Halsted street, denied being the holdup men, but declined to explain how they came into possession of the ring.

Mrs. Langhagen and her daughter, who are associated in the management of two beauty shops in the Stevens hotel, declined to view the men at the bureau. They said that the pair wore masks and kept lights in the house dim while they were there, and hence could not be identified. Further, Mrs. Langhagen admitted that she was impressed by threats made by the bandits to kill her if she coöperated with the police.

Tells of Abuse by Robbers.

She said that the masked men were in her home when she and Miss Sturm arrived. The women were placed in chairs and securely bound to them with adhesive tape. Mrs. Langhagen said she took off her ring and dropped it to the floor when she was seized, but that the men found it. They then, she said, drank a quart of whisky they had brought with them, all the while abusing their prisoners in an effort to make them tell where more jewelry was kept.

When they departed they took with them two fur coats valued at $1,500, a quantity of silverware and three watches, in addition to the ring. Shortly after they left Mrs. Langhagen and Miss Sturm freed themselves.

When the detectives arrested them Carter and Fanelli were in an automobile. With them they had a roll of adhesive tape such as that used in the binding of the women. The seizure of the pair was made on suspicion, and only when they reached the detective bureau did Prindiville and Fuerst learn that a secret investigation of the Langhagen robbery was being made by police.

Carter, who said that he had formerly been employed in Chicago as a commercial artist, asserted that he had nothing to do with any robberies. Fanelli, who served a year in the Bridewell for burglary, would not talk.

Mrs. Langhagen was in the court of Judge Rudolph Desort on Monday to press her suit for divorce from Gustave Langhagen of New York, who, she charged, deserted her in 1933. The case was continued at the husband's request until next Monday.

ARMY FLYER DEAD, ONE HURT AS PLANE CRASHES 1,500 FEET

San Diego, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—Second Lieutenant L. R. Ohlmstead, 25, was injured fatally and Capt. Walter E. Todd, 34, escaped with a slightly wrenched back and bruises when their army pursuit plane crashed on Camp Kearny today. Ohlmstead died en route to the naval hospital here.

Both flyers—from Selfridge field, Mount Clemens, Mich.—bailed out after the ship went into a tailspin, said Todd, the pilot. Ohlmstead's parachute opened too late and he struck the ground with tremendous force.

"The ship went into a tailspin at 1,500 feet," Todd reported. "I told Ohlmstead to jump. He said he would not jump until I did. I then climbed overboard and a few seconds later Ohlmstead also left the ship, which by that time was getting close to the ground."

An army board of inquiry visited the accident scene to examine the wreckage and determine if possible what caused the ship to go into the spin.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO START SPRING VACATION FRIDAY

All public schools will close Friday for the annual spring vacation, according to an announcement yesterday by James E. McDade, chairman of the committee of superintendents of the board of education. The schools will reopen May 4. The Chicago park district has planned four out of town hikes for school children during the vacation, according to Miss Dorothea Nelson of the park recreation staff. The first will be to the Indiana State park at Tremont next Sunday. The others are: April 29, from Willow Springs to Palos Park; May 1, Palos Park circle hike, and May 3, Brookfield zoo hike.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—With a detective taking the part of his victim, John C. Fiorenza, a 24 year old ex-convict, late this afternoon, dramatically reënacted for the police the slaying of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, 34 year old novelist and short story writer, whom he earlier had confessed raping and strangling on April 10.

The grim make-believe tragedy took place in the writer's town apartment at 22 Beekman place. Fiorenza, a stocky, dark, brown eyed youth, demonstrated, with the aid of the detective, how he gained access to the apartment by pretending to have furniture business to discuss; how he kept Mrs. Titterton silent by threatening to kill her; how he tied her hands behind her back while pressing her face into the pillow and then how he wrapped a rope of clothing around her face and neck.

Victim Dragged to Tub.

Next he dragged the detective into the bathroom and told how he placed Mrs. Titterton in the bath tub and cut the cord from her hands. He turned on the faucet of the tub, but did not place the stopper in, he said. Then something frightened him and he fled.

It was in this flight that the slayer inadvertently left behind a piece of cord thirteen inches long and it was that piece of cord which led to a solution of the crime.

In the Titterton apartment during the reënactment of the crime were Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine and District Attorney William C. Dodge, who jointly had announced the slayer's confession. Also present was the slain woman's husband, Lewis H. Titterton, a National Broadcasting company executive and book critic.

After reënacting the crime, the youthful ex-convict, who is five feet, six and a half inches tall and wore a blue suit, was rushed to the East 51st street police station, where he was booked on a homicide charge signed by six detectives.

Death Penalty to Be Sought.

District Attorney Dodge said Fiorenza's case would be presented to the grand jury on Thursday. He predicted that an indictment carrying the death penalty would be returned.

At the police station the slayer, who had maintained outward calm, with only occasional displays of nervousness, throughout the long police ordeal, was fingerprinted and photographed. He then was placed in a cell, around which a twenty-four hour guard will be kept to forestall possible suicide attempts.

In announcing the solution of the crime, Commissioner Valentine revealed that the investigation had convinced the police that Fiorenza entered the Titterton apartment the day of the crime for the sole purpose of raping Mrs. Titterton, an attractive woman of slight build.

Called Police Himself.

A startling angle in the disclosure was the fact that it was the slayer himself who had notified the police of the murder—hours after he had strangled Mrs. Titterton and left her body, almost nude, in the bathtub of her apartment.

On Thursday, April 9, the day before the slaying, Fiorenza called at Mrs. Titterton's apartment. He came to get a love seat to be repaired by his employer, the Kruger Upholstering company. He took the seat away.

The next day, before reporting for work, Fiorenza called again at the Titterton apartment. He gained entrance and seized Mrs. Titterton.

After raping and strangling her

"CAN HOLD OUT 48 HOURS," SAY MINE PRISONERS

Rescuers' Narrow Wall to 12 Feet.

MOOSE RIVER, Nova Scotia, April 22 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Rescue workers in the uncharted gold mine reported shortly after midnight they believed they were within twelve feet of a clear shaft leading to the prison chamber of the two entombed men.

Their report, after a survey of the original operating shaft, came quickly on the heels of a statement from Dr. D. E. Robertson, one of the trapped men, that "I'm good for forty-eight hours." This spurred rescue workers to even more frantic efforts.

The Draegerman crews tearing into the rock barrier could not estimate the time necessary to break through to the dark chamber where Robertson and Charles Alfred Scadding, Toronto men, have been held prisoners for nine days. Their companion, Herman R. Magill, co-owner of the mine with Dr. Robertson, died Monday morning of exhaustion.

Cheer Rescuers On.

Draegerman crews and carpenters, coming to the surface after the 11:30 p. m. shift, expressed the opinion, "The boys on the next shift will break through."

The frantic efforts of the rescue workers had been delayed temporarily when rotten cribwork blocked the passageway in the original operating shaft. One of the workers was reported injured early today by a stone fall in the shaft.

Weary and ill, Robertson and Scadding sent words of encouragement to the surface over a one way communication system. Michael Dwyer, Nova Scotia minister of mines, said the men had told him they knew help was not far off.

Under ordinary circumstances, the minister said, Draegermen could tunnel through twenty feet of rock in five hours, but it may take longer in the cramped quarters in the gold mine.

"I am going down at 3 a. m.," Dwyer said, "and I am going to stay down until we get the men up."

"Coming Out Alive."

"I am sure the entombed men are in no immediate danger," said Dr. H. K. MacDonald, one of the physicians with the hospital unit at the surface, after he talked to Dr. Robertson and Scadding.

"From the strength of their voices we are satisfied they are able to live twenty-four hours and engineers say they'll certainly be through in that time.

"Those men are coming out of there alive," he asserted. "We are equipped for any emergency."

Doctors on the surface said both the entombed men are suffering from inertia and it is known both have heavy colds. Scadding has a bad case of trench feet.

"We are on the right trail," said Provincial Mines Inspector J. P. Messervey when the original operating shaft of the mine was reached shortly after dark.

Timber Fall Sends Chill.

The collapse of the rotten cribwork at 7:15 p. m. sent a chill of despair over the hearts of the feverish miners and the anxious watchers on the surface. Immediately carpenters were sent below to replace the rotten supports with new timbers. The delay, the workers knew, cost precious moments.

A new pipe line similar to the one down which the communication system was dropped yesterday was being completed. Down the new hole engineers planned to drop heating apparatus and other necessities, including a transmitter and receiving equipment. Until now the entombed men could take their "pencil phone" to a distance, but had to come to the drilled tube to hear shouts from above. Access to the tube was difficult and risky for the men. However, the rising waters which on Monday threatened their lives were believed no longer to be a menace.

Prisoners Dictate Will.

The entombed men are in a dark and damp chamber on the 141 foot level, where they were trapped while on an inspection trip Easter Sunday night.

Dr. Robertson early today gave what was believed a will and testament for himself and Scadding. Robertson asked his brother-in-law, Charles Ivey of London, Ont., come to the tube and take down instructions. Those instructions were for what should be done in the event the rescue crew failed to reach the tomb in time. The message was not disclosed publicly.

Dr. Robertson declared "we are fine." But the two men refused to walk over to the 125 foot tube through which they received their first nourishment Monday.

"We are too weak," Robertson said over the one-way telephone.

In the early morning Dr. Robertson told Ivey that he and Scadding had enjoyed two hours' sleep and were "feeling fine." Ivey said the men sounded "very cheerful." At 11 a. m. Mrs. Robertson spoke to her husband and left the drill hole visibly cheered.

Mrs. Scadding En Route.

Mrs. Robertson is remaining at the mine, refusing to leave her quarters in the company office for the comfort of a Halifax hotel.

Mrs. Scadding was on her way here today from Toronto, accompanied by her brother-in-law, F. C. Scadding. They said they would take Scadding to a summer home in Ontario "away from all noise and inquiries to rest and recover from the dreadful experience."

In the vanguard of the digging crew were the Draegermen, Nova Scotia's skilled coal mine rescue workers. They are named for the inventor of gas masks and oxygen tanks they wear.

The rescuers are working on the main slope at the soft level. It is impossible to work more than two men at a time at the point of attack, which is a space about three by four feet and filled in addition to fallen rock with a large amount of broken timbers. The material must be relayed from the point of extraction to the surface in two gallon buckets by the line of workmen. It is necessary to timber every foot of the way, which causes delay. Recurring falls of rock and timber were the greatest obstacles and risks to the rescue workers.

In Shaft Thirty Hours.

Although many of the rescue workers were so exhausted that they were operating in 15 minute shifts, some of the Draegermen remained below more than 30 hours, flatly refusing to come to the surface.

The refusal was due in part, it was learned, to the arrival of twenty additional miner volunteers from Stellarton yesterday.

Some of them told the Draegermen: "We'll have to go down and finish the job for you!"

But the Draegermen said they were determined to be the first to break through to the underground prison.

Twenty more volunteers arrived later from the New Glasgow district mines, an additional seventy from Stellarton district and eight from Goldenville. The crews were composed as nearly as possible of unmarried men.

Crews were encouraged in their efforts by Dwyer, known as "Mike" to the miners with whom he has spent most of his life. The heavy, thickset minister ignored the warning of physicians who sent him to an ambulance cot last night. He is 59 years old.

Sleep was all he required, he said. He outlined the three methods of approach to the men which have been attempted since the accident.

They were:

1. A vertical shaft through solid rock to reach the men's prison; it had been temporarily abandoned because of the length of time required to complete it;
2. The clearing of various old shafts;
3. A diamond drill hole direct to where the men were imprisoned; this has been the only successful approach to date.

Village Crowded.

Many times since Sunday miners had believed they were near their objective, but with no map of the old workings they could only guess, at best, how close they were to the entombed men.

The Rev. William H. Elgee, minister of the United church of Dartmouth, N. S., came to Moose River village to administer spiritual consolation to the entombed men over the communication line.

The royal Canadian mounted police, policing the district which has grown rapidly in population with the arrival of some 200 mining officials, relatives, engineering experts, volunteers, newspaper men and spectators, had a plane on the lake close by the workings.

Buck Spring Mud.

It was difficult to force trucks and cars over the wells of spring mud covering the way to Middle Musquodoboit railroad station, but officials sent a 28 ton crane over the road. Tractors, trucks, supplies and a complete electric lighting plant came in; a radio broadcasting setup and a complete hospital unit were transferred from Halifax.

Rescue men and officials had first choice in bedding—newspaper men got the hard board floor, with lots of open ground space in between, for their sleeping quarters, and those who were lucky arranged to sleep beside the kitchen stoves in the 30 or so houses in the village. A rope barrier kept reporters back from the communication line down the drilled hole.

Miners and volunteers who could not get quarters in the bunkhouse were welcomed to villagers' houses and temporary cots were hastily erected.

Thursday, April 16—Diamond drilling started to make food and communication line to mine tomb. Blasting begun.

Friday, April 17—Ontario rescue workers arrive. Drilling and digging continue.

Saturday, April 18—Drill reaches destination. Trapped men signal they are alive.

Sunday, April 19—Wives talk through drill hole to husbands. Nourishment sent down to mine prison. Rockfall halts digging.

DOCTOR TRAPPED IN MINE DUE FOR TALK IN CHICAGO

Dr. Kellogg Speed, former president of the Chicago Surgical society, revealed yesterday that Dr. D. E. Robertson, one of the men trapped in the Moose River mine, is scheduled to speak at medical meetings here and in Milwaukee next month.

At the convention of the American Surgical association, which convenes May 7 to 9 at the Drake hotel, Dr. Robertson is on the program for a paper on "Surgery of the Chest." On May 20, at the meeting of the American Orthopedic association at Milwaukee, he is scheduled to speak on "Acute Infections of the Bones."

"Dr. Robertson is one of the most prominent members of his profession on the North American continent," Dr. Speed declared. "He is one of the few men in the United States and Canada to belong to both of these associations, which are the highest ranking surgical bodies in the country."

R. D. Harper, an engineer for the state highway department, operated the Moose River mine in 1910.

SHOWER PRAISE ON MINE CREWS IN RESCUE WORK

Return to Pit After Few Minutes' Rest.

MOOSE RIVER, Nova Scotia, April 21.—(AP)—Hardships which the veteran miners of this district and Ontario have undergone the last few days as they have sought to free the two men imprisoned by a mine cave-in have impressed observers as a demonstration of human courage and sacrifice rarely equalled.

Men came up from the mine in a state of exhaustion, snatched a few minutes rest and then returned to their labors in a shaft of such size that it forces them to work stooped over.

They used a human chain formation up which the "man on the face" who first removed the débris or stone blocking the shaft leading to the imprisoned men, passed the material to the man behind and so on from hand to hand until it could be placed in some recess.

Coal Miners Join Work.

The miners who were relieved this morning by volunteers from Westville, N. S., had worked for 24 hours without rest. The men from Westville, their faces still grimy with coal dust, came 150 miles from their regular shift to give aid in this grim battle of life and death.

One man was hurt today and when he came up his boss told him not to go back. The miner turned and said: "Forget it. Do you expect to live forever on this earth? We are the ones who know how to save those poor chaps in there."

And he went back into the mine.

Vote Medals.

The legislature voted to have medals struck for the Draegermen, regardless of whether they saved the two men entombed in the mine. Hugh McPherson of Stellarton, one of the rescue workers, rose from a sick bed to work day and night at the mine.

The Draegermen take their name from the particular type of equipment they use. Masked and carrying oxygen tanks, they can live for hours without air, tunneling through gas filled mines. The tanks they carry were designed by a German scientist named Draeger.

A fund has been started for rescue workers. Norman Somerville, chairman of the Red Cross society of Canada, announced the Red Cross would receive contributions to the fund. A committee of five was appointed to supervise disposition of the money directly to the workers.

In Rustic Scene.

The scene of the miners' unceasing day and night labor lies out in the hinterlands of picturesque Nova Scotia, with fine mountain scenery and rushing salmon and trout streams far behind.

The lake that lies above the scene of operations has been a wordless threat in itself—as workmen have feared a dynamite blast to loosen a way to the trapped men might also loosen a fissure in the rock and allow a subterranean torrent to drown them.

Dynamiting stopped yesterday, and the rescuers, men of the northlands who are used to ordinary hardships, tugged with their hands and with hand tools at the remaining walls of the gold impregnated dungeon. No vacation land this area—just a land of stones and scrub trees where fagged men have been struggling to reach two men fighting madness and death behind a rock wall.

Discovered by Lumbermen.

Lumbermen were first to strike gold in the area of the Moose river gold mine, twenty miles inland and seventy-five miles northeast of Halifax. When rock was being blasted from the river in 1866, so logs could be rolled down stream, the lumbermen made the find.

In 1881 the Moose River Gold Mining company was formed and a year later operations began. Several shafts were operated and the company later leased leads to individuals who since have worked them periodically. Several months ago Dr. Robertson and Magill bought the entire property. The mine, in the center of the "Goldenville formation," one of the two gold bearing geological divisions of Nova Scotia, is a wide zone of interbedded slate and quartzites. The quartzite strata contain gold. Loosening of weaker slate strata by water seepage is believed by Foreman F. D. Henderson of the mine to have caused the rock fall which entombed the three men April 12.

MINE CAVE-IN RECALLS FLOYD COLLINS EPIC TO MINDS OF PUBLIC

The feverish efforts to rescue two men entombed in the crumbling gold mine at Moose River, Nova Scotia, has in recent days turned the thoughts and conversation of many persons to the epic 17 day struggle of eleven years ago to save Floyd Collins, pinned by a rock fall in a Kentucky cave.

On Jan. 30, 1925, Collins, 35 years old, went into Sand cave to explore a new passage. He crawled 80 feet along a narrow crevice. Turning to leave, he jarred loose some rocks and his foot was caught beneath the weight of a heavy boulder. Twenty-four hours later his shouts brought Jewel Estes, a neighboring farm boy. Rescuers started working and chiseling the rocks. The temperature was 16 degrees.

Men crawled in and placed a lether harness about Floyd, but pulling would not dislodge his leg. A string of electric lights and radio microphones were placed near him. On Feb. 4 Collins reported his leg was free. But at the same time rescuers were cut off by a second serious cave-in and there was another the next day. Until Feb. 4, crawling men had been able to give Floyd food and water. On Feb. 6 tunneling began from above and on Feb. 14 a lateral tunnel was started. The same day, over the radio connection, Collins was heard to cough. On Feb. 15 a connection was made with the narrow crevice where his body was discovered. Physicians said he had been dead 24 hours. Two days later the tunnel was sealed and funeral services were held.

Manslaughter Charge Is Recommended.

A coroner's jury yesterday recommended that Walter Zilas, 19 years old, 6718 South Karlov avenue, be held to the grand jury on a manslaughter charge for the death March 15 of Mrs. Vada Laird, 43 years old, wife of Ross Lee Laird, a former assistant state's attorney, of 6005 South Morgan street.

Mrs. Laird was killed when Zilas' car crashed head-on into one in which she was riding with her husband, at West 54th street and Central avenue. Policeman William Unger of the accident prevention bureau testified an investigation showed Zilas was intoxicated at the time of the accident. Charles Kabelis, 20 years old, 6328 South Maplewood avenue, companion of Zilas, testified they had had several glasses of beer. Zilas denied that he had been drinking.

Street Car Motorman Killed.

John Nelson, 32 years old, 3118 Homer street, a street car motorman, was fatally injured last night when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another at Cicero avenue and Division street, and then smashed into a lamp pole. Harold Jensen, 27 years old, 4815 School street, driver of the Nelson car, and Earl Johnson, 24 years old, 918 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, the other driver, were uninjured. Nelson died in St. Anne's hospital.

Walter Gratzer, 60 years old, 1230 West Huron street, was killed early today when he was struck at Randolph and Morgan streets by an automobile driven by Casimer Maguga, 916 Milwaukee avenue. At the time the accident occurred Gratzer was pushing a handcart loaded with wood in the street.

A man about 35 years old, identified by cards in his pockets as W. L. Armbruster, 6441 St. Anthony's court, was killed early today when the automobile he was driving crashed at high speed into a light pole in front of 2504 Belmont avenue. The crash broke the steel pole in two and caused the wires to fall to the ground. The police said the cards indicated that the man killed was an employé of the National Tea company

Child Hurt by Car.

John A. Sloan III., 4½ years old, was struck by an automobile yesterday as he ran across the alley at the rear of his home at 2320 Orrington avenue, Evanston, to get into a car in which his mother was waiting for him. He was treated for a possible skull fracture and lacerations. Eugene Buckner, 29 years old, colored, an employé of the Brady Motor corporation, 1624 Chicago avenue, Evanston, driver of the car which struck the child, was not held. Police said the skid marks of Buckner's car indicated he was driving at less than 20 miles an hour.

Joseph Krajic, 48 years old, 2320 Cullerton street, died yesterday in the County hospital from injuries suffered April 14 when he was struck at State street and Delaware place by an automobile driven by William Clerici, 39 years old, 2358 North Moody avenue. Clerici was ordered to attend the inquest.

The coroner's office reported 291 persons killed in trafic accidents from Jan. 1 to 4 p. m. yesterday. In the same period 236 persons were killed and 4,538 injured within the city.

RESUME RELIEF FIGHT; BILL ASKS STATE USE FUNDS

Action Follows Horner's Demand for Tax.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—In the face of Gov. Horner's disapproval, Democratic House Leader Adamowski tonight introduced a bill calling for appropriation of six million dollars from the state's general revenue fund to meet relief needs during May and June.

The bill was presented a few hours after the governor told a group of influential Chicagoans that the state has no surplus which could be used to make up the anticipated deficiency. Instead, he proposed that local communities in general, and Chicago in particular, prepare to levy a relief tax.

Legal experts around the statehouse declared that there was no way for communities to levy such a tax immediately and pointed out that many of the tax bills have already been prepared.

Goes to Second Reading.

Adamowski's bill was sent to second reading. It carries an emergency clause and predictions were made after its introduction that Republicans would join Chicago Democrats in attempting its passage.

The bill was received in the midst of a joint session of both houses at which Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the commission, and others, gave details of relief needs.

The governor's suggestion for levying local relief taxes is expected to expedite the chances for passage of the Hickman bill, which provides that townships which do not so levy by Oct. 1 will receive no state relief funds from sales tax collections.

Chicagoans Fight Bill.

Chicagoans, who have always fought the bill, are preparing to continue their battle. Senator Wilber H. Hickman [Dem., Paris] plans to call his bill at the first opportunity, perhaps tomorrow.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the Cook county board and one of those who talked to the governor today, declared that Cook county has no bonding power available adequate to meet the situation. The suggestion had been advanced that the county board could issue about three millions in bonds, which authority was said to remain from a previous bond issue.

President Smith and Assistant State's Attorney William Tuohy declared that the county refinancing program now in progress would permit issuance of not more than one and one-half millions.

They Agree on IERC.

The governor did agree with Smith, D. F. Kelly, Walter L. Gregory, Lyons and others in the delegation that the present activities of the IERC should be continued until July 1. Unless it is continued, the commission, on May 1, will cease to perform any duties except allocation of funds to counties, county boards doing the actual relief work.

A new bill would be necessary to accomplish this purpose, none of those on the present calendar being in a position to be amended.

BOY GIVEN SIGHT AT 7 UNDERGOES A 2D OPERATION

Newark, N. J., April 21.—[Special.]—The bandages went back today on the eyes of Samuel Mydash, 7, who saw for the first time in his life last Saturday.

The bandages were removed Saturday following a successful operation to remove a complete congenital cataract on his right eye. Today in St. Michael's hospital a similar cataract on his left eye was removed.

When his bandages were removed Samuel looked up at the surgeon who had operated on him and asked: "What are those things hanging on your ears?"

"Those are my glasses," said the surgeon.

"Those are lollypops," explained a nurse.

"I want a lollypop, too," said Samuel. "I know how they taste, but I never knew they looked so good."

JUDGE RULES AGAINST MINNEAPOLIS MAYOR IN CLOSING OF PLANT

Minneapolis, Minn., April 21.—[Special.]—Mayor E. Latimer acted without authority when he joined with Gov. Floyd B. Olson and Adjutant General E. A. Walsh in closing the Strutwear Knitting company plant with National Guard troops last December, District Judge Mathias M. Baldwin held today in overruling the mayor's demurrer to the knitting company's $101,500 damage suit. Olson and Walsh also are defendants in the action.

"He had no more right to do what he did as mayor of the city than he might do as a private citizen," the court held. "If the mayor of the city may lawfully do the act complained of, he could just as lawfully put to death a prisoner in a jail to prevent the destruction of the jail and the lynching of the prisoner."

Mayor Latimer based his demurrer primarily on the ground that the power to call out troops is delegated solely to the governor and that when troops were sent to the Strutwear plant it was an act of the governor.

In asking $101,500 damages from the three officials, the Strutwater company alleged it was damaged in that amount through inability of its plant to operate during the month the National Guard was in possession.

AUSTRIA HEARS HAPSBURGS CAN'T AFFORD MEAT

Vienna, April 21.—(AP)—Maj. Josef Jirouschek of Austria's old imperial army told a massmeeting of legitimists today that Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Austrian throne, is so poor that he does not get enough to eat.

"On a visit to the royal family, I learned that meat is rarely seen on the table," the major said, telling of a recent trip to Steenockerzeel castle, Belgian seat of Otto's exile. "I attended a mass in the castle chapel and noticed a hole as big as a two shilling coin in the shoe of one archduchess."

Maj. Jirouschek criticized the present republican government of Austria for failure to return properties to the Hapsburgs after the confiscation law was repealed July 10, 1935. His speech—which moved some of the legitimists to tears—started a campaign to enlist sympathy for the "poverty-stricken Hapsburgs."

THE O'DONNELL IS PINCHED BY A REAL SLEUTH

Spike Sees the Other Side of Detective Work.

Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, beer boss of the prohibition era, may be a super sleuth to John M. Bransfield, the contractor, but to Sergt. Marshall Pidgeon of the detective bureau he is still just a hoodlum suspect.

The O'Donnell was balancing his 6 feet 3 inches on a curb at Madison and Wells streets yesterday afternoon, resting gloved hands on a cane, when Sergt. Pidgeon drove up in a squad car.

"Get in, Spike," said Sergt. Pidgeon. "The boss wants to talk to you."

Spike Objects in Vain.

"Here, here," bristled Spike. "Don't you guys ever read the papers? You can't arrest me. I'm a detective, too."

"Maybe you are," retorted the sergeant." Maybe you're trying to muscle into some unions too. Come along to the bureau and we'll see who's a detective."

Spike went along. Last evening he appeared with other prisoners in the showup. His smile was as hearty as before his arrest. "Nobody has anything on Spike," said he. "I'm a contractor."

He was led away to a cell without being booked. Spectators at the showup included members of the governor's commission which is investigating the state's penal system.

Bransfield Testimony Recalled.

O'Donnell's protest against arrest referred to the testimony of Contractor Bransfield at a hearing last week before James R. Bryant, master in chancery of the Superior court. Master Bryant is taking evidence in a suit for an accounting of the funds of the Bransfield company, which was filed against Bransfield by Harold E. Ule, vice president of the company.

Bransfield testified he had paid O'Donnell $16,000 as a detective to learn why his company was not getting paving contracts from the state and why Bransfield was indicted in the T-N-T [Trucking and Transport exchange] conspiracy case.

Mandamus Writ Upheld.

Bransfield won an aquittal in the T-N-T case and later got a court writ of mandamus compelling the state to award him certain paving contracts on which his company was low bidder. He asserted that the information Spike unearthed for him was worth 100,000 times $16,000.

The Illinois Supreme Court yesterday handed down a decision upholding the Bransfield mandamus writ. The court turned down an appeal against the writ which was filed by Robert Kingery, state director of public works.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, former commander of the Sixth Corps Army area here, who is to assume command of the Eighth corps at San Antonio on May 1, was the guest last night at a banquet sponsored by Cook county council, American Legion, in the Hotel La Salle.

In an address Gen. Parker urged support of legislation which will assure adequate national defense. The army and navy must never be less than the minimum stated as necessary by the war and navy departments, he declared.

WIFE'S SEDUCTIVE 'TWIN' TOO MUCH FOR CLERK, SO HE SUES

Los Angeles, Cal., April 21.—[Special.]—An unprecedented situation in records of Los Angeles marital trouble was that described in an annulment petition filed today by Ralph Snidow, clerk. Snidow avers that when he married Bernice Parker in Yuma, Ariz., last January 9, she informed him she had a twin sister, Virginia Parker.

On the morning of Feb. 24, Snidow says, he was told he had been guilty of misconduct with his wife's sister. She demanded $20 not to tell and signed this receipt:

"I hereby consent not to molest Ralph Snidow in any way, so long as he is married to my sister, Bernice. Should he be single at any time, I then will act within the law—Virginia Parker."

This occurrence was repeated several times, Snidow says; but on Monday of this week he says he learned his wife was both "Bernice" and "Virginia," and that there was no twin sister. He drew up annulment papers immediately.

U. OF C. SANCTIONS PARADE TODAY BY 'PEACE STRIKERS'

The University of Chicago yesterday modified its order that all participation in the nation-wide "peace strike" called for 11 a. m. today be confined to a meeting in the university field house. A. J. Brumbaugh, acting dean, announced that a parade may be held from the field house to the campus circle if it proceeds along the sidewalk and is held while no classes are in session.

Plans for Northwestern university's share in the demonstration against war were reported yesterday to be languishing because of student interest in a mock presidential convention now in progress on the campus. An Evanston city permit for a parade has been issued, and students have been asked to walk out of classes at 11 o'clock, but university officials were confident that comparatively few students would participate.

University of Illinois students at Urbana announced that Hayes Beall of Chicago, president of the National Council of Methodist Youth, and George Edwards of Dallas, Tex., national chairman of the American Student union, would be the principal speakers at the peace meeting. at 11 a. m.

Precinct Vote on Saloons Possible in Fall Election

Chicago precincts can put the question of banning saloons on the ballot in November by filing the proper petition with the city clerk for a referendum. Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes ruled to this effect yesterday after City Clerk Peter J. Brady had asked whether the November election would qualify as a city election under the terms of the dram shop act.

HOWARD HUGHES, FILM HEAD, SETS AIR SPEED MARK

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Howard Hughes, motion picture producer and aviation enthusiast, set his third national air speed record today by flying to Floyd Bennett airport from Miami, Fla., in 4 hours 21 minutes and 32 seconds. With a 1,000 horsepower Cyclone engine pulling his single seater Northrop Gamma mail plane, Hughes made an average of 276 miles per hour for the 1,196 mile flight.

"I got the full 1,000 horses from the engine at takeoff and climbed all the way north to Jacksonville, where I leveled off at 13,750 feet, still getting 800 horsepower," Hughes said after landing here. "Ground speed from Jacksonville to Savannah averaged 290 miles per hour without help from the winds. They were across the course except near Washington, where I got a little help. My radio quit near Raleigh and I flew a compass course through poor visibility from there on in."

The previous Miami-New York record was 5 hours and 30 minutes, made in an Eastern Airlines Douglas DC-2 last year. The late Jimmy Wedell flew from New York to Miami in 1933 in 5 hours 1 minute 39 seconds. Hughes holds the west-east transcontinental speed record of 9 hours 27 minutes 10 seconds, which he set last November with the same Northrop and Cyclone engine he used today.

Near Santa Ana, Cal., last summer he made a new world's land plane speed record of 352 miles per hour over a closed course in a racing plane built by his own engineers.

SHOW JUGGLING OF WORK CASH ON POLITICAL BASIS

Relief Needs Ignored by New Deal Spenders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Juggling of relief funds for political expediency, rather than the furnishing of "made work" employment through New Deal easy money, was shown today with the disclosure of a treasury report on the slicing up of the 4 billion 800 million dollars works appropriation.

Congress granted the "world's largest appropriation" to President Roosevelt last year, with few strings attached, on the understanding that relief clients would be put to work. Slicing up of the fund, however, was not followed on the basis of relief load.

The treasury figures, which were not given public circulation, showed that up to April 1 the President took a total of 4 billions 576 milions for spending by 23 alphabetical agencies, including the WPA and PWA, and the regular departments of the government. Of this amount 4 billions 274 millions were allocated to the states, or an increase of 321 milions since Dec. 31, 1935.

Illinois Gets Scant Help.

A table showing the allotment per relief population in each of the 48 states follows:

State.	Allotm't per Relief Client.	State.	Allotm't per Relief Client.
Nevada	$1,278	Connecticut	210
Wyoming	799	Louisiana	206
Montana	532	New Jersey	206
Vermont	478	Mississippi	204
Delaware	466	Iowa	201
Arizona	439	Minnesota	200
Washington	379	Massachusetts	199
Oregon	376	Ohio	199
Idaho	374	Indiana	191
California	346	Alabama	188
Maryland	315	South Carolina	184
Maine	287	Texas	180
New Mexico	279	Arkansas	179
New York	273	Tennessee	178
Nebraska	270	Georgia	178
Florida	248	Kansas	172
New Hampshire	246	Pennsylvania	169
Utah	245	North Carolina	166
Colorado	240	West Virginia	165
Virginia	230	Missouri	158
Illinois	228	North Dakota	155
Wisconsin	223	Oklahoma	137
Michigan	217	South Dakota	128
Rhode Island	214	Kentucky	119

Illinois and New York Compared.

New York is the state where the New Dealers are waging a fight for their political life and, should it go Republican in the fall, Mr. Roosevelt's chances of returning to the White House are dubious. Last year the Republicans captured the lower house of the New York legislature.

A total of $88,777,996 was poured into the New York breach out of the 321 millions advanced to the states since the first of the year.

All of the states received additional allocations except four. Illinois' share was 19 millions, despite the fact that the Illinois relief population is more than half that of New York state.

The four states which suffered decreased allocations and the amounts were as follows: Wisconsin, $10,974,522; California, $6,428,518; Pennsylvania, $2,145,793, and Delaware, $1,149,220.

There was no word of explanation from the administration of why the allocations for these states were decreased while those for others were increased.

The discrepancy is most clearly shown on the basis of relief population, the figures for which are taken from the official reports of the Federal Emergency Relief administration.

Nevada a Glaring Example.

Prime example is the state of Nevada. The New Dealers have shoveled out $1,278 for every man, woman and child on relief in that state. For every relief family in Nevada more than $5,000 has been advanced by the administration.

The Illinois Cinderella share per relief client is $228. While the western states were at the top of the list, New York has fared far better than the average with $273 advanced for each relief client in the state.

During the last three months the New Deal has spent a total of $843,687,852 from the 4 billion 880 million dollars' appropriation. As of March 31 expenditures amounted to $2,515,082,158.

BOY FUGITIVE TURNS UP PALS, 4 STOLEN AUTOS

Sergt. Joseph Jandacek of the Chicago Lawn police arrested Vernon Woyner, 17 years old, 3518 West 66th street, yesterday as a fugitive from St. Charles School for Boys, to which he had been sent for stealing automobiles.

The sergeant found that Vernon had taken advantage of his opportunities since his escape. In front of his house stood a stolen automobile. Questioning the youth, Sergt. Jandacek learned that he had a friend, John Misievich, 17 years old, 644 West 36th street. When John was seized at home he also had a stolen car waiting at the curb.

When the pair admittted they had another friend, Joseph Tumpis, 19 years old, 1708 South Morgan street, the sergeant investigated him also. Joseph went to the CCC camp at Fort Sheridan on Monday. He was seized there and admitted stealing two cars.

MOSQUITO DYER PAINTS OAK PARK RED; OR DOES HE?

Quick, Watson! Police Say Yes, Gustave No.

Any sleuth able to learn who was driving the automobile which knocked over a fire hydrant and crashed into a truck in Oak Park yesterday will earn the gratitude of Gustave Schaefer, a WPA worker of Maywood, who was in the car at the time.

The same sleuth can also solve a mystery for the Oak Park police, who arrested Schaefer in the belief that he was the driver. Schaefer made the case a puzzle by two assertions: one, he was not driving the car, but was simply a passenger; two, he had not been riding in Oak Park.

It Goes Like This:

For the use of amateur detectives, here are the facts: The Oak Park radio operator broadcast a message for all squads to be on the lookout for a drunken motorist who nearly ran down a woman pedestrian at Lake street and Harlem avenue and drove on uncertainly but fast.

Shortly afterward, Policeman Loyal Wilcox and his squad found Schaefer in a car wrecked against a truck at North and Harlem avenues. Witnesses said Schaefer, alone in the car, knocked over a hydrant, drove through a vacant lot, but couldn't quite get over the truck.

Clad in high rubber boots, Schaefer said he was a WPA worker employed at putting dyes in swamps around the western suburbs to tint mosquitoes so the experts could tell how far the insects traveled from home on foraging expeditions.

Two Other Fellows?

Schaefer insisted he had not wrecked the car. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Michael Carmody, he elaborated.

"I wasn't in Oak Park," he said. "I was in 10th avenue, in Maywood. I noticed a couple of bumps, that's all. Somebody else was driving."

Justice Carmody ordered Schaefer, who lives at 315 South 10th avenue, Maywood, locked up until Friday, on charges of intoxication and damage to village property.

After the Schaefer mystery is solved, there will still be another. The police accepted Schaefer's story that he was paid $55 a month to see that mosquitoes got painted bright colors, but couldn't figure out why he is doing it now, as it is too early in the season for mosquitoes.

ISSUE ARREST ORDER FOR REP. ZIONCHECK ON SPEEDING CHARGE

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Judge Walter Casey of the District of Columbia Traffic court today ordered a bench warrant issued for the arrest of Representative Marion A. Zioncheck [Dem., Wash.] after the representative failed to appear to answer a charge of speeding seventy miles an hour.

The Washington congressman was picked up Saturday on Connecticut avenue. Officers said they had pursued him several blocks and finally caught up after he had been forced to slow down while passing a truck. He was released on $25 collateral.

Judge Casey also ordered forfeited $25 collateral.

"I'm unconcerned," Zioncheck said when informed of the judge's action.

ITALIANS DEFEAT REAR ATTACK BY ETHIOPIAN ARMY

Heavy Losses Reported on Southern Front.

WITH THE SOUTHERN ITALIAN ARMY AT GORAHAI, Ethiopia, April 21.—(AP)—A fierce Ethiopian attack on the rear guard of Italy's southern army failed today with heavy losses to the attackers, couriers reported to the headquarters here of Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, Italian commander.

The attack was made on an Italian column under the command of Gen. Nassi. The courier said the Ethiopians, already cut in two by Gen. Nassi's advance on Bircut, attempted to fall in behind and cut off his contacts with headquarters, but were "completely defeated in a hand-to-hand conflict."

Rains Hamper Advance.

In the last few days the big Italian push northward has been marked by torrential rains and storms, which at times paralyzed radio and road communications.

Nevertheless, great caravans of automobiles, tractors, and trailers were sent ahead along the roads, which themselves are being pushed forward almost inch by inch by an enormous army of workmen, soldiers, and friendly natives of the region.

An auto column has reached caravan trails north of Gagab, thereby cutting off a retreat of Ethiopians defeated in the battle of Giano Gobo.

Amharan prisoners brought to headquarters said the combined Ethiopian forces in that area totaled 20,000 but that sickness, hunger, and desertion had reduced this number to about half before the battle of Giano Gobo.

Ship Near Port—Mussolini.

ROME, April 21.—(AP)—The "hell on wheels" column of Italy's southern army pressed forward 62 miles today as Premier Mussolini, celebrating the 2,698th birthday of Rome, declared "our ship is arriving in port with all sails flying."

Although rain hampered the celebration, Italy's equivalent to America's Labor day, Il Duce sped from place to place inaugurating public works.

His first appearance was on a rooftop with a pick, where he gave the first stroke to a vast program for the demolition of outdated buildings surrounding the Roman senate. Later Il Duce spoke from the balcony of his offices at the Piazzi Venezia after receiving the homage of a vast crowd.

"Today in the City of Rome we celebrate the double festival of labor and victory," he said. "After difficult navigation, our ship is arriving in port with all sails spread, carrying the power, justice, and civilization of Rome."

Appears in Good Humor.

Mussolini, wearing the gray-green unifrom of an honorary corporal of the Fascist militia, smiled broadly at the crowd and seemed to be in better humor than in many weeks.

Two new 8,000 ton cruisers, the Duca Degli Abruzzi and the Garibaldi, were launched respectively at Spezia and Trieste in the presence of enthusiastic crowds.

Posters stuck on the walls of cafés disclosed tonight that Mussolini intends calling the nation into another armed mobilization, or "adunata," shortly.

City Sacked; 200 Slain.

LONDON, April 21.—(AP)—An Exchange telegraph agency dispatch from Debra Birhan, Ethiopia, tonight said a deserter from a tribe in Italian pay arrived there exhausted and told how Ethiopian troops revolted and sacked Dessye after Italian instigation. Troops who are called "shiftas," he said, and who are bandits in peace times, killed 200 of the troops of Crown Prince Afsa Wosan while they slept. He claimed the crown prince then evacuated the city, now held by Italians.

Italians Far From Capital.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, April 21.—(AP)—Italy's army is still far from this almost deserted capital, the government claimed tonight.

Confirmed reports disclosed that the primitive and precipitious highway from Dessye, now in the hands of the Italians, is still practically clear of the Italian invaders.

[The Addis Ababa correspondent of the British Exchange Telegraph agency reported to London that an Ethiopian infantry column had reached an Italian airdrome northwest of Dessye and burned 19 Italian airplanes and the entire gasoline supply].

A government official said Ethiopia plans to make a desparate stand against the Italians on mountain passes rising 12,000 feet about 60 miles from the capital and about one-third of the way to Dessye. Hundreds of volunteer troops have taken up stations in the mountains for an anticipated battle, expecting to carry on guerilla fighting.

HUGE GOLD LOSS OF ITALY BARED IN LEAGUE REPORT

Sees Drainage as Menace to Continuing War.

GENEVA, April 21.—(AP)—Downcast by failure to clear a road to East African peace, the League of Nations tonight looked on Italy's steadily diminishing supply of gold as a possible deterrent to much further extension of its campaign against Ethiopia.

The expense of Premier Mussolini's war, coupled with sanctions, said a communique issued by the league, has reduced the country's gold supply with remarkable rapidity.

Experts of the committee on sanctions, examining reports from many countries, estimated that between last Oct. 20 and the end of March, this year, the Bank of Italy had lost 105,300,000 gold dollars in foreign assets. This is nearly half the 227,200,000 gold dollars it had in October.

Gold Imports Unknown.

"What amount of gold in foreign assets the [Italian] government has been able to collect domestically since October is unknown," the report said.

Italy's exports of goods to 30 countries also dwindled sharply after sanctions went into effect. In November, 1935, said the communique, Italy exported to these countries goods worth 17,030,000 gold dollars; in December, 11,270,000; in January, 6,520,000, and in February, 5,860,000, "including countries which did not apply sanctions."

The league's campaign for conciliation in Africa was dropped in an atmosphere which bespoke the conviction of league officials that Geneva's position was made exceedingly difficult. The council will not meet again, under present plans, until its next regular session on May 11.

Two Nations Swing to Britain.

PARIS, April 21.—(AP)—High French sources said tonight that Jugo-Slavia and Rumania, expressing "increasing anxiety" over France's "vacillation" in negotiations to end the Italo-Ethiopian war, will follow Great Britain's lead from now on.

These sources declared the information was conveyed to Premier Albert Sarraut and Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin by Joseph Paul-Boncour, minister of state, who attended the league of nation sessions at Geneva.

The Rumanian and Jugo-Slavian delegates told Paul-Boncour, it was said, that their governments might be "forced" to seek protection from Germany if the league was proved powerless to aid the smaller nations of Europe.

PRINCE NAPOLEON, 22, ENTERS FRENCH VOTE DRIVE; PRAISES NAZIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 21.—Prince Napoleon, 22 years old, Bonapartist pretender, entered the French electoral campaign today with a manifesto exhorting his adherents to vote for any candidate who places France's interests above party considerations.

The manifesto, issued at Château Prangins, Switzerland, on the shores of Lake Leman whence Napoleon III. started his conquest of France in the middle of the 19th century, stresses the impotence of the chamber of deputies to constitute a majority capable of assuring the continuity of French policy. It continues:

"Germany offers us a very different spectacle: a chief and unanimous national will. The man who has just torn up the treaty of Locarno is acting in the name of a unanimous nation."

The prince is the great-grandson of Jerome, king of Westphalia, the first Napoleon's youngest brother, and thus a great-grandnephew of the great Corsican.

Pointing out that Reichsfuehrer Hitler's plebiscite idea really was derived from Napoleon III., who staged two plebiscites during his reign, the prince affirms that the Bonapartists have no intention of overthrowing the present political institutions of the French republic, but merely wish to inject them with fresh vigor to unite the French people in the face of the German danger.

The Bonapartists are not presenting any candidates of their own at the elections, but the official organ, Brumaire, proclaimed that "the hour of fate is approaching. France awaits the leader. He is young and strong."

POLISH REGIME FIGHTS RIOTING; OUSTS GOVERNOR

WARSAW, April 21.—(AP)—The Polish government today took energetic action to quell isolated disturbances in Poznan and elsewhere. Each outbreak was reported quickly suppressed.

President Moscicki dismissed Casimir Switalski, the governor of Cracow, who, although the former premier of Poland and a close friend of the late Marshal Pilsudski, was held responsible for recent rioting there.

Jewish newspapers expressed alarm at the growth of an anti-Jewish movement in Polish health resorts, notably Zakopane, where school boys beat a local rabbi.

MAURICE L ROTHSCHILD

MINNEAPOLIS State at Jackson CHICAGO ST. PAUL

EX-CONVICT, 24, ENACTS ROLE AS BATHTUB KILLER

he then proceeded to cut away the twine with which he had bound his victim's wrists. He put the twine in his pocket and left the apartment. Eventually he reported for work, and there he repaired the love seat, just as though nothing had happened.

Returns to Crime Scene.

Later that afternoon Fiorenza and his employer, Theodore Kruger, went to the apartment to deliver the repaired love seat. Getting no response to their ring, they found the door of the apartment ajar and entered. The light burning in the bathroom led Kruger to that door, after he had found the rest of the apartment empty. There he discovered Mrs. Titterton's body—the body that Fiorenza knew was there.

After the discovery of the body by his employer, Fiorenza went to the telephone and calmly notified the police.

Fiorenza evidently believed he had committed "the perfect crime"—that he had left no clews. However, he had made one mistake. In the statement issued by the police commissioner and the district attorney there appears this sentence: "He thought he had carried away all the twine."

But he hadn't.

Single Strand Under Body.

Under Mrs. Titterton's body the police found a single strand. It was this strand, this little piece of cord, that led to solution of the crime by the police, culminating in the arrest and confession of Fiorenza. The strand of twine, Commissioner Valentine said, had been dropped, unnoticed, by Fiorenza when he cut the bonds on Mrs. Titterton's hands.

The police concentrated on this clew—the piece of cord. Detectives Shields and Quinn of the Manhattan homicide squad were ordered to devote their entire attention to the investigation of this clew alone. It was a tedious, painstaking investigation. They traced the twine through three states—Kentucky, Pennsylvania and New Jersey—in an effort to learn the manufacturer.

While the detectives were endeavoring to determine the manufacturer, and through him trace it to a retailer, the police department's scientific laboratory was studying the fiber in further efforts to identify it.

Traced to Upholsterers.

Finally their labor was rewarded. They identified the twine as that used by upholsterers. With that clew they eventually identified it as the kind of twine used by the Kruger Upholstering company.

The trail was getting hot. Capt. William Reynolds, in charge of the Fourth detective district, with Acting Captain Edward Mullins of the homicide squad, Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the homicide squad, and other detectives, "devised plans," Commissioner Valentine said, to keep Fiorenza under constant surveillance. He was questioned, the commissioner said, without going into details, at various times by various members of this detective group.

And at the end of each day the reports of these various detectives were taken and studied at conferences attended by Assistant Chief Inspector John Lyons, Acting Deputy Chief Inspector Kear, and Assistant District Attorney William O'Rourke.

That, then, is the story of how Police Commissioner Valentine and District Attorney Dodge were enabled to announce solution of the crime today.

Praises Police Coöperation.

Commissioner Valentine said that the slaying, according to Fiorenza's story, was committed between 10:30 and 10:45 o'clock on the morning of Good Friday.

Commissioner Valentine was warm in his praise of the coöperation between the police and the district attorney's office, asserting that it was only through perfect coöperation between the police and all other investigating agencies which had resulted in a solution of the crime.

"The solution of this case is an illustration of what can be accomplished by close and sincere coöperation by law enforcement agencies," said the commissioner.

The slain woman's husband also voiced high praise of the detective's work on the case.

"Words cannot express my relief or my admiration for the New York City police department and the district attorney's office," Titterton said.

Fiorenza's crime record, which included four arrests and a prison sentence, was announced by Commissioner Valentine as follows:

Aug. 10, 1932, arrested for grand larceny; suspended sentence.

4 HIGH MANCHU OFFICIALS KILLED FOR AIDING REDS

Convicted of Treason by Court Martial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, April 21.—Maj. Gen. Ling Sheng, former governor of Hsingan province in northern Manchukuo, was executed today at Hsinking with three other high officials for aiding and giving military information to soviet Russia in connection with recent border clashes, according to a Domei [Japanese] news agency dispatch from the Manchukuan capital.

Besides Lin Shen the following were executed: Maj. Gen. Shun Teh, director of the police bureau of the Hsingan provincial government; Maj. Gen. Fu Ling, chief of staf of the Hsingan provincial army, and Hwa Ling-tai, secetary to the governor.

The four were convicted by a court martial, the dispatch said, which also sentenced two other Mongol officials of the Japan sponsored Manchu government who were charged with the same offenses, to 15 and 12 years in prison.

The Japanese Kwantung [mainland] army, meanwhile, announced that evidence has been obtained proving that Moscow is supplying arms and ammunition to various communist armies in China.

According to the Japanese communique, communist bandits, who have been staging sporadic attacks against Japanese and Manchukuan troops, recently redoubled their activities.

It was stated that Kwantung army circles are indignant at the undisputable soviet instigation of the bandits' activities, and that the military authorities are contemplating effective steps to cope with the situation.

PARRISH RESIGNS; SCORES LACK OF FREEDOM OF PITT

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Dr. Weyland M. Parrish, head of the University of Pittsburgh's public speaking department for 12 years, resigned today and denounced what be termed "the high handed autocracy" of the university's administration.

"There is absolutely no academic tenure here," Dr. Parrish said. "This is just another institution."

His resignation came nearly a year after a legislative inquiry into charges that academic freedom was curbed at Pitt, and a warning from Gov. George H. Earle that the university might lose its annual appropriation from the state unless the situation is corrected.

Dr. Parrish declined to set forth in detail the reasons for his resignation, but criticized the university for the dismissal of his assistant, Richard Murphy.

Chancellor John G. Bowman denied knowledge of Dr. Parrish's resignation and claimed Murphy's dismissal was for economic reasons.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Bees and Red Clover

April 21, 1936.

BUMBLEBEES and red clover are going to be turned to again as important aids in the balancing of feed for live stock and conserving the productivity of soil on the 1,332 acre Tribune Experimental farm near Plano and Yorkville. For many years red clover has been the corner stone in the farm's system of feed production and permanent soil building. This old standby legume has been given a severe setback during the last two years. The crop was seriously handicapped by the 1934 drouth; much of it was killed by the dry weather, leaving the farm short of red clover. The acreage of red clover is being materially increased on the farm this season.

Alfalfa also plays an important part in the cropping scheme at the Yorkville place and will continue to be used generously, but in the future Clarence Thurow, farm manager, plans to have more red clover than alfalfa. In general he likes to follow a four year rotation—oats one year, red clover one year, and corn two years. The red clover is sown in with the oats and then harvested for hay or pastured the second season.

Too Costly a One-Year Crop.

The manager points out that since alfalfa is a perennial, coming up each year from the roots, it is not good policy to plant this legume and then break up the ground after harvesting only one crop, as he does with red clover. He says that it costs more to seed alfalfa. For example, the cost of seeding red clover on 65 acres last week was about $75 less than it would have cost if alfalfa seed had been used, according to the Yorkville farm manager.

Mr. Thurow finds that he gets a better balance of hay and grain where red clover dominates as the legume used in the crop rotation. The manager prefers red clover hay to alfalfa hay in fattening beef steers for the market. He plans to use some of the alfalfa fields for hog pasture and keep the red clover for hay.

Bumblebees play an extremely important part in pollinizing red clover. Crop experts say that for many years in the red clover growing section of the middle west farmers have left bumblebees homeless in many cases by cleaning out fence rows and destroying the nesting places of this giant of the bee family.

Bumblebees commonly build their nests in old nests left in the ground by field mice. The destruction of hedge rows and brush and the plowing up of fence rows has done away with the nesting places of field mice and in turn forced bumblebees to build in unprotected places.

With the bumblebee population seriously reduced comparatively few are left to pollinize red clover and this has prevented farmers of the central west from producing red clover seed. Unless the red clover blossom is fertilized it will not produce seed.

Insects Essential Agents.

Federal government investigators say that experiments have shown that if the heads of red clover are bagged to exclude insects little or no seed is produced, indicating that without external assistance of some kind the red clover plant is unable to set seed. They point out that in the open field the red clover flowers are cross-pollinated.

These authorities say that bumblebees are commonly supposed to be the most efficient agencies in the pollinization of red clover. When the bee alights on the clover head its weight presses down on the keel, forcing out the stigma [female part of the blossom], which becomes dusted with pollen [from the male part of the blossom] that is already adhering to the under surface of the bee. It is further pointed out that other species of wild bees, as well as honeybees, especially the long-tongued Italian strain, also play a great part in pollinizing red clover. It has shown experimentally that even when honeybees and smaller insects only have access to clover a good seed crop may be set.

ITALIAN WORKERS PIT THEIR SKILL IN WORK 'OLYMPICS'

Mussolini Gives Winners Fascist Titles.

ROME, April 21.—(AP)—Pastry cooks from every province of Italy vied with one another today to determine who could create the most elaborate confections and win first place in the Fascist party's newly instituted "Olympics of Work."

Automobile mechanics tinkered feverishly to assemble knocked-down motors in similar contests. Typographers pitted their skill against fellow workers in designing sample frontispieces for publications. Masons slapped mortar upon stones in an attempt to build a perfect arch in less time than competitors.

Foreign Names Excluded.

Chefs planned elaborate menus, prescribing proper wines for each course. They were careful to exclude all foreign names from their lists of dishes, in accordance with Premier Mussolini's determination to purge the nation of alien influences. Research experts demonstrated processes and inventions for improving Italy's self-sufficiency. Farmers presented examples of their skill in caring for live stock and cultivating grain and vineyards.

The prize which all were seeking, each in his own trade category, was the title "Lictor of labor for the year XIV. Fascist era." Such is the honor which eventually will be conferred on those who are judged best to exemplify that "unity between culture and toil" which the work games are designed to encourage.

In addition the competitors, like schoolboy athletes, hoped to win their letter—the "M" of Mussolini—and diplomas attesting their skill.

Contestants Get Fascist Test.

Besides demonstrating their technical accomplishments, the contestants, chosen in eliminations in each of Italy's 94 provinces, were subjected to a rigorous oral examination to test their familiarity with the Fascist labor organization and the political objectives of the various Fascist youth groups.

The contests this year are being conducted in five limited groups: Agriculture, industry, commerce, artisany and research. The party plans to make them an annual event which ultimately will embrace many other fields of endeavor.

All entrants are between the ages of 18 and 28. All are members of the Fascist party. The final elimination contests in the national finals will continue until May 24, when the winners will be announced and the awards distributed.

Woman Named Temporary Bensenville Postmaster

Mrs. Olive Hugdahl of Bensenville was named acting postmistress of that Du Page county town yesterday to succeed Edward Bartholmey, removed last week after his arrest in the William Hamm Jr. kidnaping case. The appointment was announced in Washington, and was based on the recommendation of a Chicago postoffice inspector who was instructed to find a suitable person for the office.

In For Life

Durland Nash and Robert Goethe, both 19 years old, entered Joliet penitentiary yesterday to serve 199 years sentences for the murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock. They will not be eligible for parole until August, 2003, when they will be 86 years old. Nevertheless, they showed little concern when the prison gates clanged and Capt. C. A. Troxell questioned them. After two weeks in the diagnostic hospital they probably will be assigned to Stateville.

Sentenced on Monday by Judge Joseph Burke, they were hurried off to Joliet when they said they would not testify against Michael Livingston, 17 years old, and Emil Reck, 19 years old, also indicted for the Peacock murder, who have entered not guilty pleas. The quartet confessed they lured Dr. Peacock to a lonely section of the north side on Jan. 2 with a spurious telephone call for medical aid for a baby and shot him when he resisted robbery.

Denied Money for Liquor, Chases Mother; Arrested

Henry Kieals, 23 years old, was so enraged yesterday when his mother, Mrs. Antoinette Kieals, 59 years old, refused to give him money with which to buy liquor that he chased her out of their home at 1718 North Ashland avenue. A police squad headed by Sergt. Joseph Ponicki was passing at the time and went to the aid of the mother. Kieals was arrested after a battle with the policemen. Records show that he was placed on probation March 10 after he had been found guilty of disorderly conduct in the court of Judge Jay A. Schiller.

ASSERTS PRESS IS FIGHTING FOR ALL INDUSTRIES

Publisher Cites Dangers in Present Trend.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—American newspapers are being forced, against their will and established policy of independence, to fight the battle of all industries and business against too much government interference, John L. Stewart, president and publisher of the Washington, Pa., Observer, said today.

Mr. Stewart, who also publishes other newspapers in western Pennsylvania, spoke at the meeting of small-town newspaper publishers at the Waldorf-Astoria.

330 Publishers Present.

There were 330 publishers of newspapers on hand for the opening session of the small newspaper group today, and many more are expected for the other sessions of the American Newspaper Publishers association, which starts tomorrow.

Mr. Stewart said that in recent years the newspaper publishers have found their problems more closely bound up with the troubles of other industries.

"I do not refer specifically," he said, "to the preservation of our constitutional freedom under the bill of rights—that is a continuing fight—but to one which affects us from the standpoint of taxation and governmental regulation and legislative uncertainty."

Cites Changed Viewpoint.

This need for making the fight for other industries as well as for themselves, he said, may jeopardize, perhaps indirectly, the constitutional rights of the press, for "we cannot maintain our political independence if we do not maintain our economic independence."

Mr. Stewart said that the smaller newspapers for many years sought to develop local reader interest. Since the depression and the subsequent government activities, the man in the street is watching Washington, he said, and the small papers are now taking a national outlook.

CHICAGO FIGHTS FOR RIGHT TO SET CLOCKS AHEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—The city of Chicago today told the interstate commerce commission that its members might as well believe the world is flat as to refuse the city the right to set its clocks ahead an hour to establish eastern time for the community.

In the latest of a series of briefs, the city asserted there was no good reason why Chicago should not have eastern standard time instead of central standard time.

The brief said citizens generally want the light savings time, that it would have no ill effect on school children or on the health of the community, as argued by the opponents of the new time. It declared nearby farmers could easily adjust their operations to the new time schedule.

TEXANS DEPOSIT ROSES ON STONE FROM THE ALAMO

Officers of the Texas Society of Chicago, in recognition of the 100th anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto, placed a wreath of roses yesterday on a stone from the Alamo embedded in the Michigan avenue wall of Tribune Tower.

The battle of San Jacinto made good the secession of Texas from Mexico and avenged the battle of the Alamo in which 183 Texans made their last stand in an old mission against a force ten times as great and were killed.

"Because of this sacrifice, the Alamo is the most sacred shrine in Texas," Dr. James P. Simonds, president of the society, said at the wreath ceremony. "It is especially fitting that we place this wreath in memory of those brave men of the Alamo on the anniversary of the battle that saved Texas independence."

The memory of nine Illinois men who fought in the Texas war for independence from Mexico was honored at a banquet of the Texas society in the Congress hotel last night. The six flags of Texas overhung a table at which were nine vacant chairs. After the dinner John H. Babb was elected president to succeed Dr. Simonds.

Shoots at Flies with a Pistol in Home; Wife Gets Divorce

Mrs. Georgianna Tompach, 22 years old, 2310 South 58th court, Cicero, was granted a divorce by Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Superior court yesterday from Rudolph Tompach, 5913 Cermak road, Cicero, a painting contractor. Under questioning by her attorney, Victor Froehlich, Mrs. Tompach testified, in support of her cruelty charged that her husband shot at flies in their home with a .22 caliber pistol equipped with a Maxim silencer and slapped her when she protested. Once, she said, he threw an apple pie in her face.

APPEAL 75 YEAR SENTENCE GIVEN SCOTTSBORO BOY

Decatur, Ala., April 21.—(AP)—Counsel for Heywood Patterson, colored defendant in the "Scottsboro case," filed a bill of exceptions in Circuit court here today to his conviction and sentence of 75 years in the penitentiary.

The bill, 162 pages long, was signed by Samuel S. Leibowitz and Osmond K. Fraenkel of New York, George W. Chamlee of Chattanooga and the law firm of Watts & White of Huntsville, Ala.

Filing of the bill was the first legal step in the appeal from the verdict last January, when Patterson was convicted of raping a white girl aboard a freight train March 31, 1931.

Dates for trials of the other eight colored defendants in the Scottsboro case have not been set, but Lieut. Gov. Thomas E. Knight Jr., special prosecutor, said he expected them to begin in July.

DELAY PLEYER'S EXECUTION FOR MURDER IN OHIO

Columbus, O., April 21.—(AP)—The Ohio Supreme court today postponed indefinitly the execution of John Pleyer, 30, of Chicago, under sentence to die Friday night for a holdup slaying in Cleveland.

Pleyer was arrested in Chicago last August along with Helen Harmon, 19 year old "Tiger Girl," and Donald Eberle. The three, all Chicagoans, were blamed for 600 robberies in Chicago and Cleveland.

Cleveland detectives had trailed the three for many weeks, and after their capture took them back for trial in the murder of Albert Wesosky, 20, a Cleveland butcher shot during a $24 robbery. Eberle, tried first, was sentenced to death. Pleyer, next to be tried, received the same sentence. The girl, claiming she took part under Eberle's domination, received a one to twenty year sentence for manslaughter.

BRITAIN BOOSTS TAXATION TO PAY FOR ARMAMENTS

Levies on Incomes, Beer and Tea Increased.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 21.—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, today gave the British public the grim news that, to finance the huge new defense program, income tax rates would be boosted and an increased tax levied on tea and beer imported from nonempire countries.

Announcement of the added tea tax of two pence on the pound, from which it is hoped to get £3,500,000 [$17,290,000] during the next year, brought cries of "shame" from various parts of the house of commons. The tax on beer will be a pound a barrel.

[The pound was quoted today at $4.94, which would make the shilling worth 24.7 cents and the penny worth 2.06 cents.]

Boosts Tax to Nearly 25%.

The new "sacrifices" demanded from income tax payers consist of raising the rates by three pence on the pound. During the coming year the British taxpayer will remit to the government 4 shillings 9 pence out of every pound he earns [about $1.17 on each $4.94] after the initial allowance which in the case of a married man is £180 [$889.20].

For the past two years Britons have paid 4 shillings 6 pence in taxes on every pound earned and previous to that the rate was 5 shillings per pound.

The new rate, therefore, becomes again nearly 25 per cent on the taxable portion of an ordinary income.

Chamberlain told the house that but for the improvement in business he would have been obliged to levy even more severe taxes. He estimated the budget expenditure for the next year would be £797,897,000 [about $3,941,611,180], the budget having to absorb an increase of about £50,000,000 for rearmament over the previous year.

Plans to Catch Tax Dodgers.

Existing taxation, the chancellor said, would produce but £776,660,000, making a deficit of more than £21,000,000. But with the new taxation measures, together with other measures to catch tax dodgers, he hoped to obtain £798,381,000, thus leaving an estimated surplus for next year of £484,000.

As compaared with the above figures, the total budget expenditure for the year just ended was £749,000,000, with a surplus of £3,000,000.

Chamberlain also disclosed that in addition to the increased expenditure on defense measures he was setting aside £20,000,000 more as a margin for unforeseen and supplementary defense needs that might have to be met during the year.

The government's scheme for financing armaments by increased tax levies disclosed the fact that the British financial policy is to make the present generation bear the expense of augmenting the army, navy and air forces, although Chamberlain said that in future years part of the rearmament expenditure might properly be met by a loan.

Sky Is Limit for Arms.

The exact cost of the rearmament program never has been fixed. Chamberlain said there was no limit to which it might go.

Chamberlain's budget again contained no provision for paying the war debt to the United States.

Maj. C. R. Attlee and Maj. Sir Archibald Sinclair, opposition leaders, attacked the budget program. Attlee said the budget marked the government's failure to deal with foreign affairs and that the dangers suggested by the defense program were largely of government creation. He declared it was a budget that would lead ultimately to war.

Sinclair agreed the financial outlook was graver than it had been at any time since the war and especially objected that the new tea duty would throw renewed hardships on the people.

Admits Blow to Prosperity.

Chamberlain, in concluding his budget speech, said:

"This has been a bitter disappointment. I had hoped to be able to announce some relief to the already burdened taxpayers. However, defense is paramount and no man hesitates to set his fire fighting appliances in operation when he can feel the heat of flames on his face.

"At the outset of this new financial year, apart from the complications of the European situation, there were prospects of a full continuance of the returning tide of prosperity. But that hope has been deferred. Instead I have had to ask for new sacrifices. Our safety is more to us than our pocketbooks."

Roosevelt's New Tax Measure Assailed on 13 Specific Points

with the federal revenues at this time."

The slogan of the opposition report to the tax bill was "a dollar of expenditure saved means a dollar of new taxes avoided." The minority on the committee recommended that the 800 millions proposed to be raised by the bill be realized "by eliminating unnecessary, wasteful and extravagant expenditures."

"Not a Tax, But a Penalty."

The report noted that, for the first time in the memory of committee members, a secretary of the treasury had failed to state his opinion on a pending tax bill.

"While the committee has not been particularly enlightened in the past by any testimony he [Morgenthau] has presented, it appeared rather strange" the report noted, "that the secretary of the treasury failed either to make a personal appearance or submit a statement in writing."

"It is apparent," the report continued, "that the tax is in no sense a tax on corporate earnings, but a penalty on the accumulation of protective reserves, on business rehabilitation and expansion, and on the payment of debts. The amount of the penalty may be as much as 42½ per cent of the net income, depending upon the proportion which the amount retained for these purposes bears to the total net income.

Strikes at "Sound Judgment."

"In penalizing reserves and exempting amounts distributed, the proposed scheme in effect punishes prudent business management and holds out a seductive invitation to improvident management. It thus constitutes an unwise and dangerous meddling in the determination of an organization's fiscal policy, making government policy instead of sound business judgment the controling factor."

The bill will drive capital into tax-exempt securities, the report concluded.

"The greatest opportunity for tax avoidance lies in the field of tax-exempt securities," the minority statement said. "The scheme of taxation proposed by the pending bill, by imposing oppressive taxes and by impairing the financial security of business, will tend to drive capital from investment in productive enterprise, with its already great hazards, into the sheltered haven of safe and sound tax-exempts.

"Even aside from the relative risks involved a wealthy investor would find it much more advantageous to receive 3½ per cent from tax-exempt bonds than 6 per cent from a taxable business investment."

GHOST OF THURSTON! IMAGE HE PROMISED TO SMASH IS JARRED

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—An idol in a glass case which Howard Thurston, the magician, promised to break to prove there is life after death, was knocked to the floor today—apparently by a falling picture.

Thurston said that when he died he was going to smash the case and throw the idol at Dunninger.

Today the case was knocked off a table when a picture hanging above it fell from its fastenings.

BLACK FLOUTS LAW; TRIES ANEW TO PAY COUNSEL

Asks Senate for Grant from Special Fund.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Having been rebuffed by the house of representatives, which refused to vote him $10,000 for the employment of his law partner, Senator Hugo Black, the chief New Deal inquisitor, today sought to circumvent a law of congress and get the money from the senate's contingent fund.

Black introduced a resolution under which the committee on audit and control would fix compensation for Crampton Harris of Birmingham, Ala., his law partner whom he brought here to defend his committee in an injunction suit brought by William Randolph Hearst, publisher.

The resolution provides for the payment of Harris from the appropriation for "miscellaneous items," out of which the senate draws money for special purposes.

Reversal of His Own Stand.

Several senators said they regarded Black's resolution as a subterfuge to circumvent the law and as being subject to a point of order. A general law, in the form of an amendment to an appropriation bill, provides that no committee of congress can pay more than $300 a month to any employé. Because of this law Black introduced a joint resolution seeking an appropriation of $10,000 for the employment of counsel.

He declared at the time that he was forced to introduce a joint resolution because the law would not permit him to secure this amount from the senate's contingent fund, but today he sought to flout that law.

Black's first resolution, after being passed by the senate, was rejected by the house by a vote of 153 to 137, with scores of members who opposed it not voting at the behest of administration leaders. The vote followed indignant attacks upon the activities of the Black snoopers in seizing private telegrams of individuals and organizations opposed to the New Deal.

Refuses to See Reporters.

Black tossed his extraordinary resolution into the legislative hopper of the senate just before the recess and rushed off the floor toward his office, refusing to see newspaper men. It specifically confirms the action of the Black committee in employing Crampton Harris to oppose the suit brought by Hearst. The Hearst suit, which charges both the committee and the federal communications with a conspiracy to violate the constitution, seeks to restrain the seizure or use of any Hearst telegrams. It was dismissed in the District of Columbia Supreme court but is being appealed to the United States Supreme court.

The resolution introduced today not only would authorize the audit and control committee to fix compensation for Harris but also pay any other expenses "necessarily incurred" by the Black committee in connection with the Hearst suit.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was incorrectly stated in THE TRIBUNE Monday that a grass fire in Park Ridge destroyed two wooden poles carrying wires of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, thus depriving 4,000 residents of the suburb of electric power. The poles were slightly damaged and service was not disrupted, according to the City News bureau, which sent out the first story.

STEIWER NAMED G. O. P. KEYNOTER; TRIBUTE TO WEST

Selection Is Acceptable to Borah, Landon.

Cleveland, O., April 21.—[Special.]—Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon was chosen today as keynoter of the Republican national convention, which opens in Cleveland on June 9. His selection, which gives to the west and northwest the opening voice in the party conclave, was made by unanimous vote of the convention arrangements committee of the G. O. P. national committee.

Chairman Henry P. Fletcher said Steiwer's name was the only one formally placed before the committee, although several other Republicans of prominence had been under consideration. Ralph Williams, national committeeman from Oregon, presented Steiwer's name.

Senator Steiwer is a colleague of Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon—a sponsor of the old McNary-Haugen bill—who has been listed among possible "dark" candidates for the presidential nomination.

Aimed to Please Agriculture.

The dominant motive in picking Steiwer is credited to a desire to give the convention, at the outset, a western atmosphere, with an especial eye to agriculture. The Portland man has been actively identified with wheat growing. The northwest, like the corn-hog prairie belt midwest states, is rated as great fighting ground in the November elections.

Committee members said they understood Steiwer would be satisfactory to the supporters of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, a neighboring state to Oregon.

Borah, an active candidate for President, in his Chicago speech last month, referring to the "old guard," said he reserved the right to look over the platform and the candidate, which was construed as an intimation that he might "take a walk" if he deemed them unsatisfactory.

Keynoter Young, But Veteran.

It was pointed out that the selection of Steiwer gives the keynote speech, which enunciates national issues and problems at the start of the convention, to one of the younger men—he is 53 and has been in the senate nine years—who reflects the spirit of westernism. It is spoken of as recognition of the mountain states as well as of the northwest and west.

The Democrats, it is pointed out, are going southward to pick their keynoter, Senator Alben W. Barkley of Paducah, Ky., being tentatively slated for the post.

From Topeka came word that Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas said: "I'm glad to get the news" when informed Steiwer had been picked, but he declined further comment.

In the senate, Steiwer, who traces his American ancestry back to 1631, in Massachusetts, has upheld the constitution and the American form of government. He has opposed most of the New Deal measures, but has not been uncompromising, as he voted for such acts as the TVA extension, the labor disputes act, and the AAA amendments. He has been active in soldier legislation, including the bonus. He opposed the work relief bill, the utilities bill, the tax bill and the Guffey coal bill.

Brooks, Lowden Under Consideration.

Chairman Fletcher said others who had been considered for keynote speaker included Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, who has just departed on a trip to Europe; Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, former secretary of agriculture; James W. Wadsworth of New York, congressman and former senator; Wayland Brooks of Chicago, who last week was nominated by the Republicans with a large margin for governor of Illinois; Theodore Christianson, former governor of Minnesota, and John W. Bricker, attorney general of Ohio and Republican nominee for governor.

John Hamilton, Kansas national committeeman and a manager of the Landon for President campaign, said:

"The only interest of the Landon supporters was in the selection of a man who will forcefully state the position of the Republican party to the convention and the nation. Senator Steiwer will meet that test. The selection is admirable."

DEMOCRATS TO NAME BARKLEY KEYNOTER; ROBINSON CHAIRMAN

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Selection of Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky as keynoter and Senator Robinson of Arkansas as permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention is expected definitly when the committee on arrangements meets at Philadelphia next Saturday.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, the Democratic national chairman, will preside at the meeting.

The names of Senators Barkley and Robinson for the two choice posts long have been mentioned in committee circles, and are now known to be favorable to the administration.

BORAH REJECTS LANDON PLEA TO ABANDON RACE

Liberal Platform Held Out as Olive Branch.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho today rejected a plea from the political camp of Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas that he submerge his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, go to Cleveland as a delegate, and assist in the writing of a liberal platform.

William Allen White, Kansas editor and Gov. Landon's choice as the representative from that state on the resolutions committee, made the overture to Senator Borah over the weekend, proposing specifically that the senator become a delegate and represent Idaho on the platform committee.

More Interested in Candidate.

In rejecting the plea today, Senator Borah declared:

"Naturally I am interested in the platform, but, after all, a platform doesn't mean much unless you know who is going to stand on it. I am more interested in the latter proposition just now."

Senator Borah's declination was not surprising in view of the suspicions with which he has watched the Landon presidential boom. Although he has not cast any direct aspersion upon the Kansas governor, he has detected a predominance of "big business" in the Landon movement and his attacks on the political activities of the Standard Oil company have been construed by some of Gov. Landon's friends as indirect thrusts at him.

Seek Peace on Borah's Terms.

The White overture, however, was significant in that it carried implications of a desire on the part of the Landon forces for a liberal entente. If the Landon group has a controlling hand at the Cleveland convention, as they hope to do, Mr. White may become chairman of the resolutions committee. Thus his proposal indicated that the Landon forces were willing to accept a platform as liberal as Senator Borah might desire in order to put an end to the dissension within the ranks of the Republican party.

Senator Borah obviously was pleased with the selection today of Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon to be temporary chairman and keynoter at the June convention. His only comment, however, was "I am glad they chose a western man."

Senator Steiwer said he was "honored to accept."

SENATE VOTES $272,000,000 FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Vandenberg Warns of Pork Barrel Danger.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—After a warning that "tax floods can be as destructive as cruel forces of nature," the senate today adopted without a record vote a 272 million dollar flood control measure for the lower Mississippi river and its tributaries. The bill has no relation to the omnibus flood control measure now pending, which may reach a billion dollars before the commerce committee gets through with it.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, [Rep., Mich.] warned the senate of the dangers of acting hastily and haphazardly in flood control legislation lest the authorizations become precedents for sheer pork barreling. He did not oppose the bill passed today, which was introduced by Senator John H. Overton [Dem., La.], because, he said, it was justified by emergency conditions. His attention was directed particularly to the pending omnibus bill.

The 272 million dollar expenditure carried in today's bill is authorized merely to be appropriated and will have to be put in a deficiency appropriation bill. The bill provides for the improvement of levies on the lower Mississippi and the construction of flood control works on the St. Francis, Yazoo and other tributaries that may be threatened.

In addition to the 272 million dollars there is authorized an appropriation of 15 millions to be allocated by the secretary of war and used in rescue work or repair and maintenance of flood control works.

TOURISTS HEAD TOWARD TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA

Air Conditioned Trains Lure Travelers.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

The tide of domestic travel has turned westward. With the fastest trains operating between Chicago and the Pacific coast in less than forty hours, and with the rates the lowest in history, the western carriers are getting set to handle vacation trafic of record proportions.

Regardless of the outcome of the dispute over passenger rates in the east, fares in the west will remain at 2 cents a mile. These rates were adopted last summer and brought so much additional revenue that they will be continued. Furthermore, the Pullman surtax is definitly a thing of the past.

Within the last few years California has become as popular a summer vacation ground as a winter resort. The trend of travel there is ascribed partly to the fact that all the principal trains westward out of Chicago are now air conditioned. The hot, dusty trips of former years have been eliminated.

Expositions Attract Tourists.

This season the main attractions in the southwest are to be San Diego's California Pacific International exposition, scheduled to remain open until Sept. 9, and Dallas' Texas Centennial exposition, due to open June 6.

These two fairs, however, are only a small part of the program. A list made public yesterday by the All-Year Club of Southern California showed that from May until November there will be hundreds of sports events, exhibits, pageants, and festivals.

Meanwhile, travel to Europe has begun in earnest again, with more Chicagoans due to sail this week than at any other time since last summer.

On the Berengaria when it leaves today will be Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Crews, who will take an extensive trip, with London, Paris, and Rome among the stopover, and Mr. and Mrs. Jules Stein and their 2 year old daughter, Jean. Last summer the Steins were aboard the Normandie on her maiden eastbound voyage; this year they will be on the Queen Mary on her maiden westbound voyage, leaving Southampton May 27.

Books Queen Mary Passage.

Another passenger on the Berengaria today, as well as on the first trip of the Queen Mary, will be Miss Grace M. Merchant. Miss Merchant plans to return to Europe by air on July 5. She is the only woman who has already booked passage on the new German airship, the Hindenburg.

Also sailing on the Berengaria are Miss Merchant's nephew, William M. Hales, and Mrs. Hales; Mrs. Charles Bromwell and Miss Frances Baury of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Friedman of Milwaukee.

Chicagoans Aboard Manhattan.

With their children, Marjorie and Edmond, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Petty are among the twenty Chicagoans leaving today on the Manhattan. They will visit Ireland, England, and France. Mr. and Mrs. Jerome P. Bowes Jr. are bound for London and Berlin, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dempsey plan to tour Ireland and England. Fellow passengers will be G. L. Changtrom and the Misses Anna S. Krauch, Rebecca Goldberg, and Elma Hansen.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Horton will take their car along when they sail tomorrow on the Ile de France. Likewise leaving on the Ile de France are Mr. and Mrs. A. Spitzglass, who will visit London and Paris, and Hugh M. Newman, who will join Mrs. Newman at Rouen, France, where she is visiting her family.

Tourist Official to Sail.

Commander Guglielmo Maggini, delegate of the Italian Royal Government tourist office in Chicago, will sail for Rome next Saturday on the Conte di Savoia. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Straus are to take the same liner as far as Gibraltar, whence they will tour through Spain, France, and England.

Mrs. A. W. Sands and Mrs. Ida Copelind of La Grange will set out for Europe tomorrow on the City of Havre. Mrs. George F. Porter of Chicago and New York was on the Lafayette when it left last Saturday. Returning from Europe on the Ile de France yesterday were Graham F. Woytt and J. Muntz.

South Chicago to Open Its Centennial June 7

South Chicago will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the arrival of the first white settler there on June 13, and plans for a celebration were revealed at the park board meeting yesterday. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] asked the board for permission to use Bessemer park for a centennial exhibit from June 7 to 14, the week designated for the celebration. Action on the request was deferred.

POPE PIUS URGES MORE CONTROL OF FILM PRODUCTION

VATICAN CITY, April 21.—(AP)—Control of motion picture production was urged today by Pope Pius in an emphatic address to several hundred delegates attending the International Convention of Movie and Press Writers. His holiness said:

"Control is one of the great needs, one of the great necessities for keeping moving picture production in lines where it ought to remain—under pain of enormous guilt."

Making one of the longest speeches he has delivered in recent years, Pope Pius called bad movies "a real insult to all that's beautiful, delicate, and honorable in souls, particularly young souls," and urged independent movie criticism divorced from producing companies. The cinema would not be what it is today if moving picture press criticism had from the beginning fulfilled its duties according to virtue, truth, and justice."

PLANE SCOUTS COLORADO LINE FOR 'INVADERS'

Trinidad, Colo., April 21.—(AP)—A National Guard scout plane droned over the Oklahoma panhandle at dusk today as Gov. Ed C. Johnson's military border patrol spread to the eastern Colorado boundary in a campaign to keep "cheap labor" out of the state.

Col. Neil W Kimball, adjutant general, flew over western Oklahoma on a scouting expedition following reports workers were gathering for a concentrated "border run" during the night.

Guard officers said workers were camped across the state line in Oklahoma. Reports that indigents were evading the patrol along the New Mexico line by turning eastward sent patrol units hurrying to the Kansas boundary.

8 Out of 10 and The Reasons

EIGHT out of ten people in Chicago using local transportation ride on the Chicago Surface Lines.

1. On the Chicago Surface Lines passengers can reach any part of the city for one fare.
2. The fare is the lowest in the city.
3. Ninety-eight per cent of the entire population reside within three blocks of one or more routes.
4. The service is frequent—on all important lines a car is always in sight.
5. Every business center, every industrial community, every school, church and theater is convenient to Surface Lines service.
6. In recognition of its obligation to the public, the Chicago Surface Lines provides service day and night—not merely when it is profitable.

The Chicago Surface Lines has grown with Chicago. Its rail and bus routes have developed new territory. Large business centers have grown up about street car intersections and they depend upon street cars to bring customers to their doors.

Because this system is providing the type of service best suited to the needs of Chicago, the percentage of those using the Surface Lines, compared with the total of all using local transportation, has grown from 75 per cent in 1926 to 80 per cent today.

CONVENTION RULE CLAIMED BY BOTH KELLY, HORNER

State Session May 1 to Test Factional Power.

[BY A STAF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Claims of control of the Democratic state convention on May 1, which will provide the first test of strength between the Horner and the Kelly groups, were made today by spokesmen for each faction.

Senator Harold G. Ward of Chicago, who speaks for Mayor Kelly when he is in Springfield, declared that the mayor's forces will control the convention and will be able to elect its slate of eight delegates at large to the national convention in Philadelphia.

Power Hinges on Convention.

Daniel J. F. Sullivan, Horner's chief political advisor, while admitting that the 1936 and not the 1934 primary vote will decide the relative Cook county-downstate delegate strength in the state convention, insisted the Horner forces would control, although he would not divulge the strategy which will be followed.

Accomplishment of the desires of Horner followers to dictate the selection of the state chairman, the national committeeman and committeewoman, depends in a large measure upon their success in the state convention. The comparative downstate-Cook county Democratic vote is not available, but it is said, roughly, to be about 9 to 7, in favor of Cook county.

Sullivan, secretary of the state committee, issued the call several weeks ago, and until today insisted that the delegate strength would be based upon the 1934 primary, when downstate had a slight majority over Cook county. Upon reading the law today, he reversed himself.

Talk of Ousting Nash.

If Horner could control the state convention he could name the eight delegates-at-large and with a majority of the delegation to the national convention under him, could dictate selection of the national committee members.

A number of his followers are said to want him to replace the present committeeman, P. A. Nash, with Michael L. Igoe, United States attorney at Chicago.

Mayor Kelly will control 19 of the 20 delegates to the national convention elected last Tuesday in Chicago. If he could control the eight-at-large delegates named by the convention, he would have 27. The state delegation numbers 58 and with 27 the mayor would thus be two short of enough to tie and three short of control.

But Senator Ward declared that there are at least four downstate delegates who would vote with Chicago's mayor instead of with the governor.

All this talk, and the private expressions of members of the legislature who returned for the re-convening of the special session today, made it appear that little has been done thus far to assuage the hot feelings engendered by the Horner-Bundesen primary battle. Peace moves may be in the making, but they are not apparent here.

FEDERAL AGENT AND BANDIT SHOT IN GUN BATTLE; 3 CAPTURED

Kansas City, Mo., April 21.—[Special.]—A federal officer and a bank robbery suspect were wounded today in a fierce gun fight that climaxed the capture of two men the department of justice had been seeking. Federal authorities refused to name the agent, who was shot in the leg.

The other wounded man was Clarence Sparger, reputed member of the Walter [Irish] O'Malley gang of midwest desperadoes. He had been sought following his indictment for the $16,685 robbery of the First National bank of Neosho, Mo., a year ago.

The second man arrested was John Langdon, supposedly Sparger's companion. Langdon was wanted in connection with the shooting of a deputy sherif of Wyandotte county, Kas., last September and for the interstate transportation of an automobile Sparger is alleged to have stolen near Sioux City, Ia.

Huddled in a corner of the cabin was a woman who said she was Lilian Juanita Sparger, 28 years old, the robbery suspect's wife. She offered no resistance.

Sparger and the wounded federal agent were brought to a hospital here. Langdon and the woman were taken to the Kansas City offices of the bureau of investigation.

'UNITE; STOP NEW DEAL,' IS PLEA OF COL. ROOSEVELT

Call In Conservative Democrats, He Urges.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—The Republican party was urged tonight by Col. Theodore Roosevelt to seek the aid of Democrats in electing a President preserving democratic government and stopping the New Deal. Col. Roosevelt spoke at the National Republican club in accepting election as its president for a third consecutive term.

"The ideals of America have been justice for all men, equality of opportunity and consequently a wider and more equitable distribution of wealth," Col. Roosevelt said. "These ideals never can be realized under any form of autocratic government. They are possible only under a democratic government. At this time all these ideals are in jeopardy. As the peril of the nation has grown, great party labels have ceased to carry the significance that once they did.

Offers Fruits of Victory.

"Today there are hundreds of thousands of Democrats who think as we do. Let us make common cause with them; let us invite them to fight side by side with us for the democracy we love; let us assure them not merely that we will welcome their aid, but that when we triumph we will invite them to a seat at the council board. All Americans win if democracy stands fast; all lose if it fails."

Col. Roosevelt made this plea at the conclusion of a speech in which he declared that democratic government was in jeopardy through the policies of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, which would dictate and control the actions of the citizens and their private lives.

"Through his policies he has built a gigantic army of partisan burocrats who rule the people," Col. Roosevelt said of his presidential kinsman. "Through his policies he clothes the President with dictatorial powers and therefore destroys democracy, freedom and progress."

Holds Democracy Is Sacred.

Col. Roosevelt declared it was foolish to contend that the constitution was sacred and should not be changed.

"What is sacred is the principle of democratic government, as embodied in it," he continued, "and he who strikes at this principle strikes at the soul of America. This is just what has been done by Franklin D. Roosevelt and his henchmen!"

Col. Roosevelt proposed a three-point program for the federal government, summarized as follows:

First—Cut the cost of government, dismiss political employés, discontinue foolish experiments and economize.

Second—Revise and extend the anti-trust laws and finally prohibit any such move as the NRA, which to all intents and purposes gives government backing and sanction to private monopolies.

Third—Recognize the principle of coöperation and profit sharing used successfully in Sweden, England, and Scotland.

UNCLE DAVID HAS TO MISS NIECE'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

LONDON, April 21.—(AP)—Uncle David was too busy to attend, and Mary had the measles, but a young miss of 10 years whose stationery bears a royal crest had a good time at her birthday party today just the same.

Uncle David, known to the world as Edward VIII. of England, head of an empire on which the sun never sets, sent an apology to little Princess Elizabeth. Princess Mary, the Viscountess Lascelles, was abed with a complaint which, said a doctor's bulletin from Leeds, was "taking its normal course."

But a party had been prepared for the second in line of succession to the British throne at the moment, and a party it was, embellished with a birthday cake baked by the king's own chef. On hand for a slice was Queen Mary and the princess' parents, the duke and duchess of York, as well as her uncles and aunts, the dukes and duchesses of Gloucester and Kent.

DEMOCRATS LOOK TO DR. FARLEY TO HEAL SORES

Horner Group to Ask Plea to Primary Losers.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Postmaster General James A. Farley is being cast in the rôle of "Big Jim the Healer" for the wounds suffered by the Illinois Democrats in last week's primaries.

In the aftermath of the French Lick gathering of Gov. Henry Horner and some of his advisers, word popped up yesterday that Mr. Farley, as national chairman and patronage dispenser, is to be besought to salve the warring clans.

At the Cook county convention next Monday a resolution, it was determined at French Lick, is to be presented indorsing the entire Democratic ticket nominated at the primaries, state and local. Plans are that it shall be put in by Martin J. O'Brien, 29th ward committeeman and former county chairman, who broke with the Nash organization and supported Horner.

O'Brien to Call on Nash.

Mr. O'Brien is to call on Pat A. Nash, county chairman and national committeeman, to notify him of the resolution he expects to present.

Mr. Nash was out of town yesterday while Mr. O'Brien was kept at home by severe illness in his family. A meeting, it was reported, is being arranged for later in the week. Whether the Hornerites might get an indorsement through seemed a source of perplexity.

So on a second peace mission Michael L. Igoe, United States district attorney, is to depart today for Washington to have counsel with Mr. Farley. Mr. Igoe says he is going on "routine business," but adds that politics may be spoken of.

Hope for Harmony Appeal.

The word is that Mr. Farley may send a message to the Cook county convention congratulating it upon the large vote piled up for Roosevelt and the New Deal and reminding it that, now the primaries are over, the time is ripe to forget old sores and get together for the ticket.

Some of the Hornerites declared yesterday no effort was planned at French Lick to dispossess Mr. Nash as county chairman. The Nash organization apparently has the votes, anyhow.

ANNA SAGE LOSES APPEAL; LEAVES CITY SATURDAY

Mrs. Anna Sage, the "woman in red" of the Dillinger case, will leave Saturday with a trainload of other aliens for New York, where she will be deported to Rumania. Word that Mrs. Sage had lost her final appeal and instructions for her deportation were received here yesterday at the immigration office.

Her attorney, Thomas Johnson Jr., appealed to Secretary of Labor Perkins to void an order of the federal District court here which ordered Mrs. Sage's deportation for conviction as a disorderly resort keeper. Secretary Perkins declined to intervene.

NEW DEAL PREVIEWS.

A little more than a year before the Supreme court provided an imposing funeral for the Schechter sick chicken, Rexford Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture and man behind the scene in general, sat in his study writing notes. The chicken was sick at the time, but Mr. Tugwell didn't know that. He was unaware and the broiler was thought to be flourishing under the live poultry code of the NRA and briskly engaged in interstate commerce. Nobody knew that the chicken was sick, that it was about to have posthumous fame and send the President of the United States on a horse and buggy ride. Mr. Tugwell was writing notes.

The undersecretary of agriculture and social planner No. 1 was thinking about what then was in connection with what was about to be. Later he published his evening's writing as a chapter called "When Corporations Save" in his book, "The Battle for Democracy," which is current reading for citizens who really want to know what's what in the New Deal. An attempt to understand the New Deal without Mr. Tugwell and without occasional reference to Dr. Marx would be equivalent to going blindfolded to the circus. You might hear the sounds, but you wouldn't know what it was all about.

Mr. Tugwell had his codes and so far as he then knew they were working perfectly. The excellent Gen. Johnson was cracking down and, although some little fellows were headed for jail, the big industries, with the exception of the newspaper publishers, thought they had fallen into a rather good thing. Other exceptions must be made of Mr. Weir of Weirton Steel and the automobile makers. They didn't like section 7A and were kicking over the traces.

Mr. Tugwell's reflections were mainly upon the corporation surpluses and the way to keep them from being accumulated. You may think it strange, if you have noted the fact, that when Mr. Tugwell puts his reflections in the form of notes or other writings they soon appear in a different form, in a bill before congress or a law of the land. His reflections on corporation surpluses, put to paper in February, 1934, are now before the house ways and means committee in the shape of a tax bill which, as its purposes were outlined, is to do precisely what Mr. Tugwell was discussing with himself in his studio. To remark again, if Mr. Tugwell's observations are followed carefully they will be found to contain acts of congress.

What he intended to do with the industrial codes will be revealed in the following paragraphs, written on the occasion which has been mentioned:

"Industries which have come to trust code authorities with the allocation of production—and some have actually done that—may move on rather quickly to the consideration of further coöperative devices. So far most activity has been of a negative, repressive sort, the reduction of production schedules, the maintenance or increase of prices and so on; but there soon will come a time—once all business has fitted itself into the structure of the codes—when more positive measures will have to be taken. They will be taken because only in that way can consumption be increased and existing capacity used with advantage, to say nothing of the expansion every one hopes for. Then, too, industry will soon have to think of ways to reduce prices rather than to raise them; and it can do this only by cutting costs. The most fruitful field for this will be, in the immediate future, in the neighborhood of the central offices rather than the factories. When this becomes apparent the handling of surpluses will certainly come in for closer scrutiny."

For the time being the Supreme court by providing the whole NRA act as a coffin for the Schechter chicken has yanked the country's industrial structure away from the "more positive measures" which Mr. Tugwell contemplated. The industries were in his trap, as can be perceived, and they didn't know it. The old NRA has been buried with the chicken. The approach must be along one or more other lines. The destruction of surpluses by taxation is one of the present approaches. Mr. Tugwell writes and talks. Mr. Roosevelt reads and listens. Then congress passes laws.

"The handling of surpluses will certainly come in for closer scrutiny."

BUT, MY FRIENDS, ——

"But, my friends, 1928 was no millennium. You and I know the simple fact that while production was increasing and profits were increasing in 1928 and 1929, unemployment was growing at an astounding rate."—Franklin D. Roosevelt in an address before the Young Democratic club of Baltimore, April 13, 1936.

"The substitution of machines for men is a sensible policy at any time, wherever, in stores as well as factories, and transportation, machines are practicable. You can't defeat economic law. The only way to make this new trend of advantage to everybody is to go along with it."—From an advertisment inserted in the January, 1929, World's Work by the Consolidated Automatic Merchandising company [Camco], of which Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York was a director.

Extended comment is scarcely necessary. Mr. Roosevelt in 1928 and 1929 was engaged in expediting the unemployment which he now asserts was the worm in the apple of prosperity. To keep the record straight it must be added that Mr. Roosevelt's eager efforts to promote unemployment among store clerks at that critical period failed, along with the company of which he was a director. The advertisment and many others like it were published by Mr. Roosevelt's company with a view to selling a highly speculative security to innocent investors. In that sense the promotion was highly successful. A great many people lost a great deal of money in this Wall street skin-game.

THE LEAGUE LOSES TO ITALY.

Several causes of the league's failure in Africa are close to the surface. The principal nations in the council did not have a common purpose. It was apparent all the time that the attempt to control Italy was illogical and even fantastic in French opinion. The doctrin that a colonizing nation can't take what it can get was a strange one on the French tongue. The French themselves were disciplining the Syrians much of the time the Italians were pushing into Ethiopia. It wouldn't escape ironical French observation that Great Britain was suppressing nationalistic sentiment in Egypt at the same time.

All the earnestness Mr. Eden could bring to bear on the problem could not dispel the incongruities. If Ethiopia were to be protected against Italy, what was China's claim to league support against Japan? The league had been in that trouble once before, getting out of it with great haste but little dignity. Mr. Eden may have sincerely believed that the peace of Europe depended upon proving that in one major instance collective action could be successful in restraining a powerful aggressor. If the aggressor had to submit to the will of peace seeking nations in one instance, there would be confidence that if another trouble arose it could be dealt with in the same fashion.

At no time, however, was it clear to skeptics, whatever Mr. Eden's sentiments were, that a distinct British interest in the Nile headwaters did not account for the doggedness with which the British threw themselves in the Italians' way. That interest would explain why Great Britain could take a conciliatory position with regard to other treaty and covenant violations and still maintain a front against Italy with so much vigor. To France the reoccupation of the Rhine was formidable and the conquest of Ethiopia was not.

Smaller nations had an honest fear of aggression, and if the bigger nations could have made the covenant apply to Italy they might have been very glad to work out a scheme of security along that line. If the sanctions hurt Italy, they did not do enough damage to keep Gen. Badoglio from conducting successful campaigns. Italy may be financially damaged. It may have a difficult time even with victory, but the sanctions could not be applied as effective embargoes and the disciplining nations were unwilling to go to extreme lengths. All the league did was to anger Italy with pin pricks without impeding its military progress. Germany and Japan offer too many difficulties to permit the league to present anything like a united front. It confesses a failure, justifying the opinion of critics who have contended from the beginning that its pretenses far outran any possibility of achievement. Whether it can continue to exist even in form after the Italian conquest of a member nation will remain to be seen. Neither Mussolini nor the league could afford to fail, being definitly committed to a struggle for supremacy, and the league has failed.

VARIETY IN SERVICE

Just how much thought our so-called transportation experts, otherwise the members of the interstate commerce commission, gave the passenger fare problem which they recently considered is clearly indicated by the decision they reached—to establish new mileage levels for passenger travel. In doing so they followed tradition, the arch enemy of progress in transportation or anything else.

To checkmate their speedy air competitors on the one hand and the slower highway buses on the other, the railways are inaugurating numerous varieties of service. Sometimes speed is emphasized, in other cases luxury and comfort. Economy is also studied but not confused with other factors.

From a practical operating standpoint there is less reason why a railroad should base its fares on mileage than a hotel should sell room space by the cubic foot, or a moving picture theater by the length of a performance. There is a wide variation in the cost of operating passenger trains as well as in the number of passengers they will accommodate. Public service should be the measure of the charge and not the distance traveled, which is a mere incident in the cost of transportation.

NEW YORK GETS GEN. M'COY.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

New York can be grateful that out of the discreditable Hagood incident the city has had an unexpected piece of good fortune. Coming to Governors Island to be in charge of the 2d corps area is Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, whose place in Chicago Gen. Hagood is now to have.

Few officers in the army have had a more distinguished record than Gen. McCoy. None has more friends—many of them in and about the New York area. A White House aide in the days of Theodore Roosevelt, he has seen service in Cuba and the Philippines, and was at one time in command of New York's famous "Fighting 69th." After the world war he served as chief assistant to Gen. Wood when that officer was governor general of the Philippines. President Coolidge picked Gen. McCoy to supervise the Nicaragua election, and President Hoover appointed him a member of the commission to establish peace between Bolivia and Paraguay. He was later a member of the Lytton mission sent by the league of nations to report on the Manchurian incident of 1931.

In addition to this splendid record of service Gen. McCoy, wherever he has been stationed, has won the loyalty and affection of all with whom he has worked and has established close friendly relations between the army and the civilian leaders. Here in New York his task will be made all the easier by the fact that he will be among friends.

Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

A THING which is of great importance in the selection of the chief magistrate of these more or less United States hasn't yet been touched upon. It was brought to mind when the baseball season opened in Washington and President Roosevelt, according to immemorial custom, pitched the first ball. It was a custom that began with George Washington. There was no Washington baseball team when George was President, but some time before that great day George had looked down the ages and seen what was demanded of future Presidents and so he pitched a dollar across the Rappahannock. We hear much of the claims of the rival candidates in the Republican party, but which one of them is the best baseball pitcher? Could Sen. Borah hurl the first ball at the opening of the baseball season better than Frank Knox, or has Gov. Landon got a curve or a spit ball that will beat them both? Mr. Roosevelt pitches a pretty mean ball. If one of the Republican candidates goes to the White House will he do as well? We must find out about this before the Cleveland convention.

PRAYER.

God of the dying and of peace,
In that still hour Thou bid'st me cease,

Give me to die with a quiet will;
With tranquil eyes, and both hands still.

Grant me, for all my failures past,
The little triumph at the last

Of looking on my final hour
With courage borrowed of Thy power;

O teach me with my sinking breath
I am Thy child who face my death,

And give me, for my failing sight,
The rimless glory of Thy light,

And let no weakling cry of mine
Insult the hour Thou makest Thine.

Amen, amen, and in Thy hand
Be all I cannot understand;

I know, and it sufficeth me,
They rest indeed who rest in Thee.

THE ANTHROPOLOGISTS digging around the royal tombs in Egypt have exhumed another beautiful princess perfectly preserved in spite of the fact that the lady passed away some five thousand years ago. Which means that the anthropologists are getting more interesting. Anthropologists and archæologists have never especially interested me, because I've been into too many museums and didn't see anything but a couple of bushels of Indian arrowheads, broken black skulls, stone axes, and things like that, which I always found about as exciting as a half ton of brickbats. But now if they are going to resurrect beautiful princesses and put them on exhibition I'll pay my quarter at the box office of the museum without the slightest kick.

"PINKHAM KIN in Row Over Tonic Concern."—Headline. Which carries me back many, many years when I used to visit over at the University of Illinois and listen to Duffy and his Phi Delt choir sing a very solemn ode which went like this:

"Sing, oh sing,
Sing, oh sing,
Of Lydia Pinkham,
Of Lydia Pinkham,
And her love, her boundless love,
For the human race,
The human race.
How she makes, how she makes,
Her vegetable compounds, her vegetable compounds,
And in the papers, in the papers,
She prints her face,
She prints her face."

THE INVENTORS have designed a new automobile they say is wreckproof. But it travels sixty-five miles an hour and there is nothing that travels sixty-five miles an hour that will not jar the people inside of it quite considerably if it comes to a sudden stop. I have even seen a man who was walking at the rate of two miles an hour get quite a bad looking nose when he was stopped by a telephone pole into which he had blundered.

RHYMES FOR MY SMALL DAUGHTER.

THE POLITE PENGUINS.

The penguins are very polite, you know.
They live where it's usually forty below
And there's nothing but wind and ice and snow;
But the penguins are very polite.

Whenever a vessel comes to explore
The land that few people have seen before,
The penguins all rush down to the shore.
Oh, the penguins are very polite!

They stand with a dignified, elegant air
The penguins are very polite.

If they could they would all say: "How do you do?"
And "How does this climate agree with you?"
Or "The sun will rise in a month or two."
The penguins are very polite.

They walk about as you and I;
They swim and dive but do not fly;
In fact, they never even try.
And the penguins are very polite!

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE WITHOUT CAUSE.

UNTIL within recent years it was thought by medical men generally that every case of high blood pressure meant hardening of the arteries or Bright's disease. The more the subject is studied, however, the clearer it becomes that there are some cases of high arterial tension that are not dependent on either of these factors. Nevertheless, if the pressure continues at an increased level over a span of years, the kidneys and the arteries may be affected secondarily, just as a garden hose may be worn out quickly if it is under a continuous overload.

What then IS responsible for this type of abnormal pressure that comes seemingly out of a clear sky? As near as can be determined, there are factors [stimuli] which influence the sympathetic nervous system and which bring about a contraction [later hardening] of the arterioles [small arteries] and capillaries in the brain, the heart, and the kidneys. This is the explanation for many cases of rupture of blood vessels in men past 50. The sequence of events is quite different, however, from that which occurs in ageing or senile sclerosis. The situation is not called arteriosclerosis, but, for want of a better name, is termed essential hypertension, which is another way of indicating that it is unexplained. It is an individual characteristic.

Let us assume that we are faced with such a predicament. What will occur if the condition is allowed to continue unchecked?

Take the case of a middle aged business man who has led a busy but not a strenuous life. He is not suffering from Bright's disease and yet he shows a high systolic pressure. But a few years ago such a patient would have been starved, deprived of meat and eggs, of tea and coffee, and of any activity whatsoever. Had the history been gone into carefully, periodical high pressure readings would have been noted even in early life, for example, between the ages of 20 and 30. To be sure, these intervals were short, but they were exhibited whenever excitement or worry became manifest. We may logically assume that the constant reiteration of strains of this sort may lead to the development of a more or less continuous state in which the level of pressure within the arteries is raised.

Sometimes a study of the temperament of the patient will disclose the fact that he is of a hypersensitive, emotional type—not outwardly so, perhaps, but boiling within. As a nervous outlet he may have turned to tobacco and employed it to excess. We have then a constitution with an easily upset nervous system, in which environment has added to the burdens of the circulation rather than offered relief.

Can anything be done to ameliorate the tension? The first consideration is the diet, which should be so regulated that the patient's weight is a little below average for his height and age. Protein [meat] is not responsible for high blood pressure and the normal amount should be eaten. Common salt may be used when there is no edema [swelling]. If tobacco has been employed to excess the amount should be reduced, but it need not be eliminated entirely.

Periods of rest should be increased, but the one who gives up business is worse off than he who carries on a moderate schedule. Rest for an hour in the middle of the day is of more value than two or three hours at a later period. More important than all of these, however, is that the patient's mind shall be at ease. Some one in the business or in the family must assume the burdensome details.

The blood pressure should be taken infrequently—once every three or four months and then, if possible, after a period of quiet, so that the reading shall not show at its peak. The less thought the patient can give to his own pressure the better he will be.

There are many substances which will help. The patient may need calcium and if so this should be supplied. Sedatives such as bromides are often useful, but large doses of drugs that bring down pressure afford little if any permanent relief. Sometimes correction of the bacterial flora of the bowel through the use of lactic acid bacilli is of service. Naturally, infections that are obvious should be removed.

GOUT.

Mrs. J. D. F. writes: Where does the word "gout" come from and what does it mean? Is diet important and what can I eat? My ankles swell and sometimes the gout is in my toes; at other times, in my heels. I am 72 years old and was very active until this came upon me. I have been home for over three months without change in the condition.

REPLY.

The word "gout" comes from the Latin "gutta," a drop. There is an ancient belief that the disease was due to a poison falling drop by drop into the affected joint.

Gout is a disturbance of metabolism associated with retention of uric acid, etc., in the tissues. It is characterized by inflammation of the joints.

There is a direct relation between gout and an excessive consumption of food. Gouty persons, as a rule, tend to be overweight and they are often large meat eaters.

The diet should be one with a low protein content. Meats, fish, and fowl should be restricted and sweetbreads, liver, kidneys, and smoked or cured meats entirely. All fruits may be taken freely and plenty of water is advised. Alcoholic beverages and highly seasoned foods should be avoided.

BREATHING.

Miss M. A. writes: If there is such a thing as breathing with the muscles of the ribs, then that is how I breathe. I can't seem to breathe with my chest. What does this indicate? Is it serious?

REPLY.

If you have no difficulty in breathing, why worry about how you do it? You breathe with your lungs anyway.

In breathing, women use the chest muscles largely, while men use the diaphragm and the chest. You can develop thoracic [chest] breathing by contracting the abdominal muscles while taking a few breaths. Relax the abdomen for a few respirations—then repeat the procedure. Sometimes the movements of the ribs are lessened by arthritis, hence abdominal breathing is the rule.

TRY HOLDING NOSE.

B. P. M. writes: Is it the odor or the taste of castor oil that makes it disagreeable?

REPLY.

Disagreeable tastes are, as a rule, due to unpleasant odor sensations. If the nostrils are held closed during the administration of castor oil, the taste will rarely be complained of.

From Across the Sea

BY JOHN AHL-NIELSEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN.—The fear of war in Europe has caused the Scandinavian states, which were safe in their neutrality during the world war, to introduce bills in their parliaments for intense rearmament schemes.

Recently a Swedish commission, including several old time Socialists, studied the possibility of Sweden's being a participant in a European war, and advised the government that Sweden must prepare against eventual hostilities. Norwegian Socialists are of the same opinion regarding the military problems of their country, and lately the Danish Socialistic cabinet appeared to have deserted its former disarmament policies under which Danish fortifications were razed just after the war when high hopes were placed in the league of nations.

A bill calling for $4,500,000 to be spent on air defense has just been offered in the legislature by the Danish Conservative party because it believes that any future war will be fought in the air.

Although the Socialist minister of defense refused to accept the bill or even discuss it, his behavior made it evident that his party has changed its opinion about the value of Danish disarmament. He stated that, while he could not accept the Conservative proposal backed by the Farming party [left], he would never desert Denmark's duties as a guard at the gates of the Baltic sea. But Denmark cannot bear the expense necessary to arm to a degree providing full effectiveness and safety on the lines now planned by the great nations of Europe.

The Danish minister of defense hinted the cabinet was studying the situation and the possible limits of Denmark's ability to finance armaments. The outcome of these studies may be the basis for armament discussions in coming assemblies of the Danish legislature.

Denmark has often been mentioned as the guard of the entrance to the Baltic and as the kitchen from which England must get her food in case of war. Many observers contend nothing has happened to change this situation, but there is much speculation now on whether Russia would respect Denmark as guard of the Baltic sea in case of war, and whether Germany would respect England's kitchen. The question is asked: In case of war would Germany try to seize the land of bacon and eggs before England or Russia?

Denmark's geographical and strategical position in case of a central European war is not as important as was that of Belgium in 1914, but as an important producer of bacon, eggs, butter, and other food Denmark may be necessary to Germany, England, or Russia.

Resistance would be hopeless on the 4 or 5 million kroner Denmark could spend. [The krone is worth about 22 cents.] The only hope is that the great powers will pay the military bill and not be too hard on the Danish soil, according to the Socialists' view. The Conservatives' stand is that no one shall make of Denmark another Belgium without paying dearly for it.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Chicago, April 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Eighteen months ago two unmarried women [no blood relation] jointly bought a small store in Chicago. They desire that in case of death of one the survivor shall have an undisputable claim to the store and to their household property, despite any attempts of relatives of the deceased one to claim the half interest. A believes that the present Illinois law would carry out these wishes; B believes some legal procedure is necessary. Which is right? If the latter is right, how does one go about the matter?

P. T. S.

If you mean that you have purchased the real estate in which the store is conducted, then if the deed expressly provides for joint tenancy, it would go to the survivor upon the death of one. As additional protection with respect to the personal property, it might be wise to have wills in reserve.

To create a joint tenancy in real estate the conveyance should expressly declare that title is to pass not in tenancy in common but in joint tenancy. [Illinois Revised Statutes, chapter 76, section 1.] If title is already in one of the parties it should be deeded to a third person who is not subject to judgment liens. He should then deed back to the two, using a joint tenancy form, which can be secured from a stationer.

To create a joint tenancy in personal property the "will or other instrument in writing" should express "an intention to create a joint tenancy . . . with the right of survivorship" [section 2]. Under the statute we consider it advisable not to rely on the wording of a stock certificate nor on the fact that the parties have joint access to a safety box. The intention should be expressed in a writing by the owner or owners.

On the death of a joint tenant the property passes to the survivor without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first. The one-half that thus passes by survivorship is subject to inheritance tax.

TERMS OF WILL.

Burnham, Ill., April 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother died without making a will. She requested my father to make a will so that I would obtain the proper share. He did and practically made me sole beneficiary excepting for an amount of cash that I am to give my sister after his death. 1. Does my sister have to be content as to the way the will is drawn up or can she contest it because our mother did not take a part in the will? 2. How soon could the will be probated after my father's death?

J. S.

1. In order to set aside the will she would have to show undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.

2. Proceedings could be commenced at once. Ordinarily there is no distribution until after a year has expired.

OPPOSITION EXPLAINED.

Chicago, April 14.—I notice quite a few people think, or pretend to think, it peculiar that practically all newspapers are against the New Deal in their editorial columns while the business items in the same papers show improvements in many lines.

This is not a reflection on the newspapers but rather upon the analytical abilities of the people who write such letters.

Doesn't it seem strange to them, too, that practically all business men, big and little, are against the New Deal if it is helping business? If these business men did not know that such improvement as we have has been accomplished in spite of the New Deal and not on account of it, would they be so shortsighted as to oppose it almost 100 per cent as they do?

The fact is, these business men are able to analyze causes and effects which the writers of these naive letters evidently are not. Many sick people have recovered in spite of a lot of ridiculous home remedies and quackery. The ignorant and gullible credit these recoveries to the quack treatment, which, instead of helping, has endangered the very lives of the patients, but people of intelligence realize that it was only the strong constitutions of the patients which enabled them to conquer both the disease and the remedy.

Intelligent people realized what a farce the NRA was even before it was knocked out by the Supreme court, and they also know that industrial recovery, which it had retarded, began its pickup practically from the date the NRA was overruled. Mr. Roosevelt and his satellites predicted immediate chaos, but when business started to pick up at once instead of going to the dogs, as they had predicted, they immediately changed their tune and claimed "it was because we planned it that way," and a gullible public, not stopping to analyze, allowed them to get away with it.

If the American people were more analytical and less gullible they wouldn't be taken in by Townsend plans, chain letters, New Deals and the rest of the present day tomfoolery.

G. H. Van Cleve.

WPA WAS MEANT.

Chicago, April 18.—The article "Fifty Fifty" by "Half a Day" makes the statement in your Voice of the People column of April 17 that "the people should not forget that PWA men worked half a day on PWA works and a half day at the polls."

It is apparent that either your correspondent is misinformed or the contractors who have Public Works administration [PWA] jobs and who hire and pay the labor on these jobs gave the men half a holiday. If they did so the contractors were the ones who bore the cost.

Our inspection records, however, fail to indicate any cessation of work.

C. H. Bauer,
State Director, PWA.

A COMPARISON PURSUED.

Park Ridge, Ill., April 12.—Today you published a letter from a man who said the government will deliver a letter any place in the United States for 3 cents. True, the stamp costs only three cents, but a 14 cent pack of cigarets includes a 6 cents tax. A 20 cent deck of cards includes a 10 cent tax. Federal taxes affect the price of foodstuffs and everything else we use. Taxes make up the postoffice department deficit.

Your correspondent implied that it is more desirable to work for the postoffice than in private industry. Of course it is a fact that postal and other government employés do not pay any income tax.

ARRESTED AT THE POLLS.

Chicago, April 16.—The Tribune in the issue of April 15, 1936, in a news article carried the following story:

Four men, said by the police to have records, were arrested in the Fifty-fifth precinct of the Twenty-seventh ward on charges of molesting workers. The men, who asserted they represented the Women's Civic council, one of the organizations waging the anti-fraud campaign, were released on writs of habeas corpus by Judge Daniel P. Trude in the Circuit court.

The Women's Civic council wishes to state that these men were not watchers for nor did they represent in any way the Women's Civic council.

I understand that Mr. Melzer was the Horner precinct captain, and the other men were his assistants, and at the time of their arrest they were challenging persons who were attempting to vote under names alleged to be fraudulently registered in this precinct. [The check of the Women's Civic council shows 334 names fraudulently registered.]

I am told that they were discharged on Wednesday, April 15, as innocent of the charges made against them which constituted the so-called "record."

The Women's Civic council recommends that some steps be taken to stop the harassing of honest political workers on election day.

Harriet M. Robertson,
President, Women's Civic council.

THE IOWA STATE BUILDING.

Chicago, April 17.—Frequent reference has been made in your columns to the Iowa State building in Jackson park.

Long before the 1893 World's Fair was thought of the building now known as the Iowa State building stood as and where it now stands in Jackson park. It was known as the Pavilion. When the World's Fair was planned there was located north of the Art building a double circle of buildings known as the various state buildings, most of which were of stucco, or staff, as it was called then. The Pavilion, which had been built some four or five years before, was utilized by the Iowa state commission, and by inclosing the open space below the roof with temporary walls made a very satisfactory building for the purpose.

After the Fair was over the temporary walls were removed and the building resumed its original status. I think old timers will appreciate a reference to the original purpose of the building and its use by cyclists and picnic parties as a place of shelter and meeting. The writer attended more than one picnic in his youth in this building.

THE HIDEBOUND ARMY.

Chicago, April 17.—Will C. A. Davis deny that our army is weighted down with old ideas? That most of those worthless ideas were derived from the pomp and glory of Europe's gold braid and high hats? That the hand salute is absolutely worthless in the business of making war? That the manual of arms is a farce?

In place of toting an obsolete rifle, every man should be trained in the effective use of automatic rifles and pistols.

It was a bunch of noncoöperative officers who held up production of such arms prior to the war, and who were responsible for delayed delivery of such arms until the stuff was of infrequent use if any. [I received my Browning in January, two months after the war was over.]

Squads east and west may be all right, but it is more important to have unlimited ammunition, firing ranges, and the most modern arms; but the most important thing is to have the gentlemen know how to use them before it is too late.

FAST ARMY TANK BREAKS RECORD ON 1,076 MI. RUN

SetsDistanceMark; Speed Average 33 M. P. H.

Rock Island, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—The new high speed United States army tank, which is manufactured at the Rock Island arsenal, returned to the arsenal late yesterday following a 1,076 mile test run from Dallas, Tex., to Rock Island, Col. A. G. Gillespie, commandant of the arsenal, announced today.

The tank made the trip in slightly more than thirty-two hours' running time, Gillespie said, thereby breaking all previous records for distance and mileage. The tank was under the command of Capt. Paul M. Seleen of the arsenal staf, with Earl Trimble, mechanic, driving the entire way.

346 Miles in Ten Hours.

The tank also broke all records for a day's run of ten hours of straight driving on its last day's run to the arsenal, when it made 346 miles in ten hours yesterday. The best previous record for an arsenal manufactured tank, which was made about a year ago on a test run to Washington, D. C., was 336 miles in eleven hours.

The new record was considered especially remarkable in view of the fact that on the test run to Washington there were two drivers relieving each other.

No Trouble in Trafic.

According to Col. Gillespie, the tank performed well and was economical on fuel.

The tank had no trouble with trafic in cities and towns along the way and even when traveling over a number of detours in Oklahoma the tank was able to go 35 miles an hour, with little jarring to the occupants, while its escort truck could only make 15 miles an hour, Gillespie said.

At Bowling Green, Mo., where the tank was halted Sunday evening, the members of one church, in front of which the tank had been temporarily parked, disbanded services for a short while to look over Uncle Sam's new weapon of war.

Fire Damages 4 West Side Businesses; Loss Is $20,000

Damage estimated at $20,000 was caused last evening by a fire which destroyed part of a three story building at 4054-6 West Roosevelt road. The heaviest losses were sustained by the American Bag and Specialty company, occupying the second floor. Merchandise belonging to the Brody Upholstery and Manufacturing company, and the Smart Hat shop, on the first floor, and to the Figler Noodle company, on the third floor, was damaged by water. The cause of the fire was not determined. Trafic in Roosevelt road was held up for an hour.

VICTIM DEFENDS HIS ACCOUNT OF TAMPA FLOGGING

Denies Defense Charges in Cross-Quiz.

Bartow, Fla., April 21.—(AP)—After relating details of the flogging of himself and two companions, white haired Sam Rogers, a former physician, today vigorously defied an attack on his testimony by the defense in the trial of seven former Tampa policemen.

Step by step, Rogers unfolded the story of how he, E. F. Poulnot, and Joseph Shoemaker, who subsequently died of his injuries, were abducted, flogged, and tarred and feathered last November at Tampa.

Then the witness was subjected to cross-examination, during which he hotly denied an accusation by Pat Whitaker, defense attorney, that he had been discharged from a gasoline filling station job by C. W. Carlisle, one of the defendants, "for improper relations with colored women and selling liquor."

Argue Over Admissibility.

The testimony of Rogers followed half a day of argument over its admissibility, after which Judge Robert T. Dewell ruled in favor of the prosecution.

"Do you know whether Poulnot was brought out there to the woods?" Prosecutor Rex Farrior asked Rogers.

"He was."

"How do you know?"

"They called Shoemaker and Poulnot by name."

"Is there any other reason why you know?"

"After they had beaten Shoemaker they began to beat Poulnot."

"How do you know that?"

"I heard him groan and complain and I knew his voice."

"How do you know how many blows were struck?"

Ordered to Leave State.

"Do you know how many blows were struck?"

"Yes, for two or three minutes—50 or 60 or 70. I could approximate that better than I could my own. . . .

". . . Poulnot told them he wished to talk, to say something. Some one said 'you already said too much.' He was not allowed to talk. They commanded us to leave Florida in 24 hours."

Rogers said that after the beating the three men made their way back to the highway and finally found a filling station where a unidentified man with an automobile took them ten miles into Tampa. Poulnot went home and Rogers and Shoemaker went to a hospital.

Surface Lines Asked to Cut Fares of School Children

A request for the reduction of fares for school children under 17 years old from 7 cents to 5 cents on the Chicago surface lines was addressed to G. A. Richardson and Harvey B. Fleming, receivers for the street railways, yesterday by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes in compliance with a resolution passed by the city council at its meeting last Wednesday. The letter pointed out that school children currently are permitted to ride on the elevated lines and the motor coaches for a 5 cent fare.

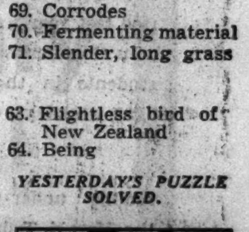
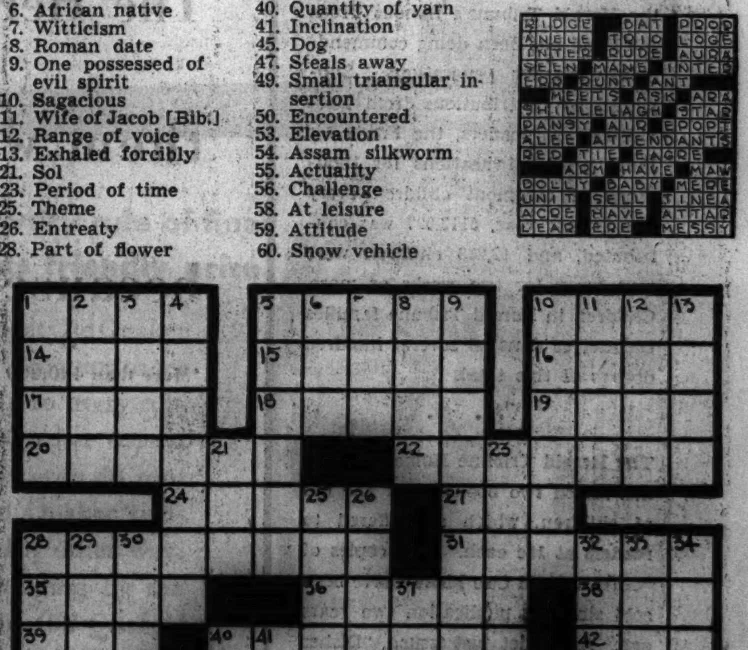
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED.





To the Future!

The New York Herald Tribune is for all-family reading. . . . welcomed in hundreds of thousands of homes where there are growing children, because it is carefully written and ably edited; because it is exciting and progressive without being sensational; because its news columns reflect all sides of public questions impartially; and finally, because it is legibly printed.

Speaking of being "legibly printed," the Francis Wayland Ayer Cup for typographical excellence this year has been awarded to the New York Herald Tribune. By winning it three times the Herald Tribune thus takes permanent possession of the highest honors in printing awarded to United States newspapers. In making the award the judges took into consideration "typography, layout, make-up and presswork." Technical terms, you may say, but they combine to make pages that "read fair." Grown-ups as well as children appreciate that.

Recently, a nine-year-old wrote and told us succinctly and briefly why he likes the Herald Tribune:

> "I am nine years old and like the Herald Tribune best of the papers. I like the dark way you print the headline.
> I think you put easier words in the columns.
> I like the way you put the radio columns.
> That's all.
> (signed) A liker of the Herald Tribune."

In addition to printed features which appeal to children, such as Burgess' daily Nature Stories, crossword puzzles, comics, gravure pictures, the New York Herald Tribune engages in extra activities for its young readers.

For instance, there is the Junior Garden Club Council, in which 6,531 children have been enrolled in a year.

Herald Tribune circulation in high schools and colleges is growing—rapidly. The average daily sale to high school students for class room work during the September-January term this year was 5,886 copies, an increase of 106% over the same period last year. Average subscription sales (less newsstand sales) to college students in the same period was 5,559 weekdays, 6,967 Sundays.

Among under-privileged children, the Herald Tribune's famous Fresh Air Fund has been doing commendable work for generations. Supported by contributions from Herald Tribune readers, the Fresh Air Fund provides vacations for thousands of tenement children every year. Last year, $113,027 was contributed, and 12,238 children were sent away for two weeks or more. Children in Herald Tribune families themselves donated several hundred dollars of this total.

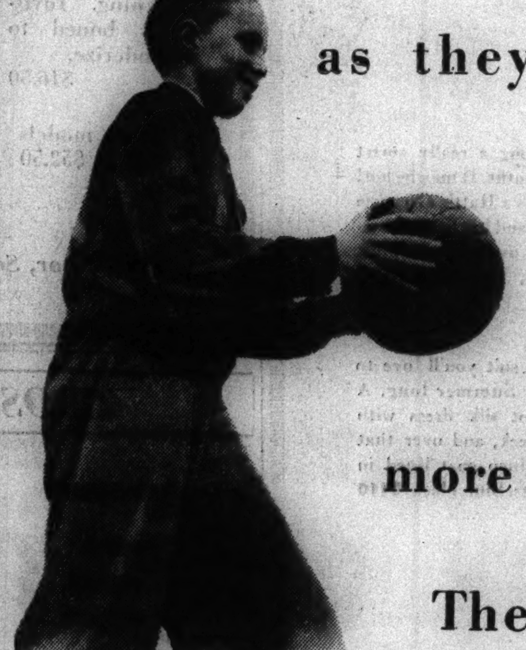
The Herald Tribune Home Institute has issued two booklets for the use of children, which are offered to readers at 15c each. 8,000 copies of "Gifts a Child Can Make" have been sold since its publication two years ago. A booklet just issued, "Dishes a Child Can Cook" has already sold 1,300 copies.

* * *

The children of today are your customers of tomorrow. In the very young readers in the families which make up its circulation, the Herald Tribune offers you a bit of the future.

These are the CHILDREN

Among your best customers a few years from now, count these children. They are not the richest children in New York. Nor the most beautiful. Nor the brainiest. But they are healthy... and normal. With parents who are the active, impatient kind, as eager to buy new foods, new clothing and things for their homes, as they are anxious to discard the things that fashion and wear have made old. One thing both children and parents hold to—is their Herald Tribune. To them, as to more than 330,000[*] other families, it is their kind of newspaper.



Their definition of a good newspaper is a personal definition: The paper that comes closest to their way of living and thinking. The Herald Tribune is their paper for two final reasons: It tells them what they want to know; it can tell them what you have that they should have, because they are the readers with both the mind and the money to buy.

[*] More than 480,000 on Sundays

ASSIGN WALDORF TO CHICAGO, URGE 600 METHODISTS

View Merger as Main Problem of Church.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

More than 600 representative Methodists looked forward last night toward what was described as their church's epoch making general conference, which is to open May 1 at Columbus, O. They met under auspices of the Chicago Methodist Social union at a dinner at the Hotel Sherman.

The return of Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf to this area for another four year term was urged in a unanimously adopted resolution presented by Charles O. Loucks.

Merger the Outstanding Issue.

Bishop Waldorf said the overshadowing issue before the Columbus assemblage will be the proposed merger of the three great branches of American Methodism, the Methodist Episcopal church, the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and the Methodist Protestant church.

The issue of radicalism in the Methodist church, Bishop Waldorf said, probably will not be important at the coming conference because the "reds" in the church are "only a thin minority crust under the Methodist pie."

Educator Appraises Situation.

Chancellor Charles W. Flint of Syracuse university, guest speaker, confirmed Bishop Waldorf's view, and chided the radicals in Protestant churches about one of their slogans which seeks "production for use and not for profit."

"Production if not for use could not possibly make a profit," said the Syracuse chancellor. "Profits against all other interests is a stupid point of view. A profit can be achieved only by rendering a service to consumer, to society, and to the individual."

Jury Today Will Hear Lawrence O'Brien Case

A charge of disorderly conduct against Lawrence C. O'Brien, former state representative from the Twenty-ninth district, growing out of a tavern brawl at 820 North Clark street on March 18, was changed yesterday to a charge of interfering with a policeman. O'Brien demanded jury trial or arraignment yesterday in Municipal court, so today Judge Eugene L. McGarry and a jury will hear the case. O'Brien, who lives at 71 Cedar street, was seized by police who went to the tavern to arrest men involved in a slugging in the place when, according to the police, O'Brien interfered with them.

ECONOMIST PICTURES BREAD AT 50C A LOAF IN TOWNSEND SCHEME

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—An appalling picture of the cost of living in the United States if the Townsend old age pension plan were to be put into effect was painted today before a house committee by Dr. Robert R. Doane, widely known economist and author of New York City.

A 10 cent loaf of bread would cost 50 cents, a $5 pair of shoes would cost $25, and a $35 suit would cost $175, Dr. Doane estimated if the 2 per cent transaction tax recommended by the Townsendites were to be imposed. In general, he declared, the consumer prices of most commodities would be raised three or four hundred per cent.

The economist made these estimates after delivering an opinion that the program itself, calling for the payment of $200 a month to all persons over 60 years of age, was "utterly impossible."

The committee members gave Dr. Doane's statement especial emphasis because he has been quoted in the Townsend weekly as having made a report showing the economic soundness of the Townsend plan.

CHARLES E. MINER CHOSEN DEPUTY STATE WPA HEAD

Robert J. Dunham, Works Progress administrator for Illinois, yesterday announced the appointment of Charles E. Miner, his administrative assistant, as deputy state administrator, to succeed Ralph H. Burke, who has held the post since the inception of the program ten months ago. The change will be made May 1, when Mr. Burke will resume his position as chief engineer of the Chicago Parks district, from which he had leave of absence, Mr. Dunham, who is park president, commented.

"When Mr. Burke went over to WPA he didn't expect to stay longer than six months, nor did I, for that matter. In December I started talking to him about coming back to the parks, and now we have decided that the transfer should be made at the end of this month."

Mr. Dunham denied that the recent primary election had any bearing on the transfer.

"Neither Burke nor Miner has ever shown any professional interest in politics," he said. "They had nothing whatever to do with the campaign."

Mr. Miner is a social worker and former executive secretary of the Illinois emergency relief commission. He has been national membership secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and president of the Social Service Forum of Chicago. He is listed as a Republican.

TELL HOW ARAB BRAVERY SAVED JEWS FROM MOB

Jaffa Merchants Hide Friends in Homes.

TEL AVIV, Palestine, April 21.—(AP)—Stories of bravery and daring on the part of Arab leaders and merchants in Jaffa who went to the aid of their Jewish friends and clients in saving them from the fury of Arab attackers were told today as communications between the two cities began to assume normalcy.

A number of Jews who were endangered by the mob were hidden away by these Arabs in their homes until the disturbance had subsided. They thereupon escorted their Jewish friends to Tel Aviv, thus saving many Jewish lives.

It was also discovered that Jewish orderlies who had been placed to guard the Jewish communities had also protected Arabs in distress, accompanying them to the Jaffa boundary line in order that there might be no possibility of attacks.

Arab-Jewish Clashes Continue.

JERUSALEM, April 21.—(AP)—Violent outbreaks between Jews and Arabs at Tel Aviv and nearby towns continued today, bringing the total of injured to 120 in three days of disorder, the Jewish telegraphic agency reported. Sixteen Jews and four Arabs have been killed.

Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, British high commissioner, in a proclamation announced his determination to maintain law and order. He called upon the public to assist him by refraining from joining crowds.

Most of the new injuries were reported by the Hadassah hospital at Tel Aviv, the all-Jewish center of worst disorder.

At Nevei Shalon, near Tel Aviv, a Yemenite Jew named Garbi was stabbed by five Arabs as he was going to his shop.

Moslems Attack French Pilgrims.

BEIRUT, Syria, April 21.—(AP)—A crowd of Mohammedans attacked a caravan of French Libanese pilgrims returning from Jerusalem today. The Mohammedans circled around one of the nineteen automobiles and threw stones at the Christian women until police came to their rescue. All the women were injured but none was seriously hurt.

INCREASES SPEED OF ELECTRIC CHAIR; AWAITS CUSTOMER

Warden Frank Sain of the county jail announced yesterday afternoon that he has completed improvements designed to speed up the execution of condemned murderers. The only thing he needs now, the warden said, is a customer for the chair.

The latest electrocution was some fourteen months age when Chester Novak, who killed his robbery victim, was placed in the chair. The county jail records show that few executions have taken place since the height of the crime war drive four years ago. Most murderers, court attachés say, now escape the death penalty by pleading guilty and escaping with a life or 199 year penitentiary sentence.

Under the new improvements it will take only ten seconds to clamp a man into the electric chair and prepare him for his last shock. The old system required thirty-five seconds. The warden says he now has the fastest working electric chair in the country and that he will demonstrate when and if he gets a subject.

Sues Daughter-in-Law to Recover Apartment

Mrs. Catherine Haas, 65 years old, 6805 Hilldale avenue, filed suit in the Circuit court yesterday to set aside an agreement whereby she and her husband, Joseph, who died in 1931, conveyed a nine apartment house at 1617 Hudson avenue to their son and his wife in 1930. The son, Val J. Haas, died in 1933. Mrs. Haas charges that Val and his wife, Beatrice, the defendant, agreed to pay $50 a month to Val's parents throughout their lives, and to pay $6,000 to the survivor, but that actually only $130 in all has been paid.

Ernest Temple, 36 years old, 3233 North Halsted street, and his wife, Lillian, 26, were found guilty by Judge Leon Edelman in the Domestic Relations court yesterday of contributing to the delinquency of Ernest Jr., 7 years old, Temple's son by a former marriage. The judge postponed sentence until next Tuesday, pending an investigation of conditions in the Temple home.

The boy was found Sunday after he had been missing from home since Friday morning. During that time he hid in a neighboring basement, clad only in his underwear, without food or water. His stepmother admitted that she had sent him from home after a quarrel with her husband.

The boy is in the juvenile home.

TELLS HOW REND WAS INDUCED TO BUY BANK STOCK

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

How the late Joseph P. Rend was induced to purchase 1,000 shares of National City bank stock at the high price level of Nov. 1, 1929, was described on the witness stand in Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward's court yesterday by W. R. Boyer, former salesman in Chicago for the National City company of New York.

Mrs. Agnes E. Rend, widow of the Chicago coal merchant, is seeking to recover $1,500,000 from the City company of New York, successor to the National City company, as a result of the losses of her husband in this and other bank stock purchases.

Lawyers Crowd Courtroom.

Boyer, now a public relations counsel, was examined by Attorney Walter Beebe for the plaintif and cross-examined by Attorney Max D. Steuer of New York for the defendant company. The courtroom was crowded with lawyers and others who had come to see this duel of lawyers.

The question of whether the plaintif could go into the practice of day loans by New York brokers dealing in bank stock, and whether the market for National City bank stock was controled and dominated by the bank's security affiliate, the old National City company, was reached late in the afternoon. Judge Woodward suggested that this was a collateral matter and sustained an objection to this line of examination.

This will be pressed again this morning. Mr. Beebe has suggested that the method used was fraudulent and that Mr. Rend did not know how the bank stock was held up on the market until 1933, when he began this suit.

Testimony of Ex-Salesman.

In the critical market days of Oct. 30 and 31, 1929, Mr. Boyer testified, several flashes came in from the New York office regarding the sale of National City bank stock. The salesmen were urged to sell the stock at once. He looked over his list of customers and marked down Mr. Rend as a probable purchaser. So sure was he that Mr. Rend would buy that he made out a buy order in the merchant's name for 1,000 shares on Oct. 31, the day before the sale was made.

Mr. Rend was asked to come into the Chicago office of the company, Boyer said, and was shown the telegrams from New York, which stated that the bank would confirm the price of $450 a share and that this was a good opportunity for investors.

"I told him that he should buy," said Boyer. "He wasn't so keen at first, but finally said he would take 500 shares. Others in the office talked to him and he finally agreed to take 1,000 shares. There was no question in my mind about the strength of the bank or the company at that time.

Relates Subsequent Sales.

Boyer said on cross-examination that he received all the commissions of the sales to Rend and that he had made subsequent sales, amounting by Feb. 5, 1930, to 5,000 shares. He testified that he had bought 100 shares of the bank stock himself on an employés' subscription about this time.

The reading of Mr. Rend's deposition, made in May, 1934, a year before his death while he was ill in bed, was concluded during the morning.

The estate of Charles Rubens, retired manufacturer and philanthropist, was admitted to probate yesterday by Judge Martin C. Decker of the Lake county Probate court at Waukegan. It listed assets of $202,500, mostly personal property.

Mr. Rubens, who was 71 years old, was killed April 1 in an automobile accident in Los Angeles. He lived at 257 Moraine road, Highland Park.

His widow, Mrs. Pauline Meyer Rubens, was named executrix of the estate. A provision explained Mr. Rubens did not provide for his wife in the will because she has her own estate. He left $10,000 to the Jewish Charities, of which he was a former president. The remainder of the estate is divided equally among two daughters, Mrs. Katherine R. Loewenthal, Mrs. Margaret Weil, and a son Walter L., all of Highland Park.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Many listeners throughout Chicagoland yesterday followed rescue operations in the Nova Scotia mine disaster closely by keeping their receivers tuned to W-G-N and the Mutual network. Throughout Monday night and yesterday W-G-N—Mutual, coöperating with the Canadian radio commission, flashed last minute reports of the rescue work at half hour intervals directly from the scene of the mine disaster.

Regularly scheduled programs, including sponsored shows, were interrupted to bring reports of the rescue work.

The first bulletin was put on at 11:30 Monday night. Scheduled to leave the air at 1:30 a. m., W-G-N kept two control men—Wally Phillips and Kenneth Curtis—and the transmitter crew near Elgin on duty through the night until relieved at 7 a. m. by the daytime technicians.

The broadcasts were interrupted for a time yesterday afternoon while the crew at Moose River took a brief rest and then were resumed during the evening.

The mechanics of arranging such a series of broadcasts may be of interest. Canadian radio commission headquarters assigned Frank Willis, Halifax representative, to go to Moose River to handle the broadcast. Willis used a regular microphone which he set up in the bunkroom at the mine, plugging into an old fashioned fifteen party line telephone circuit. The bulletins were relayed to Halifax, 86 miles distant, and then to CRCM, Montreal, and put on the coast to coast Canadian network. In Canada a French rebroadcast was put on from Montreal after each pickup from the mine bunkhouse.

The Canadian pickup was fed to Mutual at Toledo, O., over permanent facilities which the two networks have for interchange of programs. Mutual circuits then carried the sound impulses to the master control of W-G-N in its new studio headquarters.

At each side of the control board is a receiver, one letting the operator hear what is on the air over W-G-N, the other what is on the Mutual circuit. If both W-G-N and the chain are carrying the same program the sounds will emanate from both receivers—except that if W-G-N is feeding Mutual a program, the Mutual receiver will bring in the sounds a fraction of a second later than on the W-G-N receiver because the impulses must travel over the round robin circuit of the network wires to the east and back before they are heard on the MBS loudspeaker.

When the operator heard a Nova Scotia bulletin coming in over Mutual he cut off the scheduled program and fed the W-G-N transmitter the Mutual report from Moose River.

Spring Dance at Saddle and Cycle Saturday

Club Members Anxious for Warm Weather.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE governors of the Saddle and Cycle club are tired of waiting for the weather to become springlike before starting their spring program of entertainment, so a spring dinner-dance is scheduled for next Saturday night at the popular club on the lake shore at Foster avenue.

The clubhouse is open all winter and it is seldom that there isn't some one there for luncheon or dinner, but it is during the months when the tennis courts and swimming pool can be used that the club really is enjoyed the most by members. During those months, especially during the warm weather, mothers often take their children to the club in the morning and stay all day, being joined for dinner by fathers, hot and tired after a day in the city, so to some fashionable city dwellers the Saddle and Cycle takes the place of a country club in hot weather.

Each year it seems as though the club would be pushed into the lake by the stream of trafic that pours constantly over the new road that threatens the privacy of the club, but so far the club, which antedates the Casino by twenty years, retains enough seclusion to enable it to still have the charm and simplicity that made it so popular with cyclists in the days when a trip to the Saddle was quite an expedition. Today one whirls up there for luncheon or dinner in no time practically, but in the early days it was different.

Ball Games Will Start Late in May.

The Thursday afternoon baseball games at the club will not start until late in May, when the first of the Thursday buffet suppers will be given, probably on May 28, and, of course, the pool will not be ready for use for a long time, but already the tennis courts have been used by some hardy ones. Among them are the Winfield Ellises, Lawrence Callahan, the Edward Herseys, the Benson Dushanes, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rogers, the Alec Kirks, and the Paget Cadys.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are busy entertaining a guest, the charming Mrs. Allie Chapman of New York, who arrived ten days ago to spend a couple of weeks in Chicago on her way home from a winter in St. Petersburg, Fla., where Mrs. Rogers and her children spent part of the winter. Mrs. Chapman's young son, Peter, is with her. Mrs. Rogers is giving a dinner for her guest Friday night and there are numerous other parties being given for her.

Gives Family Party Tonight for Kinney Smith's Fiancee.

Mrs. Kinney Smith is giving a family party tonight in the apartment at 1120 Lake Shore drive, which she and her son, Kinney, occupy for young Mr. Smith's bride-to-be, Mrs. Nicholas M. Harrison of Los Angeles, who is visiting her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis. Mrs. Harrison and the Otises' elder daughter, Mrs. Robert Burns, who also lives in Los Angeles, motored east last week to spend a week in Chicago visiting relatives and finding an apartment in which Mr. Smith and his bride will reside after their marriage in late May or early June. The wedding will take place at the residence of Mrs. Harrison's father, Roy Clinton Seeley, in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Smith's party will be most informal, but it will not be a small one, for the Smith-Clarke connections are wide and many, and all the members of the family want to meet "young Kinney's fiancée. Mrs. Smith is inviting her relatives for cocktails and a buffet supper.

Several other parties will be given for Mrs. Harrison while she is here.

A few evenings ago a gentleman at a dinner gave an epigrammatic and scholarly toast in Latin, and it brought to mind the 16th century toast Victor Elting quotes in his "Around the World," a diary printed and given to his friends after his trip last year. It was on the upper deck of the Stella Polaris, when she was anchored in a beautiful South sea island harbor one moonlight night, that a Britisher aboard gave the toast in Latin with a free translation as follows:

Toast—
Svanda—
Candidate—Inducement—
Present.

"If on my theme I rightly think,
There are five causes why men drink—
Good wine; a friend; because one's dry;
Or lest one should be by and by;
Or—any other reason why."

FROM the Albia [Iowa] Union Republican:

"Howdy, Voters. My many friends have not solicited me much to be a candidate for member of Monroe County Board of Supervisors for the term beginning Jan. 2, 1937, but I reckon I'll run anyway. Same old platform. Cyrus Hill."

THOSE who packed Mandel hall Monday night at the first performance of "Svanda" came away with the lovely fugue running through their heads, and memories of enchanting stage sets and costumes. That linden tree, in the first and last scenes, for instance, its top a bell-like structure made of a kind of translucent green cellophane silk, with little fuzzy yellow balls hanging in pairs all over the tree. [Every one in the music department of the University of Chicago, from Carl Bricken's secretary to the cymbal player, helped sew on the balls, including Mrs. Bricken, during rehersals.] The four adornments at the corners of the queen's throne were like wraiths of pillars, hanging in space and dwindling into nothing from their jeweled scimitar tops, and Svanda himself was an adventurer from a story book in his skin-tight apricot pants and gayly embroidered lether jerkin. "Svanda" will be given again tonight and tomorrow night. And if you, too, are wondering why it is spelled Svanda, when you remember that it was spelled "Schwanda" when the Metropolitan produced it several years ago, the answer is that the German libretto spelled it "Schwanda." Neither the Czechs nor the Slovaks use the combination "sch" in their grammar and their alphabets do not contain the letter "W." A small mark over the "S" gives it an "sh" sound. The opera is being given in English at Mandel hall for the first time in America. The translator, Libushka Bartusek, was among the guests at the gay party the Brickens and Mrs. Ernest Freund gave after the opening.

A letter from a hotel in Amsterdam received by Ramona Gibbons Hayes advertises rates for "3 very amusing and careless days." Exactly what a holiday tourist is looking for. We remember three very amusing and careless days once ourselves, but it wasn't in Amsterdam. That was the time we missed our train because a sign painter was working on a sign on the wall across the street and we waited just a minute too long to see if the gigantic letter he was working on was going to turn out to be an R or a B.

A man who acts as chauffeur to an employer to whom he is devoted went into a deep study early last December over what he could give him for a Christmas present. What could he give his employer—a man powerful, rich, of cultivated tastes? Finally he made up his mind. He gave him a signed pledge never to touch a drop of liquor, because to do so might possibly, at some time or in some situation, endanger the employer's life.

New Exhibition Gets Attention on Four Counts

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibition making four distinct appeals has opened in the Chicago Galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue. For the lover of animals there is a stunning group of paintings of sheep, dogs, horses, pigs, cats, and cattle by Eugénie Glaman.

For those who haunt Wisconsin trout streams and pine forests there is a group of brilliant landscapes by Florence White Williams.

For the lover of the far north with its magnificent autumn trees and wide expanses of burnished lakes there are the landscapes by John A. Spelman, and for those who take pleasure in fanciful and decorative pictures there is the group of water colors by Julius Moessel.

Julius Moessel has been given the little room, and he has hung the walls with the most delicious and sensitive of studies. There are penguins in somber black and white, like deaf mutes at a funeral; there is a turtle balanced on a string, and there is a monkey investigating a butterfly.

In the large gallery hang the paintings of the other three artists. Florence White Williams shows a number of little sketches and a larger number of bigger canvases. Her flower still lifes are decorative and intriguing. Her Wisconsin landscapes, however, supply the main theme of the exhibit.

"Birches on Star Lake" is particularly well done; it is a delightful sketch. The "Herons" are impressive.

John Spelman has never painted a more beautiful canvas [and he has painted many] than "Tom Lake," with its silvered sky and water frozen to immobility by the approach of rain. "Benson's Fish House" is another beauty.

Eugénie Glaman has no superior in the painting of sheep. The sheep pictures in her current exhibit are brilliantly done.

"Emerald Block" is a pieced pattern designed to illustrate in quilt form the beauty of that precious stone for which it was named. Varying shades of green are used for the several hues of the spectrum found when light strikes the stone. This is another of those entirely pieced blocks which are extremely simple to set together. The blocks are assembled in an alternate arrangement of pieced and plain squares.

Saroya's Voice and Beauty Fit 'La Tosca' Role

BY EDWARD BARRY.

"La Tosca" sounded dangerously modern last night after the San Carlo Opera company's "Traviata" of Monday. Another large, friendly audience crowded the Auditorium to applaud the highly dramatic Puccini music and the vocal and histrionic ability of the singers selected for the cast.

Although the orchestral and chorus parts are much more taxing than those of the Verdi work, there was a noticeable increase in power and confidence in these two divisions over the performance of the previous evening. The eloquent, searching music that rises so effectively out of the pit to accompany not only the words but even the thoughts of the characters had convincing strength when the drama called for such an effect and a nice lyricism in the more sentimental sequences of the play.

The chorus did a sturdy job of the closing scene of the first act. To Carlo Peroni, as conductor, went the task of coördinating the work of all the divisions of his forces.

Bianca Saroya, a leading soprano of the San Carlo Opera company, received a cordial welcome when she walked on the stage in all the finery of Tosca for her first appearance of the spring engagement. Her statuesque beauty fits her well for the part. More important still, her voice has a poignant femininity about it which helps to make convincing the curious, contradictory character of the Roman singer whose rôle she must enact.

Dimitri Onofrei, who sang Alfredo in "Traviata," came back twenty-four hours later to portray the young painter, Cavaradossi. Like every member of this well routined company, he is able to turn out on short notice from one impersonation to another and turn in satisfactory performances of many disparate rôles.

Mario Valle, a terrifying Scarpia with a rich, full voice and a commanding stage presence, dominates the scene as long as he is on the stage. Like any wise artist, Valle accepts the part in all its harshness and power, not trying by any vocal tricks to make the evil baron anything but what the librettist and composer intended him to be.

Ina Bourskaya, announced for Suzuki in this afternoon's "Butterfly," will not be able to join the San Carlo company here until Sunday. On that night she takes the title rôle in "Carmen."

The Chicago Association of Commerce Glee club, under the gentle and knowing direction of Arthur Dunham, sang its annual spring concert in Orchestra hall last night. Over a hundred men, banded together through their mutual liking for the ancient art of concerted singing, gave a highly creditable performance of their own numbers and used the occasion to present three soloists.

Richard Wheeler, a seventeen year old baritone who won the contest conducted in the high schools by the Association of Commerce, turned out to be the possessor of a nicely textured voice with great possibilities. Wesley Summerfield aroused a great deal of enthusiasm through a liberal admixture of pleasant personality with good singing.

Russell Foster is a quiet baritone who did a thoroughly satisfactory job of the familiar "Gypsy Love Song." He is evidently well routined in group singing.

Parents Unite for Battle on Freddie's Aunt

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—[Special.]—Parents of Freddie Bartholomew, the $1,000 a week juvenile actor, today made a temporary joint move to oust the boy's "Aunt Cis" as his legal guardian. Complications between the father, in England, and the mother now here, presumably will be taken up if "Aunt Cis" is ousted.

Herman A. Bailie, an attorney, made his first appearance in the Bartholomew custody and screen salary affairs with notice he represented only the father, Cecil Bartholomew, and the male parent's interests. Attorney Leonard Meyberg made it equally clear that, although he was joining with the father's lawyer in the common move against continued guardianship of Miss Myllicent Mary Bartholomew, he represents only the mother's interests.

The boy's parental grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bartholomew Sr., who arrived from England three days ago, have no attorney and no active part in the case, having come to reside with their daughter and grandson who had lived with them in England since his babyhood.

Attorneys Dan O'Shea and Felix Cunningham induced Superior Judge Archibald to postpone start of the custody hearings until tomorrow. Attorneys for both the father and mother insist that Miss Myllicent Bartholomew, whom Freddie calls "Aunt Cis," never was given their legal consent to take the boy from England to Hollywood.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Unless you've been sitting in your refrigerator for the last few days you'll appreciate the fact that it isn't too early in the season to talk about deodorants. When the hot weather has definitly arrived you probably won't need us to remind you of them—and right now, when it's muggier than you expect weather to be, you're apt to forget.

You probably have a pet of your own, one you've found perfect for your individual needs. If you haven't there is a mild, delicately perfumed one [it has the cool scent of violets] that you'll undoubtedly like. It suppresses excessive perspiration and does away completely with the odor that is such an indictment against personal daintiness.

There are two reasons why we like this. The perfume appeals to us, for one thing. For another, it's a mild deodorant—one that can, so far as we have been able to determine, be used by women with sensitive skin. It is, perhaps, not as high powered as some of the stronger deodorants, but neither is it harsh. Not that all the strong deodorants are, but sometimes skin sensitiveness makes them difficult for some women to use.

This one can be used several times a day if necessary. It doesn't harm the clothing. It can be used as an item of the freshing-up rite in the course of a day or evening simply by sprinkling a few drops in the palm of the hand and applying. The faint perfume of violets and the knowledge that it destroys the odor of perspiration gives you a sense of well being. ELEANOR NANGLE.

For Street or Travel

A street and travel ensemble, from a Chicago shop. A long dark blue wool coat extremely soft of texture is lined with the same bright printed silk as the dress. A high demure neckline is tied to achieve fullness under the chin. Costume accessories are of matching deep blue lether. The Breton sailor hat is of blue straw.

Debut Costume of 1889 Is Hit of Style Show

BY BETTY BROWNING.

The ivory net gown in which Mrs. Charles W. Dempster as Mary Gillette was presented to society in 1889 at her mother's home on South Michigan avenue "stole the show" at the White Elephant Rummage shop's tea yesterday at the Casino.

Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., was charming in the dress, with its almost modern silhouette of tiny puffed sleeves, low square neck and tight bodice.

Following her in the parade of old and new fashions that was a feature of the tea was Mrs. Roy Flannery, demure in a balloon sleeved dress of black net over chartreuse silk, embroidered with sprigs of flowers.

Mrs. Jacob Baur, wearing elephant earrings, introduced the models, describing Mrs. Flannery as "a lamb in a leg o' mutton," and Mrs. Orville E. Babcock Jr., in a mauve decade tea gown "as a symphony in lavender and old lace."

A quaint pair of candelabra, adorned with nosegays, given Mrs. Eliphalet W. Cramer by her husband at the time of their marriage was among the many lovely articles on display that had served as tickets of admission to the tea. These are to be sold at the shop.

Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt, who came with her daughter, Mrs. T. Philip Swift, brought two unusual gazelle candlesticks, and Mrs. George S. Payson contributed four Colonial cups and saucers that had been in her family for years. Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, becomingly bronzed after her winter in Florida, brought a mirror and ashtrays.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. William Sabath of 5124 Greenwood avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte Jean, to Harry D. Wintergreen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wintergreen of 5516 Drexel boulevard.

Shops Present Remedies for Spring Fever

White Accessories a Big Help to Patients.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There are lots of things to buy and wear that will keep spring fever under control. You can get white accessories, such as spanking white gloves, bags, belts, white trimmed hats and fresh white blouses to top spring green suits. Green and white prints are abundant, ready for the buying needs of the clever "make your own" shoppers.

You can buy some of the best looking white sweater twins, pale green numbers, and soft blue and pink pastel duets, for amazingly low price tags.

You can slip your feet into all the many new street slippers that are not anything more than a clever arrangement of patent lether straps. These come in dubonnet, red, in gray, in bright blue, in leaf green, ginger brown, and also dark colors.

For these open sandals you will want the newest flippancies in spring hosiery. Wait till you see them! They'll take all your extra cash unless you can resist them better than we did. Copper colored stockings have all white feet, so that the revealing toe sections of the slippers show the white toes. The short, square-cut heels are white. Or you can go to town in suntan-toned hosiery with red toes, heels and feet, or match a bright blue or green pair of slippers with stockings that have feet, toes, and heels the same shade of the blue or green footgear. If this isn't foot-news, to keep you busy and happy, what is?

For the brides . . . a luscious shade called "blossom" to wear with the wedding gown on the big day. It is positively delectable, faint pinky-white like a fruit ice. It's a big change from all-white, flesh, or pale copper. It's just lovely in faint pale-pink and is the most perfect color for white or ivory satin wedding gowns that has ever been unpacked.

Fashion photograph . . . for street wear as well as travel! Gayly printed silk, with blue the predominating color, is matched to a stunning soft wool coat. The same silk of the dress lines the coat and faces back the unusual collar and lapels. Coat is of a blue not quite as dark as navy, the accessories are blue and the young looking Breton sailor hat is of transparent blue straw. The entire ensemble is available in a Chicago shop.

Her Husband's Past

By Elizabeth York Miller

SYNOPSIS.

Nell Martin meets and falls in love with Eric Cameron from London, an older divorced man, who is visiting in Wellsport. She ignores her parents' pleas to forget him and accept Dick Holmes, her childhood sweetheart.

INSTALMENT III.
A DARING IDEA.

"You mean that you're going to forbid my seeing Mr. Cameron again?" Nell had turned deathly white.

"Egzac'ly what I do mean. Here's a decent young chap as wants to marry you—a chap as we know and his father afore him. You've known Dick all your life, Nellie——"

"O, yes," Nell said with a hysterical gasp. "I think he was 7 and I was getting on for 10 when I had to wipe his nose for him in Sunday school."

"Nellie!"

"It's all right, mums. I know you'll see it my way when you've had a little time to get used to the idea. You might as well know now, all of you, that it doesn't matter a bit what you say—I am going to marry Eric Cameron."

Having thrown down this challenge, Nell stalked out of the room. She didn't want any supper, thank you!

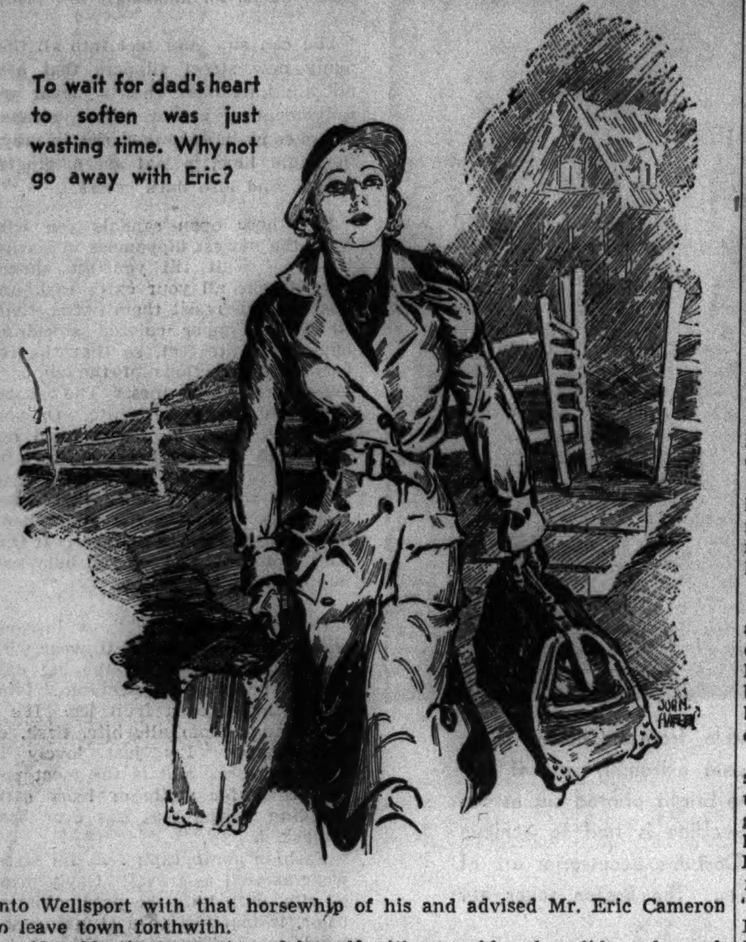
Perhaps reduced to cold bare facts, Dick's tale about Eric was true.

Eric might have got through a lot of money, but that had happened to plenty of other people, and not necessarily through folly nor dishonor. His wife might have divorced him, instead of dying respectably. He had said so little about her; only that he had "lost" her five years ago.

"I'm old enough to know my own mind," Nell told herself very fiercely. "I'm not exactly a child."

Nell had anticipated opposition, but nothing like what actually happened.

Fortunately—or unfortunately, as you choose to look at it—her father was laid up with a sharp go of lumbago. Attacks of that painful malady were apt to seize him suddenly. Otherwise, he said, he would have gone into Wellsport with that horsewhip of his and advised Mr. Eric Cameron to leave town forthwith.



To wait for dad's heart to soften was just wasting time. Why not go away with Eric?

Mrs. Martin never showed herself without reddened eyelids and a sodden handkerchief. Nell felt like a murderer.

She loved them both so much but it did seem as though they were bent upon breaking her heart.

They said they only wanted her "happiness."

Heavens, but she was sick of that word!

In a queer dim way she knew that happiness had nothing to do with her feeling for Eric Cameron. Life with him might hold sorrow and privation, perhaps sheer downright misery—but it would be life. And without him it would be nothing but a blank.

Besides, it was her own life. She had a right to ruin it for herself if she wanted to. That at least would be more satisfactory than letting other people ruin it in their way.

On the third day a letter came from him.

Nell went up to her own room and locked the door before opening the envelope. Her hands were trembling so that at first she could hardly hold the pages.

Perhaps he was going to tell her that it had all been a mistake; perhaps Dick would have managed to make some more mischief.

But, no!

> My very own darling: This is getting awful. What has happened? Are you barricaded on bread and water? The dreadful idea occurred to me that perhaps you don't love me as much as you thought. I'm not good enough for you and I know it, but that doesn't prevent my wanting you like blazes.
> All the same, I think you ought to have a decent chance to change your mind. Can't stand this sitting around waiting for the postman or a call to the phone, so I'm off to London by the evening train tomorrow. When your father feels he can stand the sight of me, wire to 67, Lillis Gardens, Hampstead, and I'll come flying.
> Darling, I love you—love you—love you. If only you were my wife now—this very minute. But that can't be until I've had it out with your dad—and even more so with you, because after all, it's you who'll have the last word.
> My darling, I love you. ERIC.

Well, that was all right, anyway, bless him!

Nell pressed the letter to her heart and a trembling sense of warmth stole over her. Eric didn't know that already she had heard the worst about him.

And he was going away this very evening. The letter was written yesterday. Nell knew the train. It was the 7:17 from Wellsport and got into London a little after 9.

A daring idea took hold of her.

To wait for dad's heart to soften was just wasting time.

Why not go away with Eric?

Only he might refuse to let her if she consulted him.

Nell had a little hoard she was saving towards a car of her own, over fifty pounds which she had gathered from various sources, mostly egg and butter money. She counted it over anxiously. Secretly she packed the best of her clothing into a couple of suitcases, and spent the rest of the day waiting her chance.

She was not at all happy, but she was determined. Dad and mums would forgive her, of course, only it did seem a rotten trick to play on them. When she wrote a little note of farewell, the paper was blotted with tears.

"I'm going up now to settle dad for the night," Mrs. Martin said, all unsuspecting of what was afoot. "You might lay the table for supper."

"I've already laid it," Nell replied.

She dared not kiss her mother. She would break down if she did and give herself away. In the effort to keep her emotions under control her voice sounded a little cold.

Mrs. Martin sighed and turned towards the stairs.

She had to walk very fast, for the bus to Tewbury Junction was due in twenty minutes. The train stopped at the junction which was about six miles beyond Wellsport. From there on it was an express all the way to London. She had decided it would be better to get onto the train at Tewbury Junction than at Wellsport.

The suitcases were heavy, but she reached the bus stop in time, and she had bought her ticket and was on the station platform before the train was signaled.

As it steamed in she ran along the carriages looking for Eric, a porter following with the cases.

Yes, there he was, alone in a third class smoker, engrossed with his pipe and a newspaper. The very sight of that clear cut profile with the touch of frost at the temples sent a thrill over her. She had never known that love could be such agonized delight.

"In here, porter!"

She gave the man sixpence and climbed into the carriage.

Eric did not look up until the train had started. When he saw her he dropped his pipe and stared as though she had been a ghost.

Maynard Joins MovieCowboys in Circus Life

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—[Special.]—When Ken Maynard bought an entire circus in Houston, Tex., recently, it marked the plunge of more than half the one-time famous Cahuenga Boulevard cowboy gang into the itinerant show business. Tom Mix and Buck Jones already were circus proprietors. Tom McCoy has just left to start a career with still another tent show. Hoot Gibson had become a promoter of Wild West rodeos in southern California. And each of these movie headliners has a retinue of riders and ropers traveling with him.

In fact, the change in Hollywood's status from permanent cowboy encampment to mere stopping place on the summer show circuit is reflected in the horses available for film scenes. Chester Franklin at Paramount tried to line up 500 ponies to run as a herd in "Wilderness," a new outdoor nature drama with animals as the main actors. Franklin looked over 400 horses and found only 12 he can use.

Maynard bought an entire tent and animal show—the Christies Brothers circus—and found himself owner of leopards, lions, tigers, zebras, snakes, buffaloes, elephants, bears, monkeys, baboons, and ostriches. He has fifteen cars and twenty-three circus wagons.

"The menagerie is nice," Maynard says "but what I want to do is build up the best wild west show ever gathered." To this end he is opening his performances at his own Diamond K ranch in San Fernando valley, not far out of Hollywood, on May 2. "I'm not quitting films," he said, "but I sincerely believe the kids in the United States are entitled to one bang up, riproaring wild west show with Indians, stage coach holdups, shooting, riding, roping and branding acts. That's what I want to give them."

Maynard's down payment for this show was $100,000. One of his animals is Tarzan, Nubian lion that bit Charlie Bickford, the film star, during filming of "East of Java" last September. Tarzan must spend the rest of his life in a cage for that error; until then he was rated as a "good tame" lion. Charles Bernard Murphy, for many years head trainer at the Universal movie zoo and the handler of "Tarzan" when the lion bit Bickford, is one of Maynard's head circus trainers.

Jean and Judith Kircher, year old twins with Katharine Hepburn in "Mary of Scotland" not only act as each other's doubles and stand-ins, but they have a joint assistant stand in, which is a big doll. The babies were chosen for the film rôle of the infant Prince James because they have the "Stuart mouth" and "Stuart forehead" meaning a cupid's bow with full under lip and quite a high brow.

Frances Drake announces "I never will marry" in response to questions about her name being linked with Howard Hughes and Henry Wilcoxon. Frances further explains, "I won't marry because the thought of divorce makes me ill."

Louise Latimer was asked by Radio studio to take off a little weight for the lead opposite Owen Davis Jr. in "His Majesty Bunker Bean." She finally showed up weighing 98 pounds, ten pounds less than normal and was asked to drink enough milk to get back over the 100 mark.

Spring Dance at Saddle and Cycle Saturday

the historical fashion parade the Vassar Alumnæ club is putting on as one feature of its supper-dance Saturday night at the Vassar House restaurant, are more than pleased at the number of clothes that has been sent them to be modeled during the evening. Mrs. Harry Lord Wells has loaned two dresses, one which she wore to carry the daisy chain in 1902, and another which she wore for her graduation in 1904.

Mrs. Arthur D. Welton, who, like Mrs. Wells, the former Helen Kohlsaat, carried the daisy chain during her sophomore year, has loaned a bathing suit, a relic of the nineties, and Mrs. Lila Beers of the class of '94 is sending two dresses that she wore in her college days.

A little more modern, but probably twice as funny as these styles of another day, are the gym suit lent by Mrs. W. E. Ullman, who exercised in it during the early years of the war, and several prom dresses of the short skirted, long waisted period. These frocks which seem so ungainly now have been loaned by Mrs. George Jaeger Jr., and Miss Antoinette Lackner, who included a doeskin plaited skirt and long Vionnet blouse, hemstitched across the top, an outfit worn by every Vassar student during the height of its popularity.

Lecture to Benefit Infant Welfare.

The junior auxiliary of the Glencoe Center of the Infant Welfare society is presenting the second of a series of three lectures on current events at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Glencoe Union church. Clifton Utley will be the speaker.

Dr. Horace J. Bridges will lecture on "The Struggle for Self-Respect" at 11 o'clock this morning in the residence of Mrs. Norman B. Johnson, 202 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston. The lecture is the second in a series of four being given as a benefit for the Cradle.

Mrs. Howard Linn will not be at home in time to attend the luncheon at Crockford's today, at which plans for the Lake Forest Garden club's flower show will be discussed, for she is not expected at her home in Lake Bluff until tomorrow or Friday. She landed last Friday in New York from a stay in England and Ireland.

Mrs. J. Andrews King, Mrs. John H. Hamline Jr., and Mrs. Lawrence Williams Jr. will be hostesses at the luncheon today. The flower show will be held on May 29, 30, and 31 at Walden, the Cyrus Hall McCormicks' estate in Lake Forest.

The committee in charge of the Madonna Center dance to be held on May 9 at the Stevens hotel will give a tea and cocktail party this afternoon at the Chicago Athletic association for the junior and floor committees.

Grove House Plans Rummage Sale.

The board of Grove House for Convalescents is collecting all sorts of articles preparatory to holding its rummage sale on Wednesday, April 29, at 615 Davis street, Evanston. The sale will be conducted from 8 to 5.

Articles for the sale may be left at the Davis street address on Monday or Tuesday of next week, or they will be called for by Mrs. Frederick W. Coburn in Evanston, Mrs. Ralph H. Hobart in Winnetka, and Mrs. Arthur T. Galt in Chicago.

Mrs. James L. Houghteling, chairman of the board, is having a tea tomorrow at her home in Winnetka for members of the committees which are arranging for the sale. Mrs. Howard Stone and Mrs. Charles Goodrich are general chairmen.

Woman's City Club Wants Citizen Group to Pick Policewomen

The Woman's City club will seek to have a citizens' committee appointed to supervise the examination for the 25 policewomen to be added to the city force.

Mrs. C. L. Hagerman, civil service chairman, told fellow members of the club at the annual meeting yesterday that the examinations contemplated at present are inadequate and give undue advantage to temporary political appointees already serving as policewomen. The City club plan will be presented to Mayor Kelly and the civil service commission.

Distinctive for Juveniles

CHILD'S FROCK.

This little juvenile frock has a most distinctive name, Princess Elizabeth, and has chic in every line, but it is exceedingly simple to make. The skirt is generously flared and the bodice is nicely fitted. There are two versions of this dress. In the upper illustration it is sleeveless and collarless, and has a tiny pocket on the skirt. In the lower sketch it adopts flattering puffed sleeves, so attractive on the plump arms of the youngest fashionable set, and a gracefully ruffled collar with a tiny bow.

Brief panties accompany this little frock and the pattern includes provision for making them. They are cut well up on either side, making them comfortable, neat, and simple to sew.

Cotton materials are especially acceptable for this frock. The collar may be of any soft fabric in a shade to harmonize with that of the dress, or it may be of white. For the collarless model, color contrast may be achieved by the use of binding.

Style No. 2830 is designed for sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¼ yards of 35 inch material, with 5¼ yards of binding for the dress and ⅞ yard of 35 inch material for panties. The dress with collar requires 2 yards of 39 inch material, with ⅛ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Brushing the Hair Upward Is the Latest Coiffure Trend

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The coiffure news is the same news that has been going around for months now, and described in the simple phrase: "Brush up the hair!" Comb it up probably would apply to more women, since brushing unfortunately is not the usual daily practice.

Sure enough, hair still is seen on tres chic heads, floating down the neckline in back. In spite of this concession, however, the brushed up look is attained somehow, somewhere, and around the face, surely, where hair runs riot in the back. The neck waves and curls belong to the younger group. The chic older woman does not indulge in this girlhood fancy. The back dressing of her hair, true, may be smart with wave and curl, but there still is the uptrend to the back creation.

The front of the head now appears to be doing the most uplift experimenting. That trying style in which the hair is parted in the middle and brushed up, ending in two wicked little curls like satyr's horns, is seen for formal wear. But one thing you can set down as gospel: the smart woman's front hairline is combed up and off the brow and sides down to the ear.

I wish more women would practice before a mirror this trick of lifting years off the face with that up and back brushing in front. One sees women everywhere clinging to that straight down line from temples to below the ear lobes. It is virtually a straight line, too, that they achieve.

I would urge women who still are guilty of this line to sit down in front of the mirror and work the hair back and up toward the crown from the temple line. Even this one centered lift of the hair does things to the face that are flattering, and younger looking. This process gives a clean, fresh, uncluttered effect characteristic of youth. Farther down on each side the back and up brushing or combing may be continued. If the ear won't stand complete exposure, half of it will, or just the ear lobe showing gives a certain youthfulness. Then let the back dressing come back of the ears, not forward for that frowsy, ungroomed, and out of date "ends" finish.

BY MARY MEADE.

Parties for small folks, while a subject on which we've written frequently, often figure prominently in our mail bag as puzzled young mothers ask how best to celebrate their pre-school children's birthdays. They want novelty, but not too much of it. Excitement, but the right kind of excitement. Simple foods with a "party" touch.

Child psychologists agree that children's party food should be served at regular mealtime, either at noon or in the late afternoon. They recommend simple foods which the youngsters already know and like, dressed up for eye appeal. The main part of the meal should be nutritious and easily digested, while the dessert, which makes the party for most youngsters, should be festive without being overly rich or overly complicated.

Tomato Juice
Macaroni and Cheese in Tiny Ramekins
Buttered Carrot Balls
Cut-out Sandwiches with Chopped Cabbage Filling
Lemon Rice Rennet-Custard Dessert
Butter Cookies
Milk

The carrot balls are cut from cooked whole carrots with a French vegetable cutter and then buttered. They may be arranged, if desired, on a gay green nest of chopped cooked spinach. The sandwiches, after filling, are cut out with any good-sized fancy cookie cutter. And the dessert, with its lemon rennet-custard base, has a hint of novelty for the child who knows plain baked rice pudding all too well. Serve it in little sherbet glasses with a lace paper frill around the edge to please the eye, as well as the palate, of the smallest guest.

Lemon Rice Rennet-Custard Dessert

- ⅓ cup uncooked rice
- 1 pint milk
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons cream
- 1 package lemon rennet-custard powder

Wash rice and cook in two quarts of boiling salted water until tender, about 20 minutes. Rinse and steam over boiling water until grains are fluffy. Divide among six sherbet cups which have been trimmed with frills made from outer edges of lace paper doilies. [Drop rice in loosely.] Combine milk, cream and sugar, and heat to lukewarm. Stir in rennet custard powder and, when dissolved, pour over rice. Let stand ten minutes without moving, then set in refrigerator to chill. Garnish with washed raisins and a scroll of meringue, if desired.

Day at Home Opens Program of Youth Week

Public attention was focused upon the 600,000 young people of Chicago yesterday as the city opened its 11th annual observance of national Youth week.

The week, which will continue through Monday, with each day devoted to a special youth interest, has the twofold objective of intensifying youth activities and of concentrating attention upon the work being done for young persons.

Yesterday, designated "home day," was picked out by the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers for the issuance of a "stay at home" mandate to parents, who were asked to devote the evening to the interests of their children.

Throughout the week the problems of youth will be heard at civic and club gatherings.

A Dessert for Child's Birthday Party

A simple, dress-up dessert for the small child's birthday party—that's this delicate lemon rennet-custard version of an old fashioned rice pudding! It can be made in 20 minutes.

Mother Can't Expect to Be a Free Agent

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Of course, if you're going to think of your small child as a nuisance, nearly everything he'll do will annoy you. If you expect your life and all your small personal affairs to go on after your baby comes as they did when you were a "free agent," then most of the things your little boy or girl does will irritate you beyond endurance.

To be a mother and to have the hourly—and twenty-four hour—care of a small one, is so utterly different an existence from your previous state that if you don't accept it with a good grace—or shall I say a happy grace—you're headed for trouble. I may as well warn you.

When your baby is small, and food and sleep are his chief needs, you may be able to get along with this impersonal "I'm not going to let my baby turn my life upside down," sort of attitude. But you can't get away with it when this baby begins to be a person. Then you have to make room for him in your life if you expect things to go well. Primarily, that means making time for him.

You have to make room for him in your home, too. And by that, I don't mean plan him a pretty nursery with ruffly curtains and wall paper all full of Mother Goose pictures, and the dinky little doo-dads which decorators who don't know the needs of children, design. No, I mean by that "making room for him in your home." You have to consider that your house is also his home, and it must be geared to his needs—in cleanliness, in decoration, and in the freedom he may be allowed in it. But more of this particular aspect of the subject tomorrow.

According to CULBERTSON

ENTRY TROUBLE.

"Entry trouble" is one of the most prevalent of all bridge maladies and is responsible for the painful death of many a contract. It is particularly vicious because it is so difficult to anticipate and guard against in the bidding. Often a perfectly legitimate contract goes on the rocks for lack of one vital entry.

At other times the trouble is more apparent than real. Entries not always are aces and kings; not always plainly visible. If a desperate need exists a declarer must go to great lengths to discover an entry that may be lurking in the bushes.

The penurious policy of conserving a high card, when to do so cost him an entry in the dummy, accounted for the declarer's defeat in the hand shown below:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 no trp	Pass	3 no trp [final bid]

South's opening bid probably was motivated by the fact that he considered himself a player far superior to his partner. His play of the contract did not verify this opinion. North's raise was slightly shaded; he, too, probably admired South's game.

West opened the fourth highest spade, dummy played low, and East put up the ace. Now, on the first trick, declarer made a fatal error—he followed with a low spade. East, after serious consideration of the bidding, made the good return of the heart jack. Declarer won and led the ace and another diamond. But he now was playing a lost cause. West ducked the second diamond, East won with the king and continued hearts. When the third round of diamonds lost to West's queen two good hearts promptly were cashed and the contract was down one trick.

Had South's excellent opinion of himself [as indicated by his unorthodox two no trump opening bid] been warranted he would have brought home not eight but ten tricks! The king of spades should have been thrown on East's ace with neatness and dispatch. It was apparent that if East should shift to hearts, two entries in the dummy would be necessary to establish the diamond suit before both heart stoppers were removed. In other words, South could not afford to give up two diamond tricks and the only logical method of establishing the suit with one trick loss was to lead twice from the dummy, finessing each time in the closed hand.

With the king of spades out of the way South could have finessed dummy's ten for one of those vital entries. As a matter of fact there would have been only a slight risk in this procedure, since East hardly would have put up the ace, holding the jack as well.

With the favorable adverse lay of diamonds the proper method of play would have given South two spade, two heart, four diamond, and two club tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Has the 4-5 no trump convention been superseded by the new asking bids?

Answer: No! Both now are integral parts of the Culbertson system. They do not conflict with each other; each has its separate and vital sphere.

So Skinny He was Ashamed to Go Swimming!
...BUT HE GAINED 30 LBS. QUICKLY ON KELPAMALT -NOW FEELS GREAT!

The Kelpamalt Co.
Gentlemen:
I had been skinny since childhood. Last September was my 19th birthday so you see how long I had been skinny. Most every Sunday the kids in the neighborhood would go swimming. I did not go with them. I suppose they knew why. I was ashamed of my skinny body. I was nervous, too. Even when I went to town or to picnics in summer I was ashamed to have my sleeves rolled up like the other fellows did. A few months ago when I was up town I stepped on a pair of scales. I weighed about 120 pounds and me a young man going on twenty. I thought of the future—would I always be skinny? I had saw Kelpamalt advertised in the papers and magazines so I bought a bottle. I was sure amazed at how much I gained and how much better I felt. I bought 4 more bottles. Over two months have passed. I have gained better than 30 pounds. You don't know how much better I feel and look and how thankful I am for what Kelpamalt has done for me. I would not take a hundred dollars for what Kelpamalt has done for me, if I could not get any more.
So I am going to thank Kelpamalt and the Kelpamalt Company for what their sea minerals has done for me.
Yours very truly,
LESTER D. CURLESS,
R. No. 1, Box 42
Astoria, Illinois.

Read How New SEA-PLANT IODINE Strengthens Blood and Glands—Adds Lbs. Quick! Men and Women Everywhere Amazed at Results.

Seedol Kelpamalt, the new natural mineral concentrate from the sea—richest source of NATURAL IODINE—gets right down and corrects one of the real underlying causes of weakness, skinniness and nervous, rundown conditions—IODINE STARVED GLANDS. When these glands don't work properly all the food in the world can't help you. It just isn't turned into flesh. The result is you stay weak and nervous, tired out and skinny.

The most important gland—the one which actually controls body weight and strength-building—needs a definite ration of iodine all the time—natural assimilable iodine (not to be confused with chemical iodides which often prove toxic). Only when the system gets an adequate supply of iodine can you regulate metabolism—the body's process of converting digested foods into firm flesh, new strength and energy. Seedol Kelpamalt contains 1300 times more iodine than oysters, once considered the best source. Try Seedol Kelpamalt for one week. Notice how much better you feel, sleep and eat—watch at least five husky new pounds appear. You will have increased strength and energy, freedom from nervousness. Results absolutely guaranteed or the trial is free. Seedol Kelpamalt costs little to use.

It's these combined qualities that make the purchase of them at their customary higher prices worth while and at $1.50 downright bargains.

The tailors of London's west-end, held up to us as the peers of their craft, would be hard put to find a flaw in the line and flare of these raglan topcoats, or find them shy of any of the numerous details that distinguish this style of coat, unbeatable for its comfort and swagger. What these fabrics have become accustomed to in the way of fine hand tailoring treatment abroad they have been lavishly subjected to here, and every coat in the collection makes a point of emphasizing that in fit and drape.

New Designing Gets the Best Out of a Good Idea

Of all the new ideas in underwear that have come out, the French type shorts that appeared last year showed the most promise as the most likely to succeed in providing a greater degree of comfort. In that they succeeded, but they had one fault—they were too short in the leg. Now that that fault has been overcome, nothing should keep you from them and to urge you on, there's the special price, 3 for $1.25.

10,000 WOMEN BRAVE COLD TO ATTEND GOLF SCHOOL

PROS UNMASK MYSTERIES OF STANCE, GRIP

Tomorrow's Classes Open to All.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The rules of golf include no penalty whereby the weather man may be disqualified. But the enthusiastic response of more than 10,000 pupils who attended the first class of THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual free golf school last night proved a true golf fan will not be stopped by the weather man's worst; not even by one of the rawest late April evenings Chicago ever has experienced.

JOCK ANDERSON.

Women and girls—10,000 of them—came to the courses of the Chicago Park district and the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association to learn their golfing A B C's from the instructors of the Illinois P. G. A. They came in fur coats, windbreakers, and in clothing more suited to a post season football game. But they were there, and they stayed for the hour's instruction which opened the fourth season of the biggest group instruction plan in the history of the game.

Go Co-educational Thursday.

It was the fact of their presence that amazed the instructors. For several hours yesterday officials of the school, who have had to contend with unfavorable weather more than once in the first three years of the school, were on the verge of postponing the opening lesson, but recalled the hundreds who attended last year's first class in spite of similar conditions. They decided not to disappoint those who wanted to appear, despite the marrow chilling temperature.

When they arrived at their classrooms, the instructors, particularly those in the parks, where officials had built platforms for loud speakers supplied by THE TRIBUNE, found thousands instead of hundreds, and the fourth school was under way.

Because of the eagerness of last night's pupils, and in justice to those women who were unable to attend because of the weather, the next lesson scheduled for men tomorrow on the same courses, will be a combined one, to which all women and girl pupils are invited along with their husbands, brothers, and sweethearts. The lesson will start at the same hour as last night, 7 o'clock.

Walsh Boys Are Hot.

Gratified by the turnout, the professionals, just as thoroughly chilled as their classes, warmed up to their work of the first lesson—the grip—and in many cases amplified this to tips on the stance and swing.

Jackson park, long one of the city's best known courses, drew the largest class of the evening, 2,000. Here Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, a pioneer in the school, addressed the students while his brother, Frank, of Bryn Mawr, Illinois P. G. A. champion, gave an exhibition of shots with the wood clubs. The Irish wit of the Walshes, interspersed with a number of tips on grip, stance, and swing, held the crowd's interest for more than the scheduled hour. The pupils then were given expert individual in-

Who Is Going to Beat Wilson in Olympic Boxing Trials?

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Can any amateur boxer whip George Jackie Wilson at 112 pounds? Chicago fans watched Jackie win the Golden Gloves flyweight championship. Twenty thousand New Yorkers saw him win an intercity Golden Gloves title in Madison Square Garden, and last week Cleveland, Wilson's home town, cheered as he swept through the ranks of the National A. A. U. contenders to the featherweight championship.

Wilson, 18 years of age, has been fighting less than eight months. He has won six tournaments in that time. He has not been defeated since losing a close bout last November

The National Golden Gloves tournament which starts in Chicago May 7 at the International Amphitheater, will be Jackie's supreme test. He will fight May 7, again on May 8 [if he wins] and if still successful, he will have qualified for the National Golden Gloves and Olympic trial finals at the Stadium May 20.

No Soft Touches.

Wilson's closest match may be in the first round at the International Amphitheater. It may come later. No one can tell. All preliminary bouts are preliminary only because they are the first scheduled. They may be as well contested as the championships. All bouts will be three rounds of three minutes each, the Olympic test. The boys now eligible for this tournament are in training. They already have won university championship, National A. A. U. championships, Golden Gloves titles or finished at least in the semi-finals of these tournaments which attract thousands of entries.

Tickets for May 7 and 8 at the International Amphitheater are scaled at 55 cents, $1.10 and $1.65. They should be listed at the same price as the finals at the Stadium.

Wilson's advantage over all opponents he has met so far is his extraordinary height. He's nearly 6 feet tall, unusual for a boy of 112 pounds. Normally, one might expect that a tall, skinny boy would be ungainly, that he could not coordinate sufficiently to be effective in a hard punching scrap. But Jackie has shown he can hit hard, fast, and mix it up if that is what it takes to win.

Plenty of Competition.

All of Jackie's matches haven't been one sided by any means. Joe Laurie, who like Wilson attends Cleveland's East Technical High school, can trade punches with Jackie. Jimmy Urso of Detroit, who lost the National A. A. U. title to Wilson, is another. Both will be in Chicago May 7 to try once more. Urso tore into Jackie in the finals at Cleveland and one of the officials gave him the decision. The other two voted for Jackie.

Other boys who will try to prove that Jackie Wilson will not be the United States boxer to compete in the Olympic games are Sammy Dalton, Boston, Mass., New England champion; John Martin, a Chipewa Indian from the United States Vocational school, Phoenix, Ariz.; Alfred Arciello, Metropolitan champion from New York City, and Hiroshi Mashino, a hard hitting Japanese flyweight from Oklahoma City.

Add to this group the university men who qualified in the National Collegiate tournament and you have not only the best amateur flyweight boxers in the nation, but the most cosmopolitan list of entries ever brought together.

But the slogan for the 112 pounders will be: "Beat Jackie Wilson."

BERLIN OR BUST!

That's the goal of 90 of the finest amateur fighters in the United States. But first they must pass the severest test of their careers in Chicago, where the National Golden Gloves championships will be decided. Winners in this tournament will represent America in the Olympic games.

Leading fighters from the Amateur Athletic Union, National collegiate, Army and Navy and Golden Gloves tournaments will meet at the International amphitheater May 7 and 8. The admission prices are 55 cents, $1.10, and $1.65.

The 16 survivors in this tournament meet at the Chicago Stadium May 20 for the championships and the trip to Berlin. Admission prices are 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30. All seats, both for preliminaries and finals, are reserved.

WIATER KNOCKS OUT MADDEN IN THIRD ROUND

Green Bay, Wis., April 21.—[Special.]—Adolph Wiater, Green Bay heavyweight, returned to action tonight after six months' enforced idleness, and knocked out Dick Madden of Boston in the third round of a scheduled 10 round fight tonight. Wiater floored Madden with rights twice in the second round and planted another right on the Boston boy's jaw early in the third to end the battle.

Willie Ross of Chicago, 135¼, was awarded a technical knockout over Art Brewel, Duluth, 132¾. Brewel suffered a bad cut over his eye. Wilmer Van, Green Bay, 127, knocked out Ray Macey, Chicago, 125¾, in three rounds.

DERBY PLAYERS STUDY BARGAINS IN LONG SHOTS

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 21.—Just because there has been a lot said about the abilities of three or four horses quoted at short odds in this year's Kentucky Derby doesn't mean that there aren't going to be plenty of tempting long shots in the race.

The stories that are going the rounds about some of these long shots are enough to break down the resistance of the wisest horse players already down here. So alluring are they that the fellow often accused of being unwilling to pay a quarter to see an earthquake is actually finding it difficult to keep his money in his pocket.

Tip Is Out on Zsar.

There's Zsar, for instance. He is owned by O. Frank Woodward, a wealthy turf patron of New York. Zsar is in Louisville polishing up for the Derby, but he's not doing it at Churchill Downs. He's quartered a couple of miles away at Douglas Park and every morning come tales of how he blistered the Douglas Park racing strip with his speed.

"He's my hawse in the Derby, mister," said the colored lad who serves as Zsar's masseur after the colt engages in one of these dazzling workouts. "Nobody even goin' to be close to this colt when he comes flying down the stretch."

From other sources come tips on Zsar. The seeker of Derby dope can't turn a deaf ear to it. He looks up the colt Zsar and finds that he didn't win a race last year in seven starts. He turns to the colt's bloodlines. He's O. K. in that respect. His sire is the Derby winner Zev. His mother, Sarwonyx, is a daughter of the great horse Lucullite.

Takes Fast Workout.

The searcher for a long shot slips over to Douglas Park during the early morning hours. He see Szar reel off a mile in 1:42 2-5. The conceded stars of the Derby haven't done any better than that. Maybe a fellow should invest just a little at 100 to 1 on this colt.

On down the backstretch a hundred yards or so two others are in earnest conversation. The longshot seeker edges up alongside of them. "Silas is the biggest cinch that ever looked through a bridle," is what he hears.

Careful investigation reveals that this colt, too, has been working very fast, just as fast, in fact, as the favorite and some other topnotchers. He finds out that Silas is owned by Mrs. Bessie Franzheim, daughter of Edward F. Simms.

Everybody around the race tracks has heard about Simms. He has won

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE Dallas team of the Texas league, which sent Zeke Bonura to the White Sox, has another young first baseman named Mervin Connors, who threatens to knock down all the fences in the league. . . . The White Sox presumably will have first call on him because of their working agreement with the club. . . . Connors hit four home runs in his first five Texas league games. . . . He is tall and rangy, on the Hank Greenberg type, but needs to brush up on his fielding. . . . He is 22 years old, came from Berkeley, Cal., and Dallas paid $1,000 to the Palestine, Tex., club for him. . . . The first son of the American turf champion, Equipoise, now five weeks old, is to be named Lightnin' Bill. . . . He has a narrow strip of white down his bay nose which resembles a streak of lightning. . . . Burt Ingwersen, Northwestern baseball coach, fell off the bench in a recent game when Eino Haysker, his third baseman, stole third while that base was occupied. . . . There will be at least three full blooded Indians in the national Golden Gloves tournament at the amphitheater May 7 and 8. . . . One is Red Elk, bantamweight from the Chilocco Indian school of Chilocco, Okla., and the others are Johnny Martin, Pacific coast flyweight champion last year, and Leo Wood, current southwestern bantam champion, from the Phoenix, Ariz., Indian school. . . . Harry Stuhldreher, who as a member of the Four Horsemen eleven helped Notre Dame defeat Wisconsin, 38 to 3, is the Badgers' new coach. . . . Congratulations to Stuhldreher and Wisconsin. . . . The former Horseman told this department last night that he wanted to bring along Bob Reagan, his assistant at Villanova, as line coach at Wisconsin. . . . Reagan was center at Notre Dame in 1922 and 1923. . . .

American league pitchers say Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, is the poorest target in baseball because he stands back so far from the plate and comes up so quickly. . . . Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt has named one of his two year olds Brown Bomber after Joe Louis. . . . King Levinsky never won a bout as an amateur. . . . He competed among the simon pures two years. . . . RAIN GIVES CUBS TIME TO PONDER PIRATE PROBLEM

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—The weather intervened today to provide the champion Cubs with more time in which to ponder the misfortune of yesterday. They would have welcomed action but rain prevented their meeting the Pirates. So they sat around the hotel lobby, attempting to console one another over the jolt Gus Suhr dealt them with his three run homer in the ninth inning.

Today's postponement will be worked off here later, but will not prevent the Cubs and Pirates from resuming hostilities immediately. They'll be at it tomorrow, weather permitting, in Chicago. Manager Charley Grimm will open the three game series with Larry [Lefty] French, who was in line for the pitching assignment today. The Pirate starter will be either Ralph [Lefty] Birkhofer, who was scheduled today, or Cy Blanton, who may be brought back in hopes that he can do better than he did yesterday. He was routed by a six run attack in less than three innings.

They Are Ragged.

The Cubs to date haven't performed satisfactorily for those who picked them as championship repeaters. In their seven games, four of which they lost, the champions have given positive signs of not being themselves, at least not on last September's basis. Their fielding has been ragged and the pitchers apparently aren't quite ready. Some of this probably can be attributed to the strenuous spring tour which took them from Chicago and back by way of California to Florida. The siege of one day stands put 'em on a merry-go-round and they can't get off.

However, it is a bit early to become alarmed.

Despite their unimpressive start, they are not as badly off as they were at this time last season. They were in sixth place. The Brooklyn Dodgers were leading the league, the Cincinnati Reds were second, the Phillies third, the Boston Bees fourth, the St. Louis Cardinals fifth, the Pirates seventh, and the Giants eighth. The Giants now are out in front, which is something for the Cubs to think about. The Dodgers are last. Whether they'll ever get far away from the cellar is doubtful.

Henshaw Bubble Bursts.

The rout of Roy Henshaw here yesterday was hailed by the Pirates as the final cleanup of a problem they couldn't solve last season. The tiny southpaw whipped them seven times in eight starts. That was just about enough to win a pennant for the Cubs. If his mastery over the Pirates is at an end it will be plainly discern-

OLD NOTRE DAME STAR TRANSFERS FROM VILLANOVA

Appoint Guy Sundt Assistant Director.

Madison, Wis., April 21.—[Special.]—Harry A. Stuhldreher, quarter back on Notre Dame's famous Four Horsemen team in 1924 and for the last 11 years football coach at Villanova, was appointed athletic director and head football coach at the University of Wisconsin today. He will assume his duties May 1. The salary was understood to be $8,000.

GUY SUNDT.

Concurrent with Stuhldreher's appointment, Guy Sundt, former Wisconsin star and a member of the athletic department for the last 12 years, was advanced to the newly created position of assistant athletic director.

Choice Is Unanimous.

The appointments, announced by the university board of regents, climaxed the reorganization of the athletic department which began shortly after the regents' ouster of Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, athletic director, and Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head football coach, in February, and the subsequent resignation of the faculty athletic board.

The new faculty body, headed by Dr. William F. Lorenz, unanimously agreed on Stuhldreher last Wednesday. President Glenn Frank concurred and today the regents accepted the recommendation without a dissenting vote.

"The selection of Mr. Stuhldreher," President Frank told newspaper men, "is the result of a careful and exhaustive examination of the field by the faculty athletic board. The credentials of 50 candidates were gone over carefully. The board held personal interviews with 15 of them. The counsel of leading authorities in the field of intercollegiate athletic organization and personnel was sought and obtained.

Free from Pressure.

"The board was happily free from any cross fire of outside pressure which has so often confused similar situations. Nobody sought to interfere. The board was able to make its selections solely on the basis of merit, qualifications, and fitness for the Wisconsin situation. I feel the selection is a good one.

"I was impressed with Stuhldreher's intellectual alertness, his wide range of interests, his concept of the place of athletics in the lives of students and the university, his sincerity, the manifest soundness of his character, and the promise I think he gives of genuine leadership."

In naming Sundt assistant director, the regents declared he brought "to this crucially important post a wide knowledge of Wisconsin's problems, a universal popularity, and the confidence of secondary school men and high school coaches throughout the state."

Surprises Everybody.

Sundt was regarded as the likely choice for the directorship. Stuhldreher's name had been brought into the picture, but apparently only in advisory capacity. Today, however, it was learned President Frank and the former Horseman met secretly in Chicago Saturday, when they agreed to terms in a two hour conference.

President Frank told newspaper men

FOOTBALL WEATHER AND COACH SHARE SPOTLIGHT WITH GOLF SCHOOL

Ten thousand women and girls braved the weather to study golf in The Tribune's free school last night. At Jackson park, Tom Walsh, Westgate Valley pro, instructs part of 2,000 on stance. Charlotte Gallagher is the pupil.

Nearly one-third of the pupils enrolled in the fourth annual Tribune golf school reported for the first classes last night. The largest turnout was at Jackson park, where 2,000 women and girls received expert instruction from the Walsh brothers, Frank and Tom. Photo shows Frank demonstrating the stance. Tomorrow night's men's classes will be open to women as well to accommodate those who had no overcoats last night.

LEWIS TO MEET SINGER TONIGHT AT TEN ROUNDS

Light Heavyweights to Clash in Chicago Arena.

Tonight's Card

Cowboy Frankie Edgren vs. Eddie Boyle [6], heavyweights.

Georgie Engel vs. Pat Murphy [6], welterweights.

Honeyboy Jones vs. Ossie Jefferson [6], middleweights.

Sammy Verse vs. Paul Dempsey [4], lightweights.

Ken Murray vs. Mickey O'Shea [4], welterweights.

John Henry Lewis, 21 year old holder of the world 175 pound boxing crown, tonight will make his first local appearance in a ten round overweight bout with Izzy Singer, New York heavyweight, at the Chicago Arena, 333 East Erie street.

Singer, 22 year old former student at City college of New York, possesses considerable skill, ability which is expected to make the colored champion from Phoenix, Ariz., fight his hardest if he hopes to win. This is the main reason Co-Promoters William Bishop and Buell Patterson are making arrangements to handle a large crowd. Approximately $2,000 is needed to break even.

Edgren Vs. Boyle.

Another cause for the anticipation of a banner turnout is the six round semi-final between Cowboy Frankie Edgren of Colorado and Eddie Boyle, slugging Cleveland light heavyweight. There will be four other contests, two at six rounds and two at four.

Lewis won his title by whipping Bob Olin at St. Louis last Oct. 31. The accomplishment was not unexpected and created little excitement. Since then, however, the Arizona youngster has proved his right to the championship by scoring an upset and beating Jock McAvoy, Great Britain's champion, at Madison Square Garden in New York March 13.

Singer to Scale About 185.

John Henry weighed 172½ pounds against McAvoy, about eight less than he'll scale tonight. Singer will come in at less than 185 pounds.

A wrestling show at Arcadia Gardens, 4444 Broadway, headed by an encounter involving Ali Baba and Alex Kasaboski, also is on tonight's Chicago ring calendar. Baba will be in quest of his seventh triumph in as many starts here. The bout is to be one fall with a 90 minute time limit. Supporting matches:

Jack [Bad Boy] Brown vs. John Swenski, Red Vagnonne vs. Dennis Lentz, Mike Kilonis vs. Babe Kasaboski, Jerry Meeker vs. Frank Schroll, each one fall or thirty minutes.

Clarence Lane will clash with Herman Goldenberg at 152 pounds and Stanley Stockings is paired with Johnny Helstrom at 130 in two matches which will feature the amateur show tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. . . . Dr. John P. O'Connell removed the tonsils of Frank Sagilio, Cicero junior welterweight, yesterday and John Pacek, Chicago heavyweight, Monday. . . . Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., 147 pounder, who vanquished Chuck Woods at Milwaukee recently, will return to that city tonight for an eight round contest with Dom Lemanski. Another bout at eight rounds matches George Black with Karl Lautenschlager and a six rounder brings together Harvey Massey, New Orleans, La., and Tony Bruno, Milwaukee.

Jim McMillen yesterday was signed to wrestle Danno O'Mahoney at the Coliseum on April 30. Ed [Strangler] Lewis and Sun Jennings are principals in another feature. Orville Brown meets Ernie Zeller in a preliminary. . . . Boxing shows are scheduled at Washington High school, East Chicago, Ind., tonight; C. Y. O. center, tomorrow; Queen of Angels Guild hall, and Madison Athletic club, Friday; Marigold Gardens, Monday; Northwest stadium, May 1; Marigold, May 4, and at the Coliseum, May 5. Verne Patterson, south side lightweight, will battle Palmer Du Barry in a five round encounter at the Madison A. C. Monday's headliner at the Marigold arena pairs Davey Day with Mike [Little Pal] Primitch for ten rounds and the show there May 4 will be topped by a ten round affair between Milt Aron and Lou Halper.—F. Expect Marks to Fall in Penn Relays

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—[Special.]—More than one record is expected to fall Saturday afternoon, the second day of the forty-second annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival, which will be held on Franklin field, if the marks and times made by the teams and individuals in other meets hold true.

In the discus throw, Anton Kishon of Bates, record holder defending his title, will have to throw farther than he did in setting up the record if he is to defeat E. Widmer Etchell, of Michigan, the Western conference champion.

Last year Kishon, who also defends the hammer throw title on the second day, tossed the discus 151 feet 5¾ inches for a new record. Etchell, in winning the Big Ten title, threw 154 feet 10 inches, which is 4¼ inches better than the carnival record.

Peacock to Compete.

Eulace Peacock, Temple's great sprinter, who meets Jesse Owens, Chink Wallender and eight other sprinters in the 100 meter invitation dash in the afternoon, will attempt to break the hop, step, and jump record in the morning. He will oppose eleven other entrants in the event. The record has stood since 1923 when De Hart Hubbard of Michigan hopped and jumped 48 feet 10¾ inches.

Eddie Tasno of Pittsburgh, is another potential record breaker. Regarded as one of the best of the Olympic prospects in the event, the Panther has a record of better than 220 feet, which is about six feet more than the carnival record. Forty-one other javelin throwers have entered the event.

Aside from the field events, new marks are expected in the 880 yard relay in which 20 teams will compete. Columbia, last year's winner, will defend the title against the world's record holder—Texas university team with Wallender as anchor; against Ohio State, with Owens; Temple, with Peacock; Navy, with Dalton, and a number of other teams having outstanding sprinters.

Harvard Has Fast Team.

Harvard's four brilliant hurdlers are expected to win the shuttle hurdle event in M. B. Green and W. H. Schmidt supplying most of the speed. Ohio State may send Owens into the event while six other teams will attempt to win the crown taken by Pennsylvania a year ago.

Fifteen teams are entered in the two mile relay with North Texas teachers; Syracuse, Michigan, Manhattan, and Army as the favorites. In the mile, nine teams, including Michigan, which ran 3:15.2 last year, to win the conference title; Texas, with a mark of 3:19, and Manhattan which ran 3:16.3 to win the championship in 1935. Michigan State will defend its four mile title against ten other colleges in what should prove to be a battle down to the tape.

Other entries include 42 in the interscholastic two mile; 21 in the high school mile; 16 in the freshman mile; 31 in the pole vault; 34 in the high jump, and 31 in the broad jump. In the jump, Peacock and Owens will continue their duel.

Yanks Send Tamulis, Star in 1935, to Newark Club

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—The New York Yankees announced today that Vito Tamulis, young left handed pitcher who made a good record last year in his first major league season, had been sent to their Newark International league farm on option. Tamulis suffered a severe attack of pleurisy last winter and has not fully recovered.

GETS FISHING LICENSE AT 95.

Nine Marquette Athletes Enter Relays at Drake

Milwaukee, Wis., April 21.—[Special.]—Nine athletes, including Capt. Calvin Beckett, star half miler who will compete against Glenn Cunningham of Kansas in a special 1,000 yard race, will represent Marquette university in the Drake relays at Des Moines, Ia., this week-end.

Coach Conrad M. Jennings today announced that he would enter teams in the 440 yard and 880 yard relays. The quartets will be chosen from a list which includes Jimmy Jessel, Ned Snegpiel, Paul Phillips, George Dinges, and George O'Shea or Jerry Waindel.

Marquette will also enter Ward Cuff in the javelin and high jump, Alex Legrand in the pole vault, and Ray Buivid in the discus throw.

Beckett has been flirting with the 1:55 mark in the half mile all year, and Jennings believes he will be even stronger at the slightly longer distance.

HERMAN CARLETON HOPE

Randall Herman, an Oak Park boy, will lead the Carleton college track team in the Drake relays at Des Moines, on Friday and Saturday. Herman, who lives at 164 North Taylor street, Oak Park, was captain of the Oak Park High school track team in his senior year and now holds the same honor at the Minnesota college. He will compete in the 100 yard dash.

Herman's teammate, Leigh Davis, who last year made a leap of 13 feet, 6 inches in the pole vault at Drake, is entered again.

WOMEN'S TEAMS TO SEEK TITLE IN VOLLEY BALL

More than 30 teams have been entered in the annual Central A. A. U. women's indoor volley ball championship trials which will be held tonight. The trials are sponsored by the Girls' Volley Ball league of the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

Preliminary play will take place at four parks—Tuley, Altgeld, Fuller, and Hamlin. The finals will be held at the Medinah club May 7.

Favorites are the Cornell Tornadoes, Jewish People's institute, and the Illinois Bell Telephone All-Stars.

Chicagoan Named Public Links Golf Chairman

New York, April 21.—(AP)—John G. Jackson, president of the United States Golf association, today appointed three new subcommittees. R. Jimmy McClure Joins Tilden Tennis Troupe

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—(AP)—William T. Tilden today announced James McClure, Indianapolis junior tennis star and co-holder of the world's double table tennis championship, had joined the professional tennis troupe. This will not affect McClure's standing in table tennis, there being no distinction between professional and amateur in that game.

Mader Rallies to Win in Fight with Nichy

Washington, D. C., April 21.—Groggy in the third round, Eddie Mader, 180, New York, rallied to win a unanimous eight round decision over Billy Nichy, 177, of Pittsburgh, last night.

men Saturday his trip "had nothing to do with the future of athletics at Wisconsin" and that it was only "for a short rest and to give Mrs. Frank a chance to do some shopping." So carefully was the whole procedure guarded that today's action came as a complete surprise.

Stuhldreher, who is 34, is vice president of the American Football Coaches' association. At Villanova his football teams won 65 games, lost 24, and tied ten. He holds the degree of bachelor of arts at Notre Dame.

Opposes Old Teammates.

Stuhldreher was a unanimous all-American selection in 1924, when under the late Knute Rockne he led the Four Horsemen to an undefeated season. Teamed with Elmer Layden, Don Miller, and Jimmy Crowley, Stuhldreher directed one of the most brilliant and versatile back fields ever assembled.

In his first season at Wisconsin his team will meet elevens coached by two of his former Four Horsemen teammates, Nobel Kizer at Purdue, who was one of the original watch-charm guards, and Layden at Notre Dame.

Stuhldreher is Wisconsin's 19th head football coach and the sixth since 1921. He is the first Notre Dame man to be assigned the head coaching position at Wisconsin.

Although the salaries of Meanwell and Spears run to the end of the fiscal year, June 30, Stuhldreher will assume complete charge upon his arrival. Spears already is at Toledo university, his new post. Meanwell has not announced his future plans.

CONSIDER GRANGE

Villanova, Pa., April 21.—[Special.]—Four nationally known athletic figures have been approached by Villanova officials as possible successors to Harry Stuhldreher, Athletic Director A. G. Severance said today in confirming Stuhldreher's resignation to become director and coach at the University of Wisconsin.

They are Gus Dorais, head coach at the University of Detroit; Rip Miller, assistant coach at the Navy and a teammate of Stuhldreher's at Notre Dame; Dick Hanley, former coach at Northwestern, and Red Grange, former Illinois and National Professional league star, who now is an assistant to Coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears.

BUDGE EXTENDED BUT WINS MATCH IN MASON-DIXON

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 21.—(AP)—Dust got in the eyes of Don Budge today, causing him trouble in winning his way into the quarter-finals of the sixteenth annual Mason and Dixon tennis tournament.

Budge breezed through his first set with R. McElvenney of Washington without losing a game. High wind and dust caused him to lose the next, 6-8. He took the third set, 6-3, and with it the match.

Other seeded stars moved up with Budge. Wilmer Allison, captain of the Davis cup team, beat Carl B. Grawn, Grosse Point, Mich, 6-1, 6-3; Wilmer Hines of Los Angeles put out Clifford B. Berg Scatters Chicago Hits; Illinois Wins

Howard Berg, veteran Illini hurler, struck out sixteen Maroon batters yesterday as Illinois defeated Chicago, 8 to 2, at Greenwood field on the Midway. The victory was a measure of revenge for the Illini, who last year were relegated to a tie for second place with Chicago when the Maroons beat them at Champaign.

Berg yielded eight scattered hits and a pair of walks while his mates were pounding Connor Laird, Maroon pitcher, for ten safeties.

It was the fourth straight Big Ten victory for Illinois. Chicago has won one and lost one.

Bloomington, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—Rain prevented Indiana university's baseball team from opening its home schedule today against Butler. 1,500 at Diversey.

The Diversey course in Lincoln park attracted 1,500 students. After Tod Hardy, the club pro, had introduced Jock Anderson of Techny Fields as the teacher of the evening, Johnny Revolta of Evanston, national professional and western open titleholder, gave a demonstration of various shots, including hooking and slicing. Following this, while Anderson lectured, Packey Walsh and Frank Crowe of Bryn Mawr, aided the pupils in adjusting their grips and stances.

Anderson announced last night that he will hold classes at Techny Fields on Wednesdays and Fridays, beginning tonight.

Lew Waldron of Mohawk, was the boss teacher at Columbus park, where another 1,500 turned out. He was aided by Ren Smith and Harold Beers of Oak Park, and Bert Wild of Westward-Ho. Lew's guest of the evening was Tony Penna, little Florida star who has just come to Itasca.

Big Classes All Over.

Joe Jemsek of Cog Hill, aided by Victor Soitz of Southmoor, Don McCracken of Big Run, and Wally Reich of Cog Hill, was the master of ceremonies at Marquette park, where 800 took the lesson. The spirit with which P. G. A. members have entered the school was shown by Jim Noonan of Burnham Woods, who gave a demonstration of shots, and a talk, despite the fact that he has been ill. Jemsek addressed the class on grip and stance from the platform, while Soitz, McCracken, and Reich went through the class, giving each pupil pointers.

Jemsek and McCracken will give all of their lessons at Marquette, so that neither Cog Hill nor Big Run will be available for instruction.

The inner courses of the Daily Fee association also were surprised by the turnout of pupils, 800 turning out at Mid-City and Big Oaks, while 700 matriculated at Evergreen. The Big Oaks class was directed by Jack Norton, who gave the lesson. Demonstrations were given by Ky Laffoon of Northmoor, Eddie Williams of River Forest, and his daughter Ellamae, Chicago district star, and Harry Adams, former Hickory Hills pro, now connected with a national manufacturer.

Some Go Inside.

Abe Espinosa, in charge at Evergreen, gave his pupils a slow motion exhibition, while Frank Springer, Ray Hutchinson and Wally Dixon gave them individual tips. After Mel Thompson, Joe Tivnan, and Tim Hartnett had given the Mid-City class its lesson, with Dick Metz of the Mill Road Farm course, and Tom Kelly of Sunset Valley giving a demonstration, Thompson took a large part of the class into the clubhouse, where he conducted a question box.

Two of the outlying courses of the Daily Fee association, Vernon and Elmgate, also reported enthusiastic reception of the instruction, despite the cold weather. At Vernon, Charley Nash ordered the class of 200 into the club pavilion, where Julian Strud taught them the first principles of the game. Jim Dwyer of Elmgate conducted his lesson outdoors for a class of 200.

SCHMELING GETS OFF A BOOTFUL OF CONFIDENCE

Admits Louis Bout Is His Last Chance.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—A supremely confident Max Schmeling returned to New York today on what may be his last pugilistic pilgrimage to the United States.

"It is now or never for me," he said, as the Bremen steamed up the bay. "I know I will never get another chance in an important bout here unless I can beat your Joe Louis. That's what I intend to do."

He meets Louis in the Yankee stadium June 18 for the right to fight James J. Braddock for the heavyweight championship in September.

"I don't say I'll knock out Louis, but I'm sure I can defeat him," the German went on. "I regard him as a very good fighter. But he isn't unbeatable. He has never been called upon to face a man who would trade punches with him.

"There Is My Man."

"I saw pictures of his fight with Max Baer and I told myself 'There is my man.' Then I came over here and saw him beat Paulino. And again I told myself, 'There is my man.'

"You could tell from the pictures Baer was badly frightened. So were Prima Carnera and poor old Paulino. Here is one fighter who will not leave his fight in the dressing room."

Schmeling was accompanied only by Max Machon, his trainer. He was met at quarantine by Promoter Mike Jacobs of the 20th Century Sporting club, Manager Joe Jacobs, and a throng of boxing writers.

LOUIS EXPECTS K. O.

Detroit, Mich., April 21.—(AP)—Joe Louis said today he hoped to stop Max Schmeling in less than the four rounds he needed to knock out Max Baer.

He expressed satisfaction that New York, rather than California, had been selected as the scene of the fight, now scheduled for June 18.

"I want to try and break my New York record when I fight Schmeling," he explained. "It took six rounds for Carnera and four rounds for Baer. I want to beat that record if I can."

LITTLE SOAKS UP FLORIDA SUN TO CURE LAME HIP

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Lou Little, football coach at Columbia university, is in Florida and has been ordered by his doctors to remain there for a month. He supervised the first fifteen days of spring practice before turning the Lion squad over to his assistant, Herb Kopf.

Little still suffers pain from the hip which was operated on last winter. His convalescence has not been as rapid as he hoped, but the doctors tell him that such ailments heal slowly. A long rest on the Florida gulf coast should bring Lou around nicely, doctors say. Some years ago Lou fractured a neck vertebræ when hit by an overzealous pupil. He wore a spinal brace for months. That injury responded to treatment, but years of hammering about the legs in scrimmage practice caused a chronic bursitis of the hip joint—an extremely painful malady.

MACKS SCORE 4 RUNS IN NINTH, BUT LOSE, 7 TO 6

Malone Stops Rally to Save Yanks.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—The New York Yankees had to call on three pitchers to stop the Athletics in the last half of the ninth inning today, when the Athletics scored four runs and had the tying run on third. The score was 7 to 6.

Johnny Broaca, who was credited with his first victory of the season, went into the ninth with a five run lead, but Lamar Newsome touched him for a single, then Broaca walked Mailho and Finney, filling the bases.

Wally Moses tripled and Johnny Murphy replaced Broaca. Murphy walked Bob Johnson and Pat Malone came on to be greeted by Puccinelli's single. With the tying run on third, Malone made Higgins foul out and Warstler ground to Crosetti.

Bill Dickey's third home run of the season with two on in the third gave the Yanks an early lead.

NO. 2 FOR GROVE.

Boston, Mass., April 21.—[Special.]—Lefty Grove limited the Senators to three hits today as the Red Sox won, 8 to 1, in a game called in the seventh inning because of wet grounds. It was Grove's second victory of the season.

Grove held Washington to three scattered hits today as the Red Sox won, 8 to 1. Rain halted play in the first of the seventh inning. It was Grove's second victory.

When the Senators came to bat in the seventh, the darkness that preceded a brief but hard shower forced a suspension in the play, with one out. When it began raining hard the game was called.

The Red Sox got off to a lead in the first inning on three passes from Joe Bokina, a rookie right hander. Singles by Eric McNair and Bill Werber brought in all three runners. Bokina was then replaced by Henry Coppola, who finished.

Giants Score 7 to 6 Victory Over Phillies

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Big Hank Leiber's single in the last half of the ninth today scored Jimmy Ripple, rookie pinch hitter, with the run that gave the Giants a 7 to 6 victory over the Phillies.

The Giants built up a five run lead in the first seven innings which left Al Smith pitching in great form, but in the eighth he walked two men, hit another, and gave up three hits and three runs before he was taken out in favor of young Harry Gumbert, who allowed another run before retiring the side.

The Phils tied the score at six all in the first of the ninth when Ethan Allen singled, Whitehead booted Sulick's grounder, and Mickey Haslin singled to score Allen.

Terry sent Ripple in to bat for Gumbert then at the start of the ninth. He singled, went to second on Joe Moore's infield out, and came home on Leiber's smash to center.

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 21.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Bees had to give up a ball game in the twelfth inning here today when darkness fell with the score tied at 6 to 6.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WAKE MAIL BOX.

DEAR WAKE: In athletics the question of using tricks to win is dependent on whether such tricks can be considered part of the game. To hide a football under a player's shirt would be unfair. [Editor's note—This is prohibited by rule. [But to feign confusion of signals would be legitimate strategy, since both sides are supposed to be using all their wits on every play.

Feigning is used in baseball to catch a runner off base. It is a plain case of trying to outwit the opposing player by cleverness rather than by sheer playing skill. No doubt tricky plays look mean, yet both sides have the same right to use them. Either side can frustrate them by being "in the game" every second. Seasoned players are thought to be aware of every possible trick or surprise.

However, our general appreciation of fine open straight playing leads many to feel irked at trickery in sport. It is not in keeping with the instinct of fine play and integrity.

Carl Peterson.

I have played football, baseball, and basketball in high school and college, also pro football two years. A smart team will not let itself be caught sleeping and this point takes care of so-called tricky plays. Should the offensive team take advantage of the situation and turn in a score they should be credited with a smart move. The defensive team should at all times be wide awake for any possible plays that may be executed. . . .

To be unorthodox or tricky is smart playing in whatever sport we may be playing. A leader in any phase of life is always looking for an opening which will lead to victory.

Chas. Brodnichi.

A room which pink and blue adorn,
A bower for the newly born;
And in white baskets, row by row,
Like crocuses beneath the snow,
You lie there in your angel guise,
Not knowing where life's danger lies—
A bit of Heaven's glory lent,
Each precious soul to earth is sent.
Now your days are sure and sweet,
Loving care will turn your feet
Into pathways you must go;
But not for long will it be so.
Life's beginning does not show
Things in later time you'll know.
Now your needs are filled for you.
This will change—it's sad but true.
Some will learn the battle song,
Others find the years too long.
To the valiant goes the cross,
Carry on, don't count the loss.
Hoist your banners, meet the fray,
God speed you, little soldiers gay!

GIANTS SELECT HAVANA AS 1937 TRAINING SITE

New York, April 21.—(AP)—The New York Giants will train at Havana next spring, Manager Bill Terry announced today. Although final details have not been worked out, the squad is to reach Havana Feb. 19, 1937, and return to the mainland March 15. The club probably will establish a Florida base to complete training and play exhibition games against northbound clubs.

The decision marks the first time a major league club has picked Cuba as a training site.

So far the Cub staf hasn't produced even one well pitched game and that is fairly satisfactory proof that the hurlers are not at their peak. Every starter has weakened at the finish, some to lose and some to win only through the protection of a big lead. Two of the fadeouts have been by Lon Warneke, who ordinarily is a pretty tough fellow to score against. The big boy insists there is nothing wrong with the arm which blew up in the world series, but it is possible he is afraid to cut loose and risk a reoccurrence of the injury.

WHITEHEAD TO PITCH

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The minute White Sox officials stepped out of doors yesterday morning they knew it would be folly to try to play the scheduled second and final game of the Chicago end of the current series with the Cleveland Indians. So both teams hurried to an early train for Cleveland, where they will play today, tomorrow, and Friday.

Johnny Whitehead, who performed so nobly in whipping the world champion Tigers in their home opener, will have an opportunity to keep the Sox in first place this afternoon. He will be opposed by Johnny Allen, formerly of the Yankees.

The Sox, by being in first place as the season went into its second week, are better off than they were last year in their start which then was hailed as sensational. On April 21 last year the Sox were in third place and, aside from the four way tie after opening day of the season, did not get in first place until May 6.

This year they have been on top every day of the season except one—they dropped to third after Sunday's shutout in Detroit, but Monday again took over the top rung.

Monty Stratton, who boasts one victory and accepts one honorable defeat in the campaign to date, is scheduled to pitch in Cleveland tomorrow. The Sox will return to Chicago Saturday for games with the sobbing Detroit Tigers.

GRANVILLE WINS RACE; BECOMES DERBY THREAT

Beats Ned Reigh by Five Lengths at Jamaica.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Granville from the stable of William Woodward, chairman of the Jocky club, indicated at Jamaica today that he is a threat for the Kentucky Derby when he scored a smashing victory in the Bridgehampton purse at a mile and 70 yards and defeated Willis Sharpe Kilmer's highly regarded Ned Reigh by five lengths. The Sage stable's Pullman was third in the field of five, only a length back of Ned Reigh.

Granville, three year old son of Gallant Fox, champion of his three year old season, ran the distance in 1:43 2-5, a fine effort for his first trial under silks for the year. He ran as if he coud have gone much farther and was only coasting as he came through the final furlong.

Rushes to Front.

Granville never left the issue in doubt. He was rushed to the front right after the start and was closely attended by Pullman in the run through the back stretch. The son of Gallant Fox set a sizzling pace and disposed of Pullman as he turned into the stretch, where Jocky Stout gave him his head and let him run.

Pullman tired from his early efforts and began to falter. Sonny Workman on Ned Reigh had waited for the run through the stretch, but when he urged his horse the best Ned Reigh could do was to overtake Pullman. Granville had drawn away and under snug ride was winning as he pleased.

Ned Reigh Favorite.

Ned Reigh had been quoted among the first four in the future book betting on the Derby and accordingly went to post the favorite at 11 to 10, with Granville and his running mate, Invermark, second choice at 3 to 2. It was also the first appearance for the year of Ned Reigh and his followers were not necessarily discouraged by his showing and expect him to improve.

Charles S. Bromley's Rockey Prince, soundly beaten in his last start at Bowie, showed marked improvement in the fifth race when he got home a head in front of Hadtobe to win at 12 to 1 with Balois third in the field of platers at a mile and a sixteenth. Round Table, the 2 to 1 favorite, finished last.

259 TO COMPETE IN BADMINTON TITLE TOURNEY

Entries for the national open badminton tournament at the Chicago Arena, 333 East Erie street, Saturday and Sunday, closed yesterday with 259 contestants. Officials of the Midwest Badminton association, sponsor of the two day meet, said this is the largest entry list in the history of tournament badminton. It also is the first time a national open tourney has been held.

Twelve state champions are among the entrants. Henry Sistrunk of Chicago, Illinois title holder, and Walter Kramer of Detroit, five times Michigan champion, head the entries in the men's singles. Kramer is the ranking amateur player in the United States.

Seeded players in the women's single will be Billie Traxel of Chicago, the Illinois champion, and Constance O'Donovan of Detroit, Michigan title holder for two years.

Championships will be decided in the men's and women's singles, doubles, and mixed doubles. Play will continue throughout Saturday and Sunday, with the finals Sunday night. Outstanding contestants for the team championship include the University of Iowa, the University of Michigan, and teams representing Des Moines, Indianapolis, and St. Louis.

B'NAI B'RITH CHAMPS TO PLAY ON N. Y. A. CARD

Winners in the B'nai B'rith Youth organization basketball tournament will participate in the B. B. Y. O. sports program May 10 at the exposition of youth sports revue in the International amphitheater.

Joe Reiff, former Northwestern star, will referee the exhibition games. Two basketball courts will be in continuous use throughout the afternoon.

The B'nai B'rith exhibitions include volleyball, ping-pong, and wrestling as well as basketball. Wrestling bouts will be refereed by Ben Rubin, former world middleweight champion.

The exhibitions and competitions are part of the six day pageant focusing interest on the achievements of youth throughout Illinois. The National Youth administration of Illinois is directed by William J. Campbell.

RIDERS ASK FOR LENGTHENING OF TRACK AT ARENA

Riders entered in the indoor flat track races at the Chicago Arena yesterday requested Race Director Seward to lengthen the track for Friday night's events. A longer track, the riders explained, will give them more straightaway in which to get up speed before entering the turns.

Seward had laid out a short track, sacrificing straightaway, to give the riders plenty of room on the curves, but veteran racers prefer more speed and less leeway.

GAYETTE saved ground, had no excuse. SILVER PALM could not threaten when the real test came. JEANNE FETZKO was forced wide all the way. SYLVIA G., responded willingly to a hard drive nearing the end and was up in last few strides. CARELESS KNIGHT moved clear entering the homestretch but faltered when reaching the finish. ROCKRIM was caught in tight quarters and had to be eased in the last sixteenth only for which he might have been closer. JUSTA GLIDER closed a good gap after being away slowly. STACK ARMS was held safe. MISS TWINKLE showed a flash of early speed.

Derby Players Eye Bargains in Long Shots

Simms knew it and gave it to his daughter. He wanted her to get the thrills out of winning a Derby, continues the fellow who appears to be in possession of so much valuable information.

Why wait any longer, thinks the man on the hunt for the long shot? Better bet on this one and then just wait and collect the dividends.

Along comes an exercise boy who is just in from New York.

"Everybody's going to overlook that good horse Snark because he failed so often late last season," the kid tells a group of other exercise lads who are always anxious to hear about what's going on in New York.

And How About Snark?

"I've been working Snark," relates the optimistic kid. "My dough's going to be ridin' on him in the Derby."

The man on the longshot hunt ponders again. "Isn't that sort of first hand information," he asks himself, "can I afford to pass that up."

There is more gossip down the track. He hears it from some one who has just emerged from a whispering group.

This time it's about a mysterious horse that has never started. Isolater is his name. He has the finest blood lines to be found anywhere, for he's the son of the famous British sire, Blandford. His mother Priscilla Carter, a daughter of Omar Khayyam was sent to England to be mated with Blandford.

The low down is that Jim Fitzsimmons, who saddled Omaha to win last year's Derby, says Isolater is the best horse he ever trained. Jim ought to know.

GLANCZ TO SHOW FAMOUS SHOTS IN TABLE TENNIS

Sandor Glancz, the Hungarian table tennis star, who is a member of the international group that plays at Loyola gymnasium Sunday afternoon and evening, is said to be the player with the finest form in the world. Glancz's near perfect style has earned him a place in the world's first ten. He is a former world doubles champion, as well as holder of nearly every European title.

Besides having had more tournament experience than any other star, he is said to be the game's best instructor. His most famous pupil is Viktor Barna, five times world champion, who is also a member of the touring squad that plays at Loyola.

The last major tournament of the table tennis season will be held at the Mid-City Golf club on April 29, 30, and May 1. More than seventy entries, including most of the outstanding players of the Chicago district, have been received.

Delphinium May Set Derby Pace—But Can He Keep It Up?

[This is the eighth article in a series dealing with leading Kentucky Derby eligibles.]

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 21.—[Special.]—The most aptly named colt in the Derby is Delphinium. He's the son of Blue Larkspur-Multa Flora.

But Delphiniums, if we remember correctly, are not ready to bloom in the early springtime. So carefully has this one been pruned and tended, however, that it might prove an exception to the rule.

This was indicated last Saturday when Delphinium got out in front in the Chesapeake stakes in Maryland and stayed there until he was right close to the finish line. Lack of training caused him to hesitate slightly and as he did this the filly Gold Seeker, which had been conditioned beneath California's sunny skies, rushed up from behind to beat him by slightly more than a length. Delphinium carried 119 pounds to Gold Seeker's 109.

Delphinium Shows Great Early Speed.

You can almost bet the last button that Delphinium will improve off that race and when he does he's going to cause some anxious moments on the part of the owners of other candidates. This fellow really has a tremendous lot of early foot and he's sure to be among the pacemakers.

He won the National Stallion stakes and the Flash stakes in New York early last season. These are two of the prized juvenile stakes decided each year in the east, but as a result of winning them Delphinium was forced to pick up much weight in all of his later engagements. He couldn't do it and keep step with the leaders in the division in the stake events that followed.

Gean Canach to Team with Delphinium.

Delphinium is a nice race horse from any way you want to figure it, from blood lines to past performances, and he has a chance to win the Derby. He is owned by Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, which makes him a roommate of Cavalcade, the Derby winner in 1934.

Mrs. Sloan has another horse running for her in the Derby. Gean Canach is his name and he may be the dark horse in the race. All sorts of wild tips are floating around about his secret displays of speed and stamina. He started twice last year and didn't win. His sire is St. Germans, who was the sire of the Derby winner, Twenty Grand.

Mrs. Sloan's turf fortunes have been a bit on the down side lately, but her trainer, Whistlin' Bob Smith, may kick the jinx in the chin before Derby day. Whistlin' Bob is that sort of a fellow.

Coleman Clark to Play Exhibition at Theater

Coleman Clark, former national table tennis champion, will play a series of exhibition games on the Chicago theater stage today at 12:30 p. m.

COMMODITIES BILL ATTACKED BY GRAIN MEN

OpenSenateHearing on Control Measure.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Increased margin requirements were recommended to the senate agricultural committee today as a substitute for the administration bill to bring all commodity exchanges under federal control and restrict the amount of futures trading.

ROBT. P. BOYLAN.

Representatives of the Chicago and Kansas City boards of trade and the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce opposed the bill on the ground it would restrict bona fide hedging operations and cash trading and result in lower returns to producers. They asked to be let alone to see if self-regulation and coöperation with the federal Grain Futures administration would not work to better advantage.

The measure, passed by the house last session, was reported by the senate committee several months ago. Progress of the bill, however, stopped at that point and new hearings on the measure recently were ordered. Recommended by President Roosevelt, the bill would amend the grain futures act to bring under federal control futures trading in all grains, mill feeds and butter and eggs. Cotton futures trading was eliminated from the bill by the senate committee.

Boylan Testifies.

Robert P. Boylan, president of the Board of Trade, said that any legislation considered should meet "not only the demands of public policy and public safety but also the requirements of a smooth, even flow of grain from the harvest fields to the tables of consumers."

Siebel C. Harris, vice president of the Chicago Board, said the business conduct committee of the board had "done everything" in its power to coöperate with the grain futures administration and that this was preferred to more restrictions.

As a further "safeguard" against too much speculation, Harris proposed a minimum margin of 20 per cent on all futures sales over 2,000,000 bushels. At present prices this would be around 18 cents a bushel compared with the present margin of 6 cents.

Frank A. Theis of the Kansas City Board of Trade described the speculator who buys in a hedging operation as "the best friend the farmer ever had." He argued the power in the bill given the secretaries of agriculture and commerce and the attorney general—sitting as the grain futures administration—to set limits on the amount of futures transactions from day to day or by the month—would "destroy the highly competitive system of selling to the highest bidder."

Defends Speculation.

E. K. Grimes, Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, declared "speculation has an economic virtue and if it has it shouldn't be driven out of the domestic markets to Liverpool and other foreign markets."

J. B. Smith of Chicago, president of the Millers' National federation, also opposed the bill and said millers preferred regulation by the "margin route."

"We fear it would injure the ability of bona fide hedgers to get in and out of the market," he said.

C. B. Sturtevant, chairman of the grain committee of national affairs of the Chicago Board of Trade, based his oppositon on four grounds—that the bill would interfere with bona fide operations, delegate "unlimited" power to the secretary of agriculture, tend toward a licensing system and grant monopoly privileges to the big farm coöperatives.

REORGANIZATION OF SOUTH SHORE LINE APPROVED

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Financial reorganization of the Chicago, South Shore and South Bend railroad moved a step nearer today when the interstate commerce commission approved a plan which would provide a capital structure consisting of $212,800 of 5 year 5 per cent promissory notes, a bonded debt of $1,341,000, an issue of $4,307,000 of $5 first preferred stock and an issue of $1,947,000 of $6.50 second preferred stock, plus 122,000 shares of no par common stock.

The commission stated it found nothing in the plan to impair the interests of employés and that no change would be made in the present status of the workers.

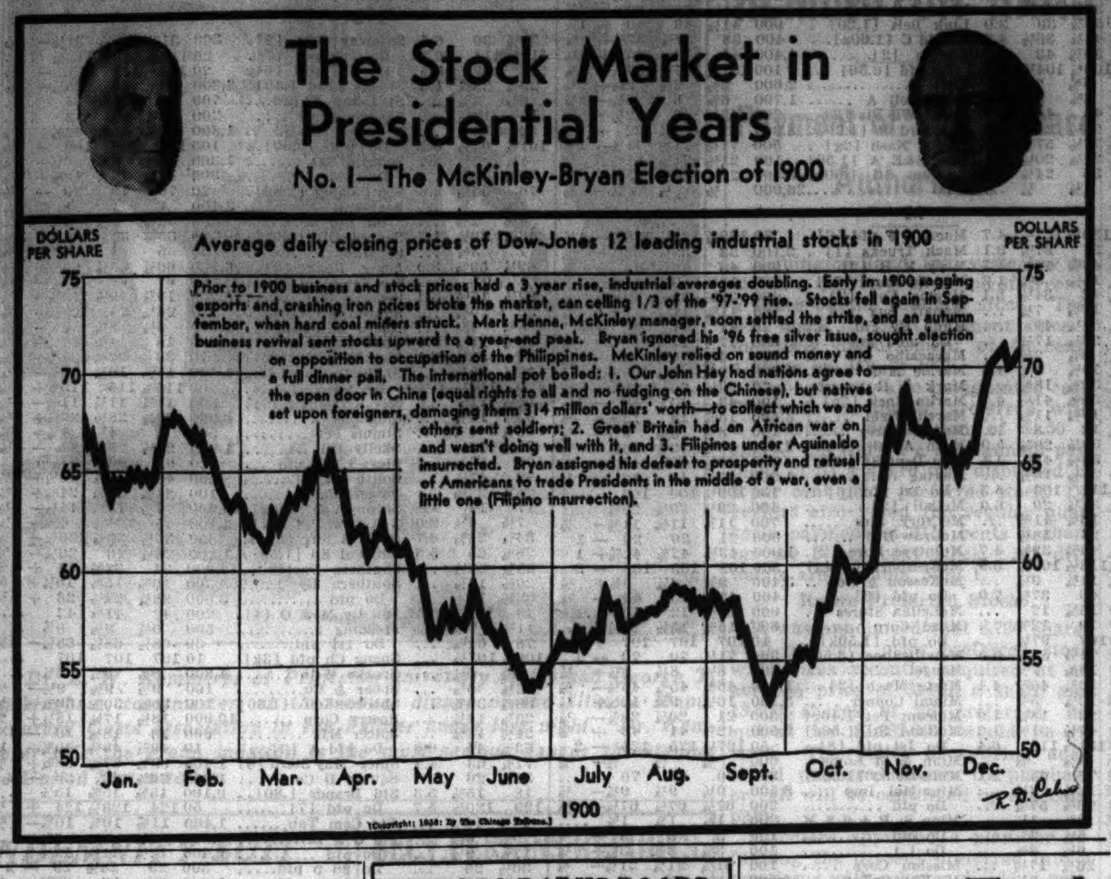
The Stock Market in Presidential Years

No. 1—The McKinley-Bryan Election of 1900



Prior to 1900 business and stock prices had a 3 year rise, industrial averages doubling. Early in 1900 sagging exports and crashing iron prices broke the market, cancelling 1/3 of the '97-'99 rise. Stocks fell again in September, when hard coal miners struck. Mark Hanna, McKinley manager, soon settled the strike, and an autumn business revival sent stocks upward to a year-end peak. Bryan ignored his '96 free silver issue, sought election on opposition to occupation of the Philippines. McKinley relied on sound money and a full dinner pail. The international pot boiled: 1. Our John Hay had nations agree to the open door in China (equal rights to all and no fudging on the Chinese), but natives set upon foreigners, damaging them 314 million dollars' worth—to collect which we and others sent soldiers; 2. Great Britain had an African war on and wasn't doing well with it, and 3. Filipinos under Aguinaldo insurrected. Bryan assigned his defeat to prosperity and refusal of Americans to trade Presidents in the middle of a war, even a little one (Filipino insurrection).

Inflation Fears Peril Savings —Kemmerer

Inflationary forces brought into play by the monetary doctors in Washington are retarding recovery and leading this country to the stage where the government will attempt to finance itself out of the savings of the people, Dr. Edwin Walter Kemmerer, professor of international finance at Princeton university, warned last night. He spoke at the annual dinner of the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association in the Palmer house. He said continued excessive spending will force the government to dip into endowments of public welfare institutions and life insurance companies to pay its bills.

"Our only hope," he said, "is a nation-wide opposition to further inflationary measures, which will result in the prompt repeal of the radical monetary and banking legislation now upon our statute books, and an early balancing of our national budget.

Inflation Great Danger.

"One of the greatest dangers threatening the American people is the threat of serious inflation. The fear of business and the financial public is a powerful factor in retarding economic recovery and making it slower and less stable than is the economic recovery in most other advanced countries."

He said the United States is now doing only seven-eighths of the physical volume of business transacted in 1926. Although the general price level is at the same ratio, there is 17 per cent more money in circulation, 129 per cent more gold in terms of dollars, and 7 per cent more deposits subject to check than in 1926.

Assails Money Statutes.

Kemmerer referred to the statutes now in effect that would permit further expansion of currency or credit, such as the silver purchase policy, the Thomas amendment on dollar devaluation, and issuance of $2,700,000,000 in greenbacks, the voiding of gold clause contracts, and the ability of governors of the federal reserve system to suspend all legal reserve requirements.

"We hear so much of controled inflation, but because inflation is so much a matter of mass psychology and of powerful political claptrap in the winning of votes, controling inflation is like controling the opium habit," Kemmerer declared.

Investors Pay Bill.

Serious inflation, he said, would take funds from the creditor and give them to the debtor, who in this country is represented mostly by the stockholders of our corporations with their thirty odd billion dollars of bonded indebtedness. Farm mortgages amount to 8½ billion dollars.

"The greatest creditors are the people who own these bonds," he said, "which include insurance companies, savings banks, universities and colleges, scientific, charitable, benevolent, religious, and other welfare institutions in their endowment funds, and by other beneficiaries of funds held in trust."

Cook County Asks for Bids on 11½ Millions of Bonds

The county board will receive bids today on $11,510,910 of Cook county series B 4 per cent refunding bonds. The bonds, which are being sold to provide funds for retirement of past due obligations as part of the county bond refunding program, will mature Jan. 1, 1951, and become callable in 1946.

CHICAGO PARKS BOARD REFUNDING PROGRAM IS PUT INTO EFFECT

Following a favorable vote by members of the Chicago Park district board yesterday afternoon, the park district's $99,085,708 refunding operation was officially declared operative. This action was taken jointly by the park district and Halsey, Stuart & Co., as a result of the announcement that holders of more than 85 per cent of all bonds of the twenty-two superseded park districts had assented to the plan or were in process of so doing.

"The successful completion of our refunding is naturally gratifying," said Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board. "The operation was completed with a minimum of expense and its benefits will be shared alike by bond holders, taxpayers, and the park district."

Halsey, Stuart & Co. announced yesterday that holders of bonds who have not yet assented to the plan must do so not later than May 14, 1936, in order to participate fully in the benefits of the offer. It was explained that this date was set because of the necessity of making complicated tax adjustments incident to the successful completion of the plan.

It was also announced that dealers' commissions will not be paid on deposits received after April 30, 1936.

ALLEGHANY CORP. TO FIGHT MOP TERMINAL ORDER

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—The Alleghany corporation is to contest a decision of the federal court in St. Louis disapproving a contract under which the Missouri Pacific railroad transferred $3,200,000 to the holding company as part payment for terminal properties and real estate, O. P. Van Sweringen, president of the corporation, discloses in his pamphlet report for 1935. Alleghany controls Missouri Pacific.

Van Sweringen described the attempt of the Missouri Pacific to recover the $3,200,000 as "wholly unwaranted."

Foreign Trade Balance Again Is Unfavorable

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Imports during the first quarter of 1936 were the largest for that period since 1930 and exports were the best since 1931, the department of commerce reported today. Imports in March again exceeded exports, the second consecutive month in which this has occurred.

Despite the need for war supplies, the department reported that Italian purchases in America as well as those for Italian Africa and Ethiopia declined.

Automobile Exports Gain.

For the first quarter exports totaled $575,123,000, compared with $524,248,000 in the corresponding period of 1935, $525,910,000 in 1934, $330,119,000 in 1933, $458,870,000 in 1932 and $709,843,000 in 1931.

Imports for the quarter amounted to $580,510,000, against $496,679,000 in the same period of last year, $426,564,000 in 1934, $274,610,000 in 1933, $397,709,000 in 1932, and $568,296,000 in 1931.

Adverse Balance $5,387,000.

The unfavorable balance of trade now called "excess of imports over exports" by New Deal officials who favor a large volume of foreign trade rather than a big excess of exports—amounted to $5,387,000. In the corresponding three months of last year there was an export surplus of $27,569,000.

Both exports and imports increased in March over February by 7 and 4 per cent, respectively. Exports in March amounted to $195,336,000, compared with $181,838,000 in February and $185,026,000 a year ago.

Imports in March were $200,295,000, compared with $192,776,000 in February and $177,356,000 in March last year. The import excess amounted to $4,959,000 in March and $10,191,000 in the preceding month.

OFFICERS TELL STOCKHOLDERS OF TRADE GAINS

HopesExpressed for ContinuedAdvances.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Stockholders of several corporations attending annual meetings heard executives tell of robust business improvement and cite high hopes for continued recovery. Companies whose shareholders gathered yesterday ranged from automobiles to books, and included a representative from each of the following major divisions: Chemicals, copper, locomotives, tires and rubber, electric power, cement and the films.

K. T. KELLER.

In Detroit, K. T. Keller, president and general manager of the Chrysler corporation, said retail sales for the most recent week had smashed the company's previous records. Hourly rates of pay are the highest in the history of the corporation, exceeding even those paid in 1929, he asserted.

Copper Firm's Head Optimistic.

L. S. Cates, president of the Phelps Dodge corporation, described the outlook for the copper industry as apparently the most optimistic in half a decade.

American locomotive's chief executive, William C. Dickerman, explained that unfilled orders had soared to $9,500,00 from $2,800,000 a year ago. Prospects, he added, are more pleasing than at any time in five years.

To shareholders of the U. S. Rubber company, meeting in New York, William de Krafft, first vice president, said: "There is no question that the company has emerged from years of depression despite the handicap thrown on its business by heavy taxes and increases in the price of rubber and cotton."

Utility Plans to Expand.

The New York meeting of American Water Works and Electric company was marked by the disclosure by President N. Hobart Porter that the heavier demand for electric power in the company's territory, in the east and south, will soon require the installation of additional generating equipment. Porter said the company will consider resumption of common dividends after congress has decided upon a definite tax program.

W. T. H. Howe, president of the American Book company, cited gradual improvement and said the management "feels very hopeful." The company's business was about on a level with 1932, Howe revealed. The company now has in its employ 10 per cent more workers than at the beginning of the depression.

Sidney R. Kent, president of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation, told his audience earnings for the first quarter had more than doubled, floods and blizzards notwithstanding.

Penn-Dixie Cement's president, Blaine S. Smith, said shipments in the first three months had exceeded those of 1935 by 23 per cent.

Fred L. McCarty, president of R. Hoe & Co., said in the first six months of the current fiscal year the New York branch obtained orders amounting to $2,168,155, which is a little more than the amount of orders taken for the entire fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1935, and is approximately 250 per cent of the orders taken for the corresponding period of last year.

Brokers View Stock Decline as Only Technical Reaction

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Unable to discover any substantial reason for it in business indices of corporation earnings reports, La Salle street has come to the conclusion that the weakness in stock prices during the last month is merely the "technical reaction" that observers have been anticipating for months.

Earnings continue to show improvement over year ago figures, steel production is above 70 per cent of capacity, electric power output is at record high levels, railroad car loadings are above those of a year ago, automobile production shows no signs of slipping and retail business is good. Farm income for the first quarter was greater than that of the corresponding period of 1935, despite last year's AAA handouts.

Summer Outlook Encouraging.

The outlook for the summer months is far from discouraging. Sales volume, already good in consumers' goods lines, promises to get another boost in midsummer with the release of between one and two billion dollars of bonus money to war veterans.

Offsetting these favorable developments are some discouraging influences, but upon examination it appears that none of them is likely to affect corporation earnings or dividends adversely in the near future. They have to do more with the long term outlook.

The French gold crisis, running in the wake of fears over the safety of the franc in the event France has to run a big budget deficit to cover military preparation against the Hitler threat in the Rhineland, has disturbed American investors and speculators.

Fear Withdrawal of Funds.

It is feared that devaluation of the franc would be followed by withdrawal of funds which have fled here from France during the last two years. Much of this money has been invested in American stocks.

The importance of the French devaluation possibility, however, has probably been overemphasized. Economists familiar with French finance say that the parliamentary election next Sunday is not expected to disclose any waning of the French people's well known antipathy for devaluation and other forms of money tinkering.

They predict that only a sudden intensification of the Hitler war scare can dislodge France from gold. And they add that even abandonment of the gold standard by France would hardly mean early devalution of the franc. If this viewpoint is correct, stock market fear of heavy selling of American shares by foreigners has been greatly overdone.

Tax Bill Disturbs Market.

The bill pending in congress to tax the undistributed earnings of corporations also has been a disturbing factor. Careful analysis of this proposal, however, discloses that, although the ultimate consequence might easily be a weakening of the financial positions of many corporations, the first effect would be a liberalization of dividend declarations by company managements in order to minimize their tax loads. The near term influence of bigger dividends undoubtedly would be bullish.

Conversations with well informed brokers along La Salle street disclose consensus that the chief trouble with the market is that it lacks leadership and is exceedingly thin.

Small Sales Depress Prices.

This lull in investment buying after months of steady acquisition has reduced the volume of trading to a point where small selling orders quickly depress prices, especially of those recent favorites which were quoted far out of line with current earnings and near term prospects.

La Salle street appears to be entirely confident, however, that the current readjustment period does not foreshadow a definite reversal of trend. The experts are quick to point out that most of the buying of shares during recent months has been for cash and that present holders do not appear to be inclined to unload.

One good reason for this is that there is nothing else for the investor to buy with his cash if he does sell stocks. The current yield on bonds is discouragingly low and a shift into bonds would forfeit the hedge against inflation afforded by stocks.

As fast as stocks selling out of line with earnings fall back to a point where their price earnings ratio looks attractive the sharp pencil experts get to work and support comes into the market.

Head of May Stores Gets $121,008 Bonus, No Salary

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Morton J. May, president of the May Department Stores company, said at the annual meeting of the organization today that a bonus of $121,008 had been paid to him for his services in 1935, explaining that officers received their compensation in the form of bonuses, rather than salaries, and that this represented his total compensation for the year. The next highest bonus to an individual was $48,000.

BIG COMPANIES REPORT PROFITS ABOVE YEAR AGO

Earnings for First Quarter Improve.

Earnings of leading companies so far this year are running ahead of the corresponding period of 1935, according to the first quarter reports issued yesterday by a number of corporations.

General Electric's profit for the first quarter was the largest for the period since 1931. While he gave no figures, Jesse J. Ricks, president of the Union Carbide and Carbon corporation, said the company's first quarter profit established a new all time high for the period. The William Wrigley Jr. company was one of the few companies to report lower earnings.

General Electric's net income for the three months ended March 31 was $7,086,830 after all charges, equal to 25 cents a share on the common stock, compared with a net income of $5,390,931, or 19 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1935.

Sales Increase 27 Per Cent.

Sales for the first quarter of this year totaled $51,423,071, compared with $40,393,538 for the first quarter of 1935, an increase of 27 per cent. Orders received totaled $59,569,879, compared with $49,379,932 last year, a gain of 21 per cent.

Ricks told stockholders of Union Carbide yesterday the company plans to expend about $20,000,000 on new construction this year. Of this, $6,000,000 will be spent for a new chemical plant in the southwest, $4,700,000 for completion of present work, and the remainder for other projects. He said the company has developed a new chemical substance for use in the manufacture of shatterproof glass and is erecting a plant to produce this material.

Wrigley's net profit for the first quarter of 1936 was $1,541,164, equal to 78 cents a share, compared with $1,786,095, or 91 cents a share, last

STOCKS PLUNGE ON NEW TAX BILL, BUT RALLY LATER

Final Prices Irregular; Trading Expands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—After bearing the brunt of another selling attack that drove prices down fractions to 3 points, the stock market rallied moderately in the final hour and closed irregular. Losses and gains were scattered over a wide area. Before the closing rally the market averages touched their lowest point in a month.

Trading volume was well ahead of the preceding session, with total transactions amounting to 2,032,490 shares. Nervous tension was apparent all through the session as traders, highly uncertain following yesterday's bad break, sought to adjust their commitments.

Bears Utilize New Tax Bill.

The corporate tax bill introduced in the house was seized upon by the bears for a raid on the list. In the last hour, however, the constructive element shook itself out of its lethargy and came back into the market. Early losses were cut down and in some cases replaced with gains.

Trade developments were interpreted as favorable, except for a less optimistic forecast of car loadings for last week. Uncertainty over the foreign political situation and the belief in some circles that further technical adjustment of the list's position might be necessary tended to dampen speculative enthusiasm.

One of the outstanding weak spots in the list was Checker Cab, breaking 10½ points to 58½.

Motors shares came back strongly. Chrysler, faced with a loss of more than a point, was pushed up a major fraction and General Motors pared a drop of a point to a small fraction.

United States Steel and Bethlehem finished with small fractional losses after being down as much as a point each. Other steel shares closed irregular.

In the carrier section western issues were softest, weakening the argument that the approaching cut in passenger fares for eastern roads is depressing the market.

Johns Manville, which touched off the decline last Saturday, profited from short covering and advanced almost 3 points. Other stocks able to gain a point or more included du Pont, Allied Chemical, Borg Warner, American Smelting, Dome Mines, U. S. Smelting and Amerada Oil.

Westinghouse and American Can were bright spots in the industrial sector, registering gains of 2⅛ and 3¼ points, respectively.

General Electric ignored its good earnings report.

Douglas did well among the airplane issues, climbing more than 2 points. Oils shares were mixed. Utilities did little. Farm implement shares finished irregular.

MANAGEMENT CLAIMS VICTORY IN GIMBEL FIGHT

Family Factions Squabble Over Control.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—The annual meeting of stockholders of Gimbel Brothers, one of the country's largest department store chains, was turned into a lively struggle today between two factions of the Gimbel family for control of the board of directors, and the result was a victory for the management headed by Bernard F. Gimbel.

The opposing group was led by Richard L. Gimbel, a cousin of the firm's head and a former director and manager of its Philadelphia store. He was dismissed some time ago as an executive of the company, but retained membership on the board until today, when he was dropped.

Victory for Management.

The official count of stockholders' votes, announced at midnight following hours of delay while the tellers checked proxies, was 105,308 shares of preferred stock for the management's slate of nineteen old and two ne wdirectors, against 26,312 shares.

In three and a half hours of oratory by both sides, personalities were indulged in freely and some of the Gimbel family history was placed in the minutes by Richard, the younger of the two Gimbels directly involved.

Louis J. Horowitz, chairman of Thompson-Starret company, who is also chairman of the advisory committee of the Gimbel board, accused Richard of stirring up trouble among stockholders by "half truths" and "misstatements" in letters soliciting proxies.

Assails Management.

Richard Gimbel said Bernard should be immediately removed from office because of incompetency, but if that were not done, he urged his cousin "to take off your coat and do some work like your father did—run a store, if you can, and let the other managers run theirs." He accused his cousin of having a "spy system."

Among notables at the meeting were Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, who made a brief talk in praise of the management; Lessing Rosenwald, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, and Thomas H. McInnerney, president of National Dairy Products corporation. Both are directors, but neither took part in the debate. Commonwealth Edison company yesterday reported increased gross earnings and decreased net income for March. Gross revenues were $6,924,136 last month, compared with $6,630,012 for the corresponding month a year ago. Net income was $955,898 against $957,345.

INDEMNITY SUIT ON MIDDLE WEST HEADS SETTLED

Report $65,000 Is Paid to End Claim.

A suit filed three years ago against the New Amsterdam Casualty company, underwriters of a $100,000 indemnity bond covering all officers and employés of Middle West Utilities company, by the receiver of Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, defunct Middle West subsidiary, was dismissed in federal court yesterday because of a settlement made out of court.

Attorneys for Eugene V. R. Thayer, receiver of Mississippi Valley, filed the suit on Jan. 13, 1933, charging alleged fraud and dishonesty against Samuel and Martin J. Insull, and particularly that Martin Insull had improperly diverted $395,000 to his personal trading account.

Insulls Chief Officers.

Samuel Insull was chairman of the board of Middle West and the subsidiary and Martin was president of both companies. Both Insulls were cleared of all charges in sensational trials through 1934 and 1935.

The order dismissing the suit was entered yesterday by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley on representation made by both sides that satisfaction had been rendered by the defendant.

While no amount was named in the stipulation, it was reported on reliable authority that the New Amsterdam Casualty company has agreed to pay $65,000 to the receiver.

Money Goes to Middle West.

The amount paid by the casualty company will be turned over to the Middle West corporation, which succeeded the old Middle West Utilities company upon reorganization, and which took over the assets of Mississippi Valley Utilities company.

A similar suit for the same amount was filed in behalf of the parent company but is expected to be dismissed as part of the general settlement.

Daniel C. Green, president of Middle West corporation and formerly trustee of the old company, admitted that the casualty company had made a settlement with his company on the $100,000 bond, but neither affirmed nor denied that the amount was $65,000.

PREDICTS ONE OF NINE WILL BE INJURED IN 1936

Every ninth person will meet with an accident of some sort this year if past statistics can be relied upon, L. D. Cavanaugh, executive vice president of the Federal Life Insurance company of Chicago, asserted yesterday in a statement issued in connection with Accident and Health week. Insurance companies throughout the country are observing this special week from April 20 to 25.

"The number who will probably meet with accidents," Cavanaugh continued, "is five times as great as are expected to die from natural causes. More than 8,250,000 persons were injured and more than 100,000 killed by accidents in the United States last year, according to statistics compiled by the National Safety council.

"The toll taken by sickness is even greater. While an average of 17 persons is injured in accidents every minute of the night and day, 51 are disabled each minute by sickness."

SECY. PERKINS REPORTS GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT DURING LAST MONTH

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Secretary of Labor Perkins today reported that employment in manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries during March showed a gain of 250,000. One division of the steel industry, she reported, had increased its employment above the 1929 level.

Payrolls in the industries surveyed by the labor department, she added, were $10,000,000 above February and $20,000,000 over a year ago.

The employment index in the wire making division of the steel industry, she said, now stands at 143, compared with 124.2 in 1929. At the same time she pointed out that four and a half million young people have come on the labor market since 1929 and that employment would have to rise to 125 per cent of the "normal" level to absorb these newcomers.

Sixty-six of the manufacturing industries reported gains, she said, and 11 of the 16 nonmanufacturing industries showed improvement in employment.

RAILROADS OFFER FINAL PLEA TO KEEP SURCHARGE

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Class one railroads made their final pleas to the interstate commerce commission today for indefinite extension of emergency freight rate increases scheduled to expire July 1. Estimated to bring in $104,500,000 annually, the surcharges have been protested by coal interests and other shipping groups. For the last month, the commission has been holding hearings on the application for extension.

J. H. Parmelee, director of the bureau of economics, Association of American Railroads, introduced an exhibit giving a breakdown among products of increased revenues realized by the railroad from the surcharges between April 18 and Nov. 30, 1935.

The increases were listed as follows: Products of agriculture, $1,551,316; animals and animal products, $2,274,309; products of mines, $26,489,127; forest products, $559,612; manufactures and miscellaneous, $26,808,994.

R. V. Fletcher, chief counsel of the rail association, said that the railroads would offer no further evidence beyond explanation of these exhibits, adding that their entire argument had been submitted in previous hearings.

NEW YORK SILVER PRICE FALLS BELOW LONDON

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—The price of bar silver in New York fell below the level quoted in London today when a reduction of ¼ cent to 45½ cents an ounce was posted here and London bullion brokers lifted the quotation 1-16 penny to 20 9-16 pence, equivalent to 45.76 cents in American funds.

No special significance was attached to the changes which followed two successive advances in the New York prices, carrying the quotation Monday to 45¾ cents, or above the London price.

Business was extremely light in the foreign exchange market here and few price changes were indicated. The franc eased ⅛ point to 6.59 cents. The British budget proposals brought only a mild reaction of ⅛ cents to $4.94 in the price of the pound.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—An attitude of indifference on the part of traders resulted in another dull and featureless bond market today on the New York Stock exchange.

While pressure was lifted from some sections of the list, other groups, notably United States government loans, turned soft and the market generally displayed a mixed undertone, with price changes in most cases restricted to narrow limits.

Transactions were stepped up moderately, but barely topped $10,000,000, amounting today to $10,023,000, compared with $8,965,000 Monday.

Government List Lower.

United States government long term bonds displayed the most uniform group movement, easing off from 1-32d to 8-32ds point on a turnover of slightly more than $1,000,000. The guaranteed loans, which have shown somewhat greater resistance to the selling than the direct obligations, joined the decline and sustained the widest losses.

Mixed and narrow movements characterized trading throughout the list of domestic corporation bonds today. While the selling of certain secondary railroad and industrial loans, which featured the preceding day's trading, was checked, the group showed no rallying ability.

Price Changes Narrow.

Prices drifted about within fractional limits in most cases. The issues of New Orleans, Texas and Mexico were again weak, yielding from 1 to 6 points on a few sales. Utility bonds maintained a firm undertone.

The market for foreign dollar bonds was decidedly firmer, with several strong spots developing during the day. Italian issues led the advance in the European group, while Kreuger & Toll 5s and Panama 5s were in good demand at higher levels.

Jones & Laughlin Steel.

Investors' Guide: Kindly give me information about Jones & Laughlin new 4¼s.—Miss W. S.

Answer: Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, about the fourth largest unit in the steel industry, has a fairly well diversified production. A substantial portion of its output is taken by oil, gas, and water companies and the building trades. Its heavy dependence on capital goods industries has acted as a check on earnings during recent years.

In the early part of this month the company offered $30,000,000 of first 4¼ per cent bonds, due 1961. The proceeds of this issue will be used to redeem bonds with higher interest rates, to build plants, and rehabilitate old plants. The construction program is designed to enable the company to manufacture sheet steel on a competitive basis, giving it a thoroughly rounded out production.

The company has been unable to operate profitably since 1930, although steady improvement has been made since the 1932 low point. It lost $400,000 in 1935, against a $2,751,000 loss in 1934. Loss in 1933 was $5,367,000, against losses of $7,910,000 in 1932 and $2,283,000 in 1931. In 1930 net income was $9,093,000.

Indiana Pipe Line.

Investors' Guide: Will you please tell me what you think of Indiana Pipe Line stock?—C. H. W.

Answer: Indiana Pipe Line company's main petroleum pipe line extends from Griffith, Ind., to the Ohio state line, where it connects with Buckeye Pipe Line company, a distance of about 165 miles. Earnings depend largely on volume of petroleum products consumed.

In 1935 deliveries totaled 16,375,656 barrels, against 14,442,186 barrels the year before, and operating revenues were $533,000, against $496,000 in 1934. Net income in 1935 was $138,000, or 46 cents a share. In 1934 net income was $75,000, or 25 cents a share. In 1933 net income was equal to 38 cents a share [including nonrecurring income], against 29 cents in 1932, and $1.18 in 1931.

On Dec. 31, 1935, current assets were $1,444,000 and current liabilities were $85,000. There are outstanding 300,000 shares of $10 par stock on which a dividend of 20 cents a share will be paid on May 15, 1936. Dividends in 1935 were 35 cents a share. The stock is not on a regular dividend basis. It is medium grade.

TWO NORTH SIDE REAL ESTATE PROPERTIES SOLD

Builders-Merchants Bank Building Transferred.

Sale of two well known real estate properties on North Clark street was disclosed yesterday. In one transaction William L. O'Connell, bank receiver, sold the building containing the old quarters of the closed Builders and Merchants Bank and Trust company at the northeast corner of Clark street and Foster avenue. The other holding is located at Clark street and Catalpa avenue, which was bought by Van V. Lain and William V. V. Lain, members of a south side undertaking concern.

O'Connell sold the bank property to Curt Teich for $47,000, according to an order entered by Judge Walter T. Stanton of the Superior court, and this amount will be apportioned among the creditors of the bank, including the depositors.

Improved with Building.

The property includes a three story building on a lot which fronts 80 feet on Clark street and 135 on Foster avenue. Under terms of the court order Teich is to receive all the bank's old equipment, including the safety deposit vault in the basement. Attorney Gustav E. Beerly represented the buyer.

The property purchased by the Lains fronts 122 feet on Clark street, 278 feet on Catalpa avenue and 122 feet on Ashland avenue, running along the north side of Catalpa.

The seller was Harry Bairstow and the price was not disclosed. There is now a large brick residence on the property which at one time was the home of Mathias Mann, an old settler in the neighborhood.

Plan Extensive Remodeling.

The Lains propose to expend about $78,000 in improving and remodeling the residence for an undertaking establishment and on the construction of stores on the Clark street frontage.

Attorney Beerly represented the seller in the Clark and Catalpa sale, while Attorney Donald P. Vail represented the buyers. Hogan and Farwell, Inc., acted for both parties as brokers.

The newly incorporated Nash Michigan Avenue company has leased for a term of years the premises at the northwest corner of South Michigan avenue and 26th street, W. C. Heineman & Co., representing the property, announced yesterday. The premises are improved with a two story building which will be occupied as a sales and service plant for Nash and Lafayette automobiles. S. L. Davis is head of the Nash Michigan Avenue company.

BUTTER, EGGS FIRMER ON COLDER WEATHER

Forecasts for colder weather in the leading producing states led to fair buying of butter and egg futures yesterday on the Mercantile exchange. October eggs advanced ¼ cent early, but met with profit taking and closed unchanged at 22⅜ cents per dozen, while storage packed firsts gained ⅛ cent. While the into storage movement is reported heavy, supplies on hand at the 35 leading cities show around 20,000,000 dozen less than at this season a year ago. Sales of futures were 79 cars.

Trade in butter was light, sales being 6 cars of futures with November closing ⅛ cent higher at 26⅜ cents per pound. Prices follow:

Speculative interest in cotton continued light and scattered buying based on the continued dry weather in the western belt lifted prices 1 to 5 points in Chicago and 2 to 8 points in other markets yesterday. [A point is equal to 1-100 cent.] Spot cotton closed 5 to 10 points higher with New Orleans 11.65 cents and New York 11.80 cents per pound. Houston and Galveston had a holiday. Prices follow:

WHEAT WEAKENS AS KANSAS GETS LIGHT RAINFALL

Partial Relief from Long Drouth Afforded.

Scattered rains, which covered part of the eastern half of Kansas and afforded some relief from the record breaking drouth which has prevailed in southwestern winter wheat belt this spring, were effective in depressing the new crop futures on the Chicago Board of Trade about ½ cent per bushel yesterday. The selling, however, was not aggressive and the market showed stubborn resistance to pressure.

The dollar quotation was restored to the blackboard on the May delivery, which gained ⅝ cent to close at $1 per bushel in reflection of an aggressive shipping demand for cash wheat. Chicago handlers reported sales around 150,000 bushels, making a total of nearly 1,200,000 bushels taken by mills out of the local market in the last eight business days and the largest purchases in over six years.

Light Showers in Kansas.

According to official and private reports the rainfall in Kansas was largely confined to scattered showers, except in some of the northeastern counties. These showers were generally regarded as being too light to be of material benefit.

No moisture was received in the sections of Kansas where most needed, and numerous reports of duststorms were received from that state and from parts of Nebraska. Reports indicated irreparable damage had already occurred to the wheat crop in the western sections of Oklahoma and in the Texas panhandle as the result of the dryest spring since the weather bureau started to keep records.

Seeding of spring wheat in the northwest came to a sudden halt yesterday as the result of below freezing temperatures and the forecast indicated.

Outside Markets Irregular.

The Kansas City wheat market showed relative strength and lost only a small fraction, while Minneapolis was off as much as 1 cent, with the July delivery leading the decline. An aggressive foreign demand for Canadian cash wheat, with exporters taking around 1,500,000 bushels, lifted the Winnipeg market about ¾ cent early, but a reaction occurred near the close, and final sales were little changed from Monday.

Closing prices on the July delivery of leading grains, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$.91⅝	$.92⅛	$.89⅝
Corn	.62	.61⅞	.60¼
Oats	.27¼	.27⅜	.26½
Rye	.53⅝	.53¾	.53⅛

Corn was firm throughout the day, the development of an active shipping demand with sales of 221,000 bushels of cash grain bringing in commission house and local buying as well as by elevator interests. The close was fractionally higher.

Oats and rye eased fractionally on scattered selling.

CASH GRAIN

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Tuesday: Wheat, 3 cars; corn, 71 cars; oats, 18 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 17 cars; soy beans, 26 cars. Range of cash prices per bushel in leading markets:

HIDE FUTURES.

NEW YORK, April 21.—[Special.]—Trade in hide futures was larger today, but the market showed an easy undertone and closed 2 to 3 points lower. Sales were 25 lots or 1,000,000 lbs. Closing bids in cents per pound: June, 11.58c; September, 11.92c; December, 12.22c; March, 12.52c.

PWA STRATEGY FAILS WHEN SOUTHERNERS DISCUSS RED TAPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—Ten Democratic mayors of southern cities were brought into the District of Columbia Supreme court today to bolster up the New Deal's defense of its $200,000,000 municipal power program.

The strategy failed somewhat for some of the mayors testified that although they wanted PWA loans for their power plants the transactions were ensnarled in governmental red tape.

Utility concerns are attempting to obtain a permanent injunction to prevent the government from lending and granting funds to cities in Alabama, Iowa, Oklahoma, Texas, and Vermont. The testimony of experts today was that if the injunction is not granted private power companies stand to lose more than half their investments.

James A. Emery, Montclair, N. J., engineer, testified that PWA loans and grants to six Alabama towns for municipal plants would cost the Alabama Power company a total of $704,073 of the $1,187,206 invested to serve the centers.

The utility companies suffered a setback when Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat ruled out evidence that was considered important in their case. This consisted of advertisments containing allegedly misleading information on municipal power that were financed by public ownership proponents in order to carry local referendums.

Jerome Frank, PWA attorney, announced today Administrator Ickes would be among government witnesses called in the test suits.

LARD FUTURES DECLINE ON COTTONSEED OIL HEDGING

Lard futures declined 5 to 12½ cents yesterday as the result of pressure which was regarded as hedging against purchases of cottonseed oil. Export demand for lard was said to be slow, although some interests indicated there were fair purchases being made by the domestic trade. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed 12½ to 35 cents lower. Cash lard was quoted at $11.02; loose $10.45, leaf $10.37, and clear bellies at $14.50 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

HEAVY RECEIPTS OF HOGS FORCE DROP IN PRICES

Lambs About Steady; Cattle Higher.

The relatively high position of the Chicago hog market attracted the heaviest Tuesday receipts in eight weeks yesterday. Arrivals at 15,000 compared with 12,616 for the preceding Tuesday and with 9,513 a year ago.

Prices broke 10 to 15 cents at the opening, with spots down more, but the market rallied on good local support later and closed as much as 5 to 10 cents above the low point of the forenoon. The average for the day at $10.60 was off only 5 cents, while top sales at $10.90 showed 10 cents decline.

Fresh Pork Prices Vary.

Wholesale markets for fresh pork fluctuated sharply at the various distributing points, prices ranging from 50 cents lower to 50 cents higher. Chicago pork markets retained most of Monday's sensational advance, top loins again selling at the 1936 high of $23.50.

Packers and shippers competed for the supply of 49 carloads of lambs on the market at mostly steady prices. Both interests gave the $11.15 top for full wool sock, getting the bulk of the good kinds at $10.75 to $11.10.

Cattle Scarcer; Prices Rally.

Cattle receipts were cut to 5,500 at Chicago yesterday, the smallest Tuesday run in six weeks, due to recent severe slashing of prices. All leading American cattle markets recently have been under pressure of heavy supplies of both domestic and foreign stock which have driven prices $1 to $5.75 under 1935.

The break in the market was halted by lighter runs yesterday, some steers recovering 10 to 15 cents of the 75 cents to $1 loss recorded in the last ten days. Top steers sold at $10.10. A year ago this week such kinds sold by to $15.85.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Y-O-U-R O-W-N B-U-S-I-N-E-S-S

Would you be interested in starting a business for yourself without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constant increasing demand.

Now, here are our requirements: You must be under 50, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance, and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side of Chicago, northern Indiana, and northwestern Illinois.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and, if selected, will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer, as we even pay rent, light, heat, telephone, girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Wednesday only between 10 and 11 a. m.

Ask for Mr. Leonard, suite 402, Maryland Building, 63d-st. and Maryland-av.

MEN—STEADY WORK.

We will hire 4 men at once who live on northwest side, train them thoroughly at our factory branch at our expense and employ them immediately in permanent positions, full time.

Married men preferred, as these are responsible positions and we require no investment or deposit—but you must be reputable and able to learn this work as taught. This is steady, profitable sales work, but our method of putting the prospect into the market for our elec. unit is so unusual that you must be trained in it. While learning, new men must be satisfied on comm. earnings of $35 to $45 per week, but later can increase this substantially. Previous experience not important because our method is so unusual, but applicants must be willing to work hard and study to qualify for the higher incomes.
Apply 2:15 P. M.
